WILSON WORKS TO LAST HOUR

Clears Away Official Busines in Preparation for Honeymoon Trip.

TAKES MRS GALT AS BRIDE THIS EVENING

Christening of Baby McAdoo is Day's Big Event at White House.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Everything was ready today for the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt. Guests had arrived and decorations in Mrs. Galt's home, in which the ceremony will be performed tonight, were completed.

Members of the president's family attended at noon the christening of Ellen Wilson McAdoo, daughter of Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo and the president's only granddaughter. The christening was in the blue room of the white house. The president was godfather and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, the baby's aunt, and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, cousin of the president, were godmothers. The Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of the Johns Protestant Episcopal church here, christened the baby, who was born last May. The president's other grandchild, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sayre, was christened at Williamstown, Mass. The president acted as his godfather, too.

How President Spent Day.

The president paid an early morning call today on Mrs. Galt.

After a brief visit the president went to his bank, where he spent half an hour looking through his safe deposit box and going over some accounts.

One room at Mrs. Galt's home had been reserved for wedding presents. Many gifts have been received from strangers in spite of the efforts of the president and Mrs. Galt to discourage giving of presents from these outside of the circle of friends and relatives. Gifts continued to arrive at the white house today.

The president planned to devote the afternoon today to work and clearing up much official business before departing on his honeymoon trip. He will dine with members of his family at the white house about 7 p. m., and leave soon afterward for Mrs. Galt's home for the wedding ceremony.

Arrangements were complete for the ceremony which is to be solemnized at Mrs. Galt's home tonight. The members of the two families who are to be the wedding guests were present and decorators and florists had put the finishing touches on the rooms to be used

RECORD BUSINESS DONE BY MERCHANTS

Tremendous Rush at the Stores on Last Saturday Before Christmas.

A new record was made by the merchants of Fort Wayne Saturday in the volume of business done on the last Saturday before Christmas. Throughout the entire day the stores were thronged with Christmas shoppers from all sections of northern Indiana.

As a matter of fact every kind of business in the city is on the boom and conditions are so much improved over the same period last year that there is really no comparison.

According to the bank officials the banking institutions are doing a greater volume of business than perhaps ever before in their history. The total footings of the First National, Old National, Hamilton National and German-American National banks are almost $15,000,000, and the footings of the four trust companies are nearly $9,000,000, making a total of $24,000,000.

The bank clearings for the week ending Saturday were $1,404,519.14, as compared with $1,246,116.53 for the same week last year and $1,287,058.70 last week. The clearings for each day of the week were as follows: Monday, $249,794.87; Tuesday, $227,870.33; Wednesday, $256,250.63; Thursday, $257,502.82; Friday, $196,962.82; Saturday, $216,077.17.

65 ACCIDENTS IN MONTH OF OCTOBER

During the month of October there was a total of sixty-five accidents of every kind on the city lines of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, as compared with thirty-two accidents in October of 1914. Notwithstanding the greatly increased number of accidents the figures for October, 1915, are surprising to the officials of the company, for they had expected even more than were reported, owing to the congested condition of the streets. In October, 1914, there were no jitney 'buses in operation, while in October, 1915, more than 100 of them were running every day, saying nothing of the increased number of private automobiles and other vehicles.

The report of accidents is as follows:

	1915.	1914.
Persons hurt alighting	1	4
Persons hurt boarding cars	0	3
Collisions with cars	8	1
Collisions with vehicles	14	11
Collisions with autos	42	13

Heavy Bail Demanded for Men Now Accused in Canal Plot.

New York, Dec. 18.—Paul Koenig, head of the bureau of investigation of the Hamburg-American line, and Richard Emil Leyendecker, a New York art goods retailer, were held in $50,000 and $30,000 bail, respectively today by United States Commissioner Houghton on a charge of conspiring to blow up the Welland canal. The hearing was set for Jan. 12. Counsel for Koenig and Leyendecker fought hard for a reduction of the bail asked by the government. In insisting on the higher bond Assistant United States Attorney Wood said: "The amount is not too large. The people back of these men can put up any amount of money that is needed."

The specific offense charged against Koenig and Leyendecker is conspiring to send a military expedition from this country against a friendly nation. Frederick Metzler, employed by the Hamburg-American line and said to have acted as stenographer to Koenig, who was also arrested with Koenig and Leyendecker, will be arraigned Monday.

Assistant United States Attorney Sarfaty said that information in possession of the government made it almost certain that additional arrests will be made throughout the country during the next few days. All of these he said would be in connection with the canal plot.

ELEVEN INJURED IN WRECK NEAR BRAZIL

Brazil, Ind., Dec. 18.—Eleven persons were injured, two seriously, today when the southbound passenger train on the Centerpoint branch of the Vandalia railroad was wrecked at a bridge three miles south of here.

Arthur C. Davis, engineer, and Dudley Miller, fireman, both of Brazil, were the more seriously hurt, but both will recover. The nine passengers hurt were said to have received only minor bruises.

The wreck was due to the engine tender leaving the track and pulling the rest of the train off. About 150 feet of track was torn up.

VIENNA NOTE DENIES MUCH

TEXT OF AUSTRIAN REPLY MADE PUBLIC

Wilson Prepares Stronger Demand to Be Made on Austria.

Washington, Dec. 18.—The official text of Austria's reply to the American note on the Ancona, made public here today, reveals that the Vienna government denies that the views presented by the United States, even if correct, warrant the blame for the disaster being placed upon the commander of the submarine.

The reply denies also that blame can be placed upon the Austro-Hungarian government even if "a most rigorous legal construction were applied to the judgment of the case."

Professes Itself Puzzled.

The note also states that the Austro-Hungarian government is unable to determine what the United States intended to indicate when it mentioned the attitude which Germany had assumed toward submarine warfare. It adds that if the United States intended "to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed" with respect to "judicial consideration" of the affair the Vienna government declares that it reserves to itself "full freedom of maintaining its own legal view."

Except for slight variation in translation the remainder of the official text virtually is identical with the unofficial version cabled from London.

Door Not Closed.

It was agreed seemingly in official quarters that the official text did not minimize a realization of the gravity of the situation which was impressed on officials by the unofficial cables, but it also was apparent that the door to further negotiations was not closed.

While the state department was making the note public, President Wilson was at work in his study on the outline of a reply which will go forward some time next week.

The state department also made public an official text of the Austrian admiralty's statement previously published which admitted that the submarine fired on the Ancona after the ship had come to a stop and while passengers were still aboard. It was upon this official admission of the Austrian admiralty itself that the principal portion of the note was based.

Full Text of Austrian Reply.

The full text of Austria's reply to the American note on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona as made public today by the state department follows:

"American Embassy Vienna, Dec. 15, 1915. Secretary of State, Washington. Following note received from minister foreign affairs noon today:

"In reply to the much esteemed note number 4167 which His Excellency, Mr. Frederick Courtland Penfield, American ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the United States of America, directed to him in the name of the American government under date of ninth inst. in the matter of the sinking of the Italian steamer Ancona the undersigned preliminary to a thorough, meritorious treatment of the demand, has the honor to observe that the sharpness with which the government of the United States considers it necessary to blame the commanding officer of the submarine concerned in the affair and the firmness in which the demand is addressed to the imperial and royal government appear to be expressed, might well have warranted the expectation that the government of the United States should precisely specify the actual circumstances of the affair upon which it bases its case.

NEXT CRISIS AT SALONIKI

ANGLO-FRENCH ARMY FORTIFYING THERE

Chief War Interest Now Centers on Bold Move by the Teutons.

London, Dec. 18.—The unprecedented military situation in Greece has developed a new crisis. The allied troops, which, according to the estimates of British newspapers, numbered 200,000, are fortifying themselves about Saloniki, digging trenches and placing guns. It is reported the Germans are preparing to advance into Greek territory to attack them.

Whether the Bulgarians also will cross the border is a vital question to the Greeks. It is believed a Bulgarian advance would rekindle old enmities and might draw the Greek people into the conflict.

The Greek general election will be held tomorrow, but it is not expected the result would have any controlling influence on the policy of the government. The party of former Premier Venizelos have refrained from putting candidates into the field and the soldiers under arms, constituting a large proportion of the electorate, will not vote. HUNTED WITH FERRET AND IS ARRESTED

Charged with hunting rabbits with a ferret in violation of the game laws of the state, Bernard Bickle was arrested Friday by Deputy Warden James A. Connell. The alleged offense is said to have taken place on September 14. Bickle was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Henry J. Grabner at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Miss Morrison Fined.

Miss Morrison, who refused to give her first name, was found guilty Friday afternoon in the court of Justice August C. Nierman of assault and battery on Henry F. Bloemker and was fined $1 and costs. According to the testimony in the case Bloemker went to the Morrison meat market at Francis and Wayne street sto take some things that had been replevined. Miss Morrison objected to Bloemker's intrusion and proceeded to attack him with a stick of wood.

Peter Miller was found not guilty in the court of Justice Grabner, Friday afternoon, of the charge of public intoxication.

BAKERY WAGON TIES UP CAR TRAFFIC

Fort Wayne's street car system was sewed up like a seamless sock at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, when a Geller bakery wagon got jammed in the frog at Lewis and Calhoun streets. Inertia made the mare go after the wagon had stopped short, and it simply broke the tugs and cantered north along the street. Bridge Over Spokane River Collapses Beneath Street Cars.

VICTIMS PINNED LONG UNDER WATER

Seven Hurt in Bridge Disaster Which Costs Lives of Others.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 18.—Seven persons were killed and ten injured today when a street car went through the Division street bridge over the Spokane river.

The killed were in the car more than an hour after it went into the river. The injured were removed to a hospital.

Two street cars were on the bridge when the whole structure collapsed. One end of one car fell to the water and the other end rested on the abutment. The car crew and two passengers were rescued uninjured.

The other car, inbound and carrying about twenty passengers, fell into the river and a heavy steel beam crashed down lengthwise upon it, crushing passengers on one side of the car. Two

FORD PEACE PARTY TO FIND HOTELS CROWDED

Christiana, Norway, Dec. 18.—Efforts to make arrangements here for the reception of the Ford peace party, on its way here in steamship Oscar II, have failed. The hotels are crowded for the Christmas holidays and will not agree to reserve 168 beds from day to day while awaiting the arrival of the travelers.

The Christiana branch of the Clergymen's Peace association is considering plans to hold a prayer meeting for peace when the party arrives. Captain Totten, the American military attache at Copenhagen, is on the way to Christiana, the first port at which the Oscar II will touch. He denies his trip is connected with the Ford party.

LONG UNDER SUSPICION

NEW SENSATION IN WAR CONSPIRACY

New York, Dec. 18.—Charged with conspiring in a military enterprise to destroy the Welland canal, the Canadian waterway which connects Lake Erie and Lake Ontario, three men are under arrest here today awaiting arraignment before a United States commissioner, while a fourth man is in the custody of the government authorities.

Those under arrest are: Paul Koenig, formerly head of the bureau of investigation of the Hamburg-American line, who, it is charged, has been the head of a German secret service in the United States since the beginning of the war; Richard Leyendecker, a retailer of art goods in this city, a naturalized American, alleged to have been employed by Koenig; Frederick Metzler, of Jersey City, reported to have been a clerk in the office of the Hamburg-American line and secretary to Koenig.

Held as Witness.

The fourth man held in custody is George Fuchs, who was formerly in Koenig's employ and who has given the authorities valuable information. So far as known he is not alleged to be a party to any conspiracy.

The arrests were made last night under the direction of Wm. M. Offley, head of the agents of the department of justice in New York, and A. Bruce Bielaski, head of the special investigators of that department. The complaint, made by Mr. Offley, alleges that Koenig and others went to Buffalo and Niagara Falls in September last to prepare means to destroy the canal "by force of arms."

Long Under Surveillance.

The three defendants, it was learned today, have been under surveillance for a year. The evidence which led to their arrests was given by George Fuchs, who, it is charged, quarreled with Koenig over the payment of $50 which he claimed Koenig owed him. Detectives employed by Captain Tunney, of the New York police department obtained Fuchs' statement and turned him over to Mr. Offley.

The purpose of the alleged attempt to block the canal was it is charged, to prevent the movement of supplies down the great lakes and through the Welland canal and St. Lawrence river to the entente allies.

The names of workers in San Francisco, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston and other cities are said to have been discovered among documents seized by the authorities in a raid upon the offices of Koenig and Leyendecker.

The penalty for the crime charged in this case is three years in prison or $3,000 fine or both. Koenig came into public notice last June when the affidavit of Gustav Stahl, averring that he had seen cannon on board the steamship Lusitania before she sailed on her fatal voyage, was submitted to the state department. It was Koenig who notified government authorities that Stahl could be found at Albany. The alleged plot to destroy the Welland canal recalls the attempt last February of Werner Horne, who said that he was a captain in the German army, to blow up the Canadian Pacific railroad bridge over the St. Croix river between Maine and New Brunswick. Horne is still awaiting trial.

GOOD ROADS EXHIBIT AT AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Through the efforts of Congressman Cyrus Cline the government's good roads exhibit will be shown at the automobile show to be held in this city from Jan. 10 to 15 in the new Riegel building on West Jefferson street and the Myers barn facing West Washington street. Announcement of this was made Friday evening at a meeting of the Fort Wayne Auto Dealers' association at the Commercial club.

The exhibit consists of photographs of good and bad highways and models of improved methods of constructing roads. Lectures will also be delivered by a government expert.

The board of works of the city has given the association permission to use the alley between the two buildings wherein the show will be held. The passageway will be enclosed. The association has decided not to issue a program.

QUIT CAPITOL FOR CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY

Washington, Dec. 18.—The capitol building, for the past two weeks the scene of congressional activity, today practically was deserted.

Virtually all the members of congress, following adjournment last night for the Christmas holidays, were homeward bound, not to return until the reopening on January 4.

One official act was the passage by the senate of the house joint resolution extending the emergency revenue law until Dec. 31, 1916. President Wilson, shortly afterwards, affixed his signature to the measure. Adoption of the resolution came after a lively partisan debate by a vote of 45 to 29. The measure had the full support of the democrats and the solid opposition of the republicans. When congress reconvenes the administration legislative program, including plans for national defense, will be undertaken in earnest.

Chester Stovall, Wabash electrician, returned yesterday after spending a few days in Fort Wayne.

FLOOD WARNING IS GIVEN EVANSVILLE

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 18.—With the Ohio river rising at a rate faster than has ever been known here, the local weather bureau this morning issued a flood warning instructing farmers to remove all property affected by the flood stage of 35 feet or over. The flood stage is expected here some time Monday.

The river early today registered 24.9 feet and was rising at the rate of eight tenths of a foot an hour. Thousands of bushels of corn, stacked on the river bank to be loaded on steamers, are endangered by the sudden rise in the river. Small streams in this vicinity, swollen by recent rains, are out of their banks, inundating farm lands.

ENGLAND CALLS OUT THE DERBY RECRUITS

London, Dec. 18.—(11:50 a. m.)—Four classes of recruits who enlisted under the Earl of Derby's plan, were called out today by royal proclamation.

All recruits on the Derby rolls, who did not enlist for immediate service were placed on the army reserve rolls and therefore the first call for service of four classes is made by the same formality as in the case of the old army reservists, who heretofore have been called to the colors. The appearance of placards to help with the royal arms caused a stir in the streets. The public infers that the Derby enlistment plan has been a success and that conscription at least is postponed. If it should develop that any large percentage of unmarried eligibles failed to enlist, it is expected they will be subjected to conscription, as foreshadowed by Premier Asquith, before any calls are made for married men who volunteered under the Derby plan. It is inferred the government intends to consider the first class, consisting of 18 year old boys, as corresponding to the class of 1917 in continental countries and will defer indefinitely putting them into training.

W. G. Rose Delivers Interesting Address on "Start Something."

"Start Something" was the subject of an interesting address delivered by William Ganson Rose, president of the Advertising club, of Cleveland, O., at the meeting of the Quest club Friday evening. The speaker declared that it is up to the successful man to take the initiative, to make the first move and make it right. When this is done it is very essential to follow it up with consistent play.

Henry C. Paul, president of the Old National bank, followed Mr. Rose in which he gave a concrete example of a young man's rise in the business world. He told of a young man coming to him six years ago for a position. There was nothing open to him, but he did not give up. He continued to call on Mr. Paul until he found him a position with the traction company. Today he is vice-president and general manager of three large traction companies with headquarters at Boise City, Idaho. That man, Mr. Paul said, was Mr. Dickey, well known in Fort Wayne, who is now only 28 years old.

Chicago Mayor Assails His Police Department

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Roused by a recent wave of crime, which has resulted in several murders and numerous robberies and hold-ups, Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson today charged the Chicago police department with shielding criminals, grafting and contributing to the orgy of crime.

"I know the police department is absolutely rotten," the mayor said. "It is honey-combed with grafters. I know criminals, hold-up men, murderers, pickpockets and thieves of all description known to the police are walking the streets every day and are not arrested.

"This is a terrible thing to say, but I would not be surprised to learn that in the department are men who have planned murder."

Mayor Thompson said he would immediately start a wholesale cleaning up of the police department and rid it of crooks, "even though it costs me my life." Nicholas Hunt, former inspector of police, who, for the last few years has been at the head of a private detective agency, will be installed as head of the detective bureau of the police department, according to reliable information, succeeding Captain John Halpin, who last week was convicted of grafting in offering protection to swindlers.

Mayor Thompson said he had no intention of removing Chief of Police Charles C. Healey.

"Chief Healey has been making an honest effort to make the entire force honest," the mayor said, "and I propose to back him up."

SALVATION ARMY WILL DISTRIBUTE BASKETS

Hope to Raise $500 for Benefit of Poor of the City.

More than one hundred families will be made glad on Christmas through the Salvation Army, which is now busily engaged raising the necessary funds whereby it may bring happiness to as many homes as possible. Adjutant Charles S. Biddle is desirous of raising $500, but up to the present time the response to the Army's appeal for funds has not been as generous as in former years. He hopes, however, that the deficiency may be made up during the coming week. Five kettles have been placed at the busiest street corners and up to Friday these had only netted about $100. He hopes to raise over $200 in this manner and the remaining amount in soliciting and in other ways.

The Salvation Army will fill one hundred baskets with roast meat, potatoes, apples, canned goods, coffee, flour, jelly and bread amounting in value to approximately $2 for each basket. These will be distributed among the most needy. On Tuesday evening following Christmas the poor children of the city will be given a treat.

Will Deliver Series of Lectures on Jan. 12, 13 and 14.

Dr. Carolyn E. Geisel, of Battle Creek, Mich., has been secured to deliver a series of lectures before the school patrons of the city, January 12, 13 and 14, 1916.

Dr. Geisel is a wonderful speaker. She spoke before the teachers' institute of this county the first week in September at the high school and completely won the approval of the city's teaching force. She has a national reputation as a skilled physician and as a platform speaker on helth topics.

Dr. Geisel has been secured by the united efforts of all the Parent-Teacher clubs in the city. Parents and their friends are urged to make arrangements to hear this gifted woman. Announcement will be made later of the hour and place of the lectures.

The course is to be thrown open to parents and their friends and no charge will be made either at the door or collection. The vast number represented by the Parent-Teacher clubs or the city, which means all patrons of the schools, twelve to fifteen thousand in all, make it possible to bring a lecturer of such prominence to the city on such terms.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

WOMAN LEAPS FROM BUILDING TO DEATH

Kendallville, Ind., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Grace Mulligan, 43 years old, of Rockville, Ind., committed suicide here yesterday afternoon by leaping from a fire escape on the third floor of a school building during a Christmas entertainment. Her daughter, 14 years old, clung to the woman's skirts and fought frantically to prevent the plunge. The child's pleading cries brought assistance too late. Mrs. Mulligan came to this city Thursday night to visit her sister, Miss Jennie Blatchley, a teacher in the school. While the children's entertainment was in progress she slipped upon the fire escape unobserved by any one except her daughter. She died three hours after her plunge. The woman's mind is believed to have been unbalanced.

INDICTED AS LAZY HUSBAND.

Frank Trout, of Bluffton, First Man of That County to Be Arrested.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 18.—Frank Trout, a well known local man, was arrested yesterday on a grand jury indictment, charged with failure to make necessary provision for his family, the indictment alleging virtually the same charges made in the affidavits for child neglect or failure to provide, it being alleged that he is the father of minor children, for whom he fails to supply the necessities of life, in the way of clothing, provisions, etc. The indictment is drawn, however, specifically under an act passed by the last legislature, entitled the "Lazy Husband Act."

The law provides a penalty, upon conviction, of a fine not to exceed $500, and a sentence not to exceed six months in a jail or workhouse, in the latter case meaning at the state penal farm. The court may suspend sentence. Trout's bond was fixed at $100, and if he desires an immediate trial Judge Eichhorn said yesterday afternoon that he would be given a trial at this term of court.

WAS BORN IN FORT WAYNE.

Alexander McClure, Almost 77 Years in DeKalb County, is dead.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 18.—Alexander McClure, for over three-quarters of a century a resident of DeKalb county and for fifty years an occupant of the farm where he died, passed away at his home in Keyser township. He had been in poor health for a year, but his condition did not become serious until two weeks ago. Had Mr. McClure survived until Monday he would have been 77 years old. The deceased was born in Fort Wayne on December 18, 1838. When but four months of age his mother died and he was brought to DeKalb county to make his home with his grandfather in Butler township in the part now known as Keyser township. After his marriage to Miss Sarah J. Swihart he moved on an adjoining farm and has ever since made his home there. Three children were born to the union, Mrs. J. L. Grubb, of Auburn; W. W. McClure, of Garrett, an engineer on the Baltimore & Ohio, and Sam'l McClure, who lives in another house located on the old somestead.

ADAMS COUNTY PIONEER DIES.

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 18.—Karl Krueckeberg, one of the best known pioneer residents of Adams county, died at his home in Union township Friday at the age of almost 81 years. He was born in Germany and was brought by his parents to America in 1840. The family lived for a time in Fort Wayne, where the father was engaged in the tailoring business, in which the son, Karl, assisted. They came soon after to Preble township, this county, to reside. Karl Krueckeberg was married in 1860 to Caroline Kleinschmidt and they later moved to Union township. Mrs. Krueckeberg died two years ago. The surviving children are Fred Krueckeberg, Mrs. Wilhelmine Thieme, Ernest Krueckeberg and Charles Krueckeberg, who reside in Van Wert county, Ohio. Thirty-two grandchildren and six great grandchildren survive. The funeral will be held Sunday.

CITY TREE FOR LAGRANGE.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 18.—Arrangements have been completed for a municipal Christmas tree, in line with other up-to-date cities. A giant pine tree has been secured from Mrs. Mary Schermerhorn, on South Detroit street, which has been erected at the intersection of Detroit and Spring streets. It is to be wired and decorated with colored electric lights and kept lighted throughout the holiday season. Miss Mildred Gilhams is the moving spirit in the joyous enterprise and is being ably assisted by a committee of business and professional men of which Dr. D. W. Dryer is the energetic chairman. The plan is to have a big celebration on Christmas eve, to which all the people of the county are invited.

TO PLANT MUNICIPAL TREE.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 18.—It looks now as if a municipal Christmas tree would be a fixed feature hereafter in Auburn. Persons who favored the plan started the movement Friday to transplant a large evergreen tree on the west lawn of the court house square near Main street. Mrs. Adams Richey, of Franklin township, is the owner of a place near Woodlawn cemetery on which a number of large evergreen trees are growing and she has generously donated the finest tree in her grove for that purpose. All that was then needed was the consent of the county commissioners and this was secured from E. A. Bordner, chairman of the board.

MONTPELIER PAIR IN TROUBLE

Montpelier, Ind., Dec. 18.—Following in the wake of a court of inquiry Charles Oliver and Nellie Varnon, of this city, were arrested on charges of illegal [illegible] Mayor Neal's court and both pleaded not guilty. Each was placed under $50 bonds. They will have their trial January 5. At the present time a divorce case is pending in the courts against Oliver. The Vernon woman, who was formerly Mrs. Nellie Huffman, of Keystone, has secured a divorce from her husband. In the case of William Montgomery, who was arrested in Fort Wayne and brought here on a charge of beating a board bill at the Vernon home, he was not tried on the charge, but was placed under a $50 bond to appear in the Oliver Huffman case. His case will come up later for a hearing.

DIES GETTING OUT OF BED.

Kendallville, Ind., Dec. 18.—While in an effort to crawl out of bed shortly before 7 o'clock, at his home, 418 Matthews street, Victor Twitchell fell over dead. A stroke of apoplexy was the cause. Wednesday he suffered a light stroke which had affected him somewhat, but his condition was not regarded as serious. Victor Twitchell was 47 years, 6 months and 5 days of age. For some years he had followed the vocation of a nurse, but was compelled to give up the work following his illness of a year ago. Surviving besides a widow are three children, Basil, Leon and Ollen.

TEAM ATTACKED BY BOAR.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 18.—While working with a team in a corn field where a number of hogs were running at large, Oliver Prough, of Newbury, had a valuable mare ruined by an attack of a large boar which suddenly became vicious. The hog rushed under the team and with its tusks severed the arteries in the horse's leg, just above the hoof, and the animal came near bleeding to death before it could be gotten to the barn where the wound could be bandaged. The hog had never shown any vicious tendencies before and the attack was wholly unexpected.

TRAIN CLIMBERS IMMUNE.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 18.—The arrest of persons who are charged with train riding has become a burden on the taxpayers of DeKalb county and it has not resulted in checking the evil. Ninety per cent of the inmates of the county jail are held on this charge and the prisoners are fed and kept warm at the expense of the taxpayers. Prosecutor J. R. Nyce has had it in mind to call a halt on this useless expense and Thursday he addressed a letter to the chief of the B. & O. police force, announcing that hereafter he will decline to prosecute such cases.

DIFFICULTY WITH FAIR DATES

Van Wert, Ohio, Dec. 18.—Difficulty is being experienced in deciding on the dates for the Van Wert County fair in 1916. The fair is held ordinarily the week following the Ohio State fair, but so far the dates for the state fair have not been fixed on account of a conflict with the dates of the Indiana state fair. Secretary Walborn is now having prepared the list of premiums for the schools exhibit for the fair next year and in a short time they will be mailed out. It was impossible to state the exact date of the fair and hence the premium list was printed with the date as being the week following the Ohio state fair.

WASHBURN LEFT NO WILL.

BERT HAND IN BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 18.—Deputy Sheriff George Albright arrived in Bluffton late Friday afternoon, bringing with him Bert Hand, who is wanted here to answer a criminal assault charge and who was surrendered to the Wells county officers last week after several months fight against extradition through the California courts.

Hand says that he is innocent and that he will make a fight in the local courts.

VOTE FOR SUNDAY THEATERS.

Huntington, Dec. 18.—Of 355 votes cast in the Huntington motion pictures shows only fifty-three were registered against Sunday exhibitions. Thus far an overwhelming number of the "movie" patrons have been in favor of Sabbath shows. T. Guy Perfet, mancager of the shows, was not disconcerted by the stand Prosecutor A. H. Sapp has taken against Sunday film exhibits. Nor did he evince any great concern over the fact that the Ministerial association had called a meeting to discuss the Sunday opening plan.

GOVERNOR HOLDS PRISONER

Van Wert, Ohio, Dec. 18.—Contrary to the report circulated Thursday, Governor Ferry, of Michigan, has not given out extradition papers for the return of Alonzo Elliot to Van Wert county to answer to a grand jury indictment for non-support. He honored the requisition papers but will not issue papers for the extradition of Elliot until after a hearing is held Monday on the habeas corpus proceeding instituted at Adrian, where Elliot is now in jail.

CONFER ON ROAD NUMBERING

Van Wert, O., Dec. 18.—County Highway Superintendent Mollenkopf has been in Lima, conferring with the highway superintendent of Allen county in regard to the new numbering system being worked out for all of the roads of the county. The work on the system for Van Wert county is progressing well and will be completed in a short time. The Allen county surveyor adopted the numbers arranged by Mr. Mollenkopf for all roads on or near the county line on which it was necessary to reach an agreement.

A SCHOOL GIRL'S EXPERIENCE

Hartford City, Ind., Dec. 18.—Miss Alma Stump, a student at the North Ward school, was sent home when it was learned that she had been sitting in her classes for some time in a semi-conscious condition as a result of a fall which she took upon the icy pavement, on her way to school. On being questioned at home, Miss Stump said that she did not remember of having been in school.

INDIANA ELOPERS WED.

Hillsdale, Ind., Dec. 18.—These elopers from Indiana have been married at the court house here this week by Justice C. M. Weaver: Thomas Gaff and Miss Maud E. Bennet, both of Collins, Ind.; Homer D. Birkhold, of Edgerton, Allen county, Ind., and Miss Gladys I. Stanger, of Antwerp, Ohio. Forrest Clouse and Miss Florence B. Hendershot, both of Auburn, Ind., were married at the Presbyterian manse by Rev. J. W. Will.

HUNTINGTON CLAIMS 15,000

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 18.—According to figures from the slips collected by the city mail carriers in the last six weeks, Huntington has 14,111 inhabitants who are served by the postoffice directly. It is estimated that there are enough living in the city that are not served by the carriers to make the population more than 15,000. These figures agree fairly well with the telephone census, and with the figures of E. Q. Drummond.

PREACHER'S NARROW ESCAPE

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 18.—Rev. W. F. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church, was overcome by partial asphyxiation in the garage at his home at Guilford and Washington streets. Gas, which had formed from burned gasoline from the automobile engine, was responsible for the severe illness that attacked him.

ADAIR OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN AT PERU

Peru, Ind., Dec. 18.—Representative John A. M. Adair made his first address at a political meeting since the announcement of his candidacy for the democratic nomination for governor when he spoke last night at a meeting of Miami county democrats in the Moose hall here.

Mr. Adair referred to the necessity of the democratic party organizing early under the new primary law, declaring it the duty of every citizen to take part in politics.

"There are those who say that there is too much corruption in politics for them and for that reason they refuse to become active in the work. These men should assist in the primaries and help to purify politics. The citizen who thus fails to discharge his duty has no right to complain as long as he neglects and refuses to take a part in the organization and primary plans. It is the duty of every citizen to take part in politics whether he favors any one candidate or not.

Upholds Administration.

"There is not a single act of the present democratic administration but that every democrat can defend. The legislation passed has been a success from every standpoint. The opposition would not dare to say to the people if successful they would repeal the income tax law, which lifts a burden of nearly $100,000,000 off the shoulders of the average man and places it on the wealth of the country, where it properly belongs.

"Neither would they dare to propose to repeal the new currency law, which takes the control of money and fixes the interest rates out of the hands of Wall street and places it with the people. Neither would our opposition dare to propose to take away the right to vote direct for United States senators. In fact there is no legislation passed by this administration that the republicans would dare to repeal except the Underwood tariff law, and I honestly believe I can drive any republican off the platform in a discussion of that law.

"It has not closed a single factory in the United States nor thrown a single workingman out of employment. Under this law the country is more prosperous than it ever has been. More goods are being made than ever before and more men are employed and have been during the year 1915 than were ever before employed in the nation's history.

Superior Revenue Producer.

"As a revenue producer it has been far superior to any other tariff law ever enacted. The first nine months under the Underwood bill before the war broke out it produced twenty-seven millions more revenue than the Payne-Aldrich bill produced during the same months the year before. If the European war would close this tariff law would produce more revenue as it now stands than will be required to pay the running expenses of the government.

"As a matter of course, while the war continues, importations will not come in, and therefore it will be absolutely necessary to provide some other form of taxation until the war ends and conditions become normal. Our opposition would not dare to propose a re-enactment of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, upon which they lost every state in the union except Vermont and Utah."

WILL MEET NEXT WEEK.

The apprentice printers' night class at the Harmar school will meet Monday and Wednesday, Dec. 20 and 22, for the final class before the brief holiday vacation. The classes thus far have been largely attended and excellent progress in all branches of instruction given is reported by those in charge of the work.

"GIVING"

That's the best part of Christmas; receiving is second. When you think about giving, you think most of the one who is to receive; you study the gift from that point of view. When you give what somebody wants; something unique, valuable for utility and durability, you've done the thing perfectly. Here are but a few of the many suggestions we have to offer you.

C. C. SCHLATTER & CO.
COLUMBIA AND CLINTON STS.

SLACK HAS BEEN AN ACTIVE FIGURE

By Willis S. Thompson

Indianapolis, Dec. 18—L. Ert Slack has been selected by Senators Kern and Shively to succeed Frank C. Dailey, who has resigned as United States district attorney. Rumor has pointed to Mr. Slack's appointment since the first intimation that Mr. Daily though of retiring to become a member of a leading Indianapolis law firm. This being the case, there has been a chance to hear much comment from all factions in and out of the democratic party.

Nothing but commendation of the senators in making this choice has been heard. And that he should have been selected is the more flattering to L. Ert Slack, because the first intimation he had of Mr. Dailey's intention to quit was when he received the offer of the appointment from the two senators. It came to him without solicitation on his part, with no recommendation or urging from anyone, and when no one save the two senators knew a vacancy was likely to occur. So there are no disappointed candidates.

L. Ert Slack has been a conspicuous figure in the democratic party of Indiana for a number of years. He has been one of the democrats who has always been in the fight, when his services were needed. In the contest which was waged for the democratic nomination for governor in the state convention of 1908, and in which Thomas R. Marshall was the nominee, Slack and Ralston were the two who came at once to the front to congratulate Thomas R. Marshall and assure him privately and in the public prints of all the support possible in his campaign. Slack has been as good a loser as any democrat who ever aspired although he has no long list of failures to his credit.

He has been engaged in the practice of the law for eighteen years, graduating from the Indiana Law School in 1897 and opening his office in his home town of Franklin. Two years ago he came to Indianapolis because of the larger field. He is one of the members of the board of trustees of the Central Hospital for the Insane, having been appointed to that position by Governor Ralston.

He was a member of the legislature in 1901 and when he returned in 1903 he was elected speaker of the house. He was re-elected in the sessions of 1905 and 1907 and in 1908 was a candidate for the nomination for governor. In 1909 he became a candidate for United States senator when Benjamin F. Shively was elected, and although not a candidate he received some votes when Kern was elected in 1911. He has also served as deputy prosecutor and as county attorney for Johnson county. He has a wide acquaintance over the state and is generally popular and his legal ability well recognized.

If what one hears of a victor can be fully relied upon and in this case there appears no doubt of the genuine sentiment, the two senators could not have agreed upon a more satisfactory selection as the successor to Frank C. Dailey.

Isaiah 30:27-33.

27 Behold, the name of the Lord cometh from far, burning with his anger, and the burden thereof is heavy: his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire:

28 And his breath, as an overflowing stream, shall reach to the midst of the neck, to sift the nations with the sieve of vanity: and there shall be a bridle in the jaws of the people, causing them to err.

29 Ye shall have a song, as in the night when a holy solemnity is kept; and gladness of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe to come into the mountains of the Lord, to the mighty One of Israel.

30 And the Lord shall cause his glorious voice to be heard, and shall shew the lighting down of his arm, with the indignation of his anger, and with the flame of a devouring fire, with scattering, and tempest, and hailstones.

31 For through the voice of the Lord shall the Assyrian be beaten down, which smote with a rod.

32 And in every place where the grounded staff shall pass, which the Lord shall lay upon him, it shall be with tabrets and harps: and in battles of shaking will he fight with it.

33 For Tophet is ordained of old; yea, for the king it is prepared; he hath made it deep and large: the pile thereof is fire and much wood; the breath of the Lord, like a stream of brimstone, doth kindle it.

Causes of Industrial Unrest.

Expert conclusions as to the causes of industrial unrest in America, a subject which has been under deep study by political economists during the past two or three years, are significantly summed up in a report just made by W. Jett Lauck, for the special United States commission on Industrial Relations. The fundamental causes of industrial unrest are set forth by Mr. Lauck as follows:

"The constant increase in the level of prices during recent years, resulting in a decline in real wages, very marked in this country and abroad.

"Inequalities in the distribution of the output of industry, due the co-ordination of industry; the increasing use of machinery, and the improvement of facilities for transportation and communication; and, coincident with this, 'the subordination of the industrial worker to machinery and the consequent weakening of his bargaining power.'

"Unrestricted immigration, which has enormously increased the labor supply, checked age advances by lowering the standard of living and intensifying unemployment.

"The uncontrolled issuance of stocks and bonds in all industries, including railroads, resulting in the absorption by interest and dividend requirements of fictitious securities of the increased productivity of the laborer.

The insecurity of employment to workers in mines and mills.

"The growing physical and nervous pressure placed on industrial workers.

"Women and child labor.

"Control of industrial communities by corporations.

"Excessive hours of work.

"Lack of organization for collective bargaining among the workers.

"Lack of aspiration for advancement on the part of many workers, chiefly recent immigrants from southern and eastern Europe."

Enough of them, aren't there? Doubtless, also, Mr. Lauck is correct in most of his conclusions. But of quite as much importance is his further conclusion that the remedy is not to be found wholly in legislation. Laws can at best merely aid in directing economic forces into their proper channels. We shall have a better order of things only as we develop an increasing consideration for the rights of others, even if it shatters traditions on which some have climbed while others have merely endured.

A rather remarkable ordinance just passed by the council at Terre Haute will attempt to regulate the cigar store "smoke houses" in which card games are played and in which are found slot machines, tables, alleys and other devices for sports and games. The ordinance, said to be the first of its kind passed in Indiana proposes to exact a license of $25 a year, and as it will affect from 150 to 175 places it is figured that it will bring Terre Haute a revenue of from $4,000 to $5,000 per year. Mayor Gossom has refused to approve the ordinance, and likewise declines to veto it, so that at the end of ten days it will become a city law there. The ordinance will produce revenue, it is true, but its effect will be vicious because its license feature gives apparent legal sanction to cigar-store gambling that is all too prevalent both in Terre Haute and in practically every other Indiana city. Twenty-five dollars a year license fee is a bargain price to pay for the rich picking that comes from the harvest of the petty gambling privilege in a "smoke house" that caters to this sort of business.

Figures just given out at Indianapolis show that a total of 96,915 licenses for automobiles have been issued in Indiana during the present year, which number is an increase of something over 30,000 above the figures for 1914. It would now be interesting to know whether the Indiana township assessors are as proficient at counting automobiles as is the secretary of state, who issued those rose-tinted numeral tags which have adorned the motor cars in Indiana this year.

The breach between the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and the National American Woman Suffrage Association continues to widen, and these rival organizations promoting the cause of the ballot for woman are making faces and calling each other names. Mr. Ford overlooked a splendid chance to get a bit of practice at restoring peace by tackling this poblem at home before he sailed away to take up the troubles of others.

The Fort Wayne man who, as a practical joke, was given some supposedly valueless mining stock that now turns out to be worth approximately $1,000, doubtless figures that at the rate he can afford to be the butt of still another practical joke of the same sort.

Still, there is always the possibility that nobody would have invited Colonel Roosevelt to that republican national convention in Chicago next year, anyway.

TOO LATE! TOO LATE!

I had hoped," writes Robert Minor, "to take a bath here, but a German 'obus' (shell) got there before me."

COLONIES A COMMERCIAL FIZZLE

(Grand Rapids Press).

No news from Spain except good news. Spain is doing very nicely, thank you, since we relieved her of the burden of overseas dominions. The reports from that ancient kingdom indicate steady material developments and sound financing, despite the strain put upon the treasury by the war. The king busies himself with the welfare of prisoners, grows more popular daily and leaves the heavy affairs of state to ministers more disposed to develop the country than quarrel with each other, a new and tonic temper in the lands of the Dons.

Spain's rejuvenation since 1898 has been remarkable, attracting the attention of economists and students of politics. The anti-imperialists draw much comfort from her rise in capacity and estate. They consider Spain's improved condition final proof of the proposition that colonies cost more than they earn. With us that is a settled proposition as we make no effort to draw revenue from subject peoples, but Spain for centuries believed that colonies were assets. Her balance sheet since 1898 demonstrates, however, that the taxes turned into the Madrid treasury during the latter part of her colonial era were more than offset by the cost of administering and policing the colonies.

From the economic standpoint the colonial system is a fizzle. If the market is thrown open to traders of all nations there is no advantage in controlling it: if closed the development of the market is retarded so that there is little money for anyone in exploiting it. As outposts and military depots colonies serve the ends of empire, but there their utility ceases. If England could separate herself from all colonies and remain the sole great free trader among the nations London still would continue to be the commercial and financial center of the planet.

THE FOOD OF THE GODS

(Toledo Blade).

After long experiments with animals, a Philadelphia scientist makes the announcement:

"We have it in our power to say whether an animal shall do its growing in youth or old age, or whether it shall have several periods of growth. This being true, it is not too much to expect that the ultimate outcome of such work will be the scientific control of the forces of organic growth even in human beings."

The little excitement over eugenics has died away. People had an interesting time with this branch of science so long as it seemed a fairly simple subject. But when they got deeper into it and found it full of tough problems and baffling complexities as a bushel of potatoes, they dropped it and took up subjects less consuming of brain tissue. However, their heart's desire may be realized yet. The race of supermen may possibly be obtained another way than through applied eugenics. With the Philadelphia scientist's food of the gods, children can be fed, short-length adults can be dieted, the slow-growing and non-growing can be victualed, and we will have a race of giants.

M'NAMARA LAWYER WINS LIBEL SUIT

Bests General Otis in a Court Action at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Dec. 18.—Attorney Joseph Scott, of Los Angeles, made famous by the celebrated McNamara case, recently won a libel suit against Gen. Harrison Grey Otis, owner of the Los Angeles Times, the newspaper plant dynamited by Jim McNamara and a confederate. Attorney Scott sued Otis for $100,000 because of articles published in the Times relating to his connection with the divorce case of Bessie O. Hillman against Clarence Dayton Hillman, formerly of Seattle. Scott was awarded $1,000.

Attorney Joseph Scott

"This suit is the culmination of a series of attacks against me by the Times, covering a period of four years because of my connection with the McNamara defense," said the attorney. "Otis had instructed his paper to investigate and criticize my public utterances and my actions in court. I did not mind him fighting me in politics or criticizing my public career, but when he tried to take the roof off my house by attacking my profession I decided it was time to let a jury look into the matter."

Scott was recently awarded $30,000 from the Times for libel and the question of payment is now in the supreme court. Another Scott libel suit against the Otis paper will come to trial in January.

It was reported that the Times would appeal the decree of this last case to the state supreme court.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

What the Sentinel Had to Say About Persons and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Christmas trees are already much in demand.

The new houses in Lakeside now number twenty-six and twice as many more will be erected next season.

Taylor university now has an excellent attendance of students and is rapidly working its way to the front as an educational institution.

Louis Heilbroner, who is considerable of a sporting man, has a game fighting cock which he is anxious to match against any bird in the city for a purse.

M. M. Mattery, the electrician of the Fort Wayne Electric works, has made a nice wager with a friend that he will have a street car equipped with his new storage battery in operation on the streets of Fort Wayne by the end of the year.

Dr. J. S. Irwin, superintendent of the Fort Wayne public schools, says that the crowded condition of the schools call for new buildings and wings next spring. There are 560 odd children crowded into the Bloomingdale building and it will be urged upon the school board that a new school house be built in the neighborhood of Huffman street.

A man who gives the name of John Harder and his home as New York, was arrested last night at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for molesting women on the streets and as he answers the description of the miscreant who was guilty of a mysterious and sensational series of offenses here for several days prior to last night it is believed that he is the wretch who performed in Fort Wayne.

A Timely and Fitting Suggestion

Christmas is only a few days away. Once again the annual eternal question of "what to give" stares you in the face. You desperately think of this, that and the other thing, yet you can decide on nothing that will particularly please the whole family.

You do not want to give the average expected gift. On the contrary, you are only too anxious to do something out of the ordinary—if you could but think of it.

So here's a thought. Give them a fine, big, useful and beautiful Overland Six! Present it yourself Christmas morning. Don't tell a soul. Just drive up to the house on the quiet; call them all out; point to the dandy new Overland and say: "It's yours!" Then watch their loving faces light up with joy and delight. It will, without question, be the best Christmas, by far, of their entire life!

Besides the Overland Six there are two four-cylinder Overlands—the graceful, light and economical Model 75 at $615 and the larger Model 83 at $750. Roadsters are $595 and $725, respectively.

The Willys-Knight, with its quiet sleeve-valve motor, comes in four styles—the Touring Car at $1095; Roadster at $1065; Coupe at $1500 and Limousine at $1750. All cars are priced f. o. b. Toledo.

It will not obligate you in any way to learn more about any or all of them. Call, telephone or write us.

We Can Give You Immediate Delivery on the Car You Select

MORE THAN 200 AIR BATTLES RECENTLY

Air Strategy on Western War Front Has Made Much Change.

London, Dec. 10.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—German air strategy has changed since last May, when, for a period of some months, few German aeroplanes appeared near the allied lines on the western front. But the latest reports from Sir John French show that more than 200 air battles have been fought recently with the British aviators, by whom sixteen German aeroplanes were brought down. These included several new types, besides the familiar Taube.

The new types the Germans have been experimenting with are modeled on the battleplane idea. One of these was a big heavily armed biplane with twin bodies and two or three engines. But it did not seem to be entirely successful, as it was rather slow and unwieldy. Next to appear were two very similar biplanes of the ordinary tractor type with single, but very powerful engines. The two used to chase up and down the German lines at a terrific speed and with an unusual amount of noise, apparently to frighten away British airmen. Apparently they impressed the Germans as useful, as more of the same type made their appearance. Machine guns fore and aft, the range of the first limited by the propeller and the after gun having a clear field in an upward direction, gave them a certain formidableness as scouts. Several of these were brought down by both British and French, but their numbers have nevertheless continued to increase of late. They keep largely to their own lines which seems to be the German plan of air strategy.

The German plan is obviously to destroy the greatest number of enemy aeroplanes, with a minimum loss to themselves. They do this by enticing the foe over their own lines. It is an immense advantage to fight an adversary over one's own lines, as the airman not only has the support of high angle guns below but can land within his own territory in case of injury to himself or his machine.

A WORTH WHILE EVENT IN MUSICAL CIRCLES

It "means business" when the "Big Store" takes hold of anything. It means "a go" every time. It has the capital, the space, the skilled assistants and every other requisite for success.

When, therefore, the announcement was made that it had taken the agency of the "Edison Diamond Disc" and the Aeolian Co.'s "Vocalion"—the two leaders in tone and general excellence of all Disc Machines—the Fort Wayne public took immediate "notice."

Miss F. Eugenia Michaels, a graduate in music, and the organist at the First Baptist church in this city, has been placed at the head of the New Department, and she extends a cordial invitation to all citizens of Fort Wayne and adjoining cities and towns to visit the department on the first floor of the Foster Furniture Company, no matter whether they do or do not want a machine. Bring in your friends who may be visiting you and treat them to the privilege of hearing the "Edison Diamond Disc." You will always receive a cordial welcome.

Get the machine which reproduces the human voice so accurately that you find great difficulty in distinguishing between the machine and the actual voice of the singer, and if you decide to buy an Edison, but it at Foster's, where they have the latest improved and the latest styles of cases. Terms of deferred payments given, if required. All the latest records in stock.

Take special note of this statement: The Edison plays all the records of the Columbia, Victrola and other lateral disc machines, by the use of an extra needle arm, and plays them with all the Edison clearness of expression, so if you have a stock of records of other machines they are equally good, yes better, for playing upon the Edison.

Here is the Polymuriel--Universal Gown for Women That Won Prize

New York, Dec. 18.—Hree it is—the Polymuriel—the gown that won the $150 prize in the national contest for the best universal dress for women!

The Polymuriel, if you don't already know, is a dress that a woman can wear in the mornings, for ordinary wear or for business and then, presto, with but a few slight changes can be transformed, almost instantly, into a gown suitable for social and formal affairs.

Jessie Rosefield

The Polymuriel is an American gown for American women!

The award was made in June but since then a special committee of famous designers has had to meet to make several minor changes in costume before it was given final official approval as the new universal dress for American women.

Now for the first time, the Daily Sentinel is able to make public a picture and description of the now famous dress. Here is the first authentic description of it:

The under part is made in two pieces which opens down the front to waistline for putting on. The smocking which is shown in the accompanying illustration, allows for fullness over the bust. The yoke, panel, belt and tunic are made in one piece and detachable for the purpose of reversing.

The plain side sided by attractive collar and cuffs is suitable for business or ordinary wear. The underside can be braided in soutache of gold or some contrasting color and when reversed makes a neat and dressy custome for social and formal affairs.

It can be made in almost any material at small cost but black crepe meteor is suggested for general use. The length of the dress is left to the judgment of the wearer.

Believing a universal dress just as necessary for women as the tuck suit is for men, Miss Rosefield and some other New York clubwomen decided last spring to offer $150 as a national prize for the best design for a Polymuriel.

Thousands of designs were submitted and after weeks spent in going over them the judges finally awarded the prize to Miss Jessie M. Rosefield, a 20-year-old New York girl.

The Polymuriel winner is a modest, pretty young woman who studies in an art class in the morning and in the afternoon goes over the study for the designing of original artistic fashions.

She is a suffragists and believes in free votes for women as well as free skirts. She is an American through and through and staunchly believes "made in America" gowns are the equal if not better than Paris fashions.

"One important point about my Polymuriel is that it does not call for corsets," declares Miss Rosefield. "Even a stout woman can wear it gracefully without corsets."

TRACTION COMPANY ISSUES STATEMENT

A statement was issued Saturday by the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company setting forth what the traction company has done for Fort Wayne. The statement shows that the company has paid out and expended for street paving alone in the city of Fort Wayne the sum of $333,583.21 and paid in taxes in 1915 the sum of $65,120.41, of which $20,590 was paid to the treasurer of Allen county. The company, from January 1, 1904, to October 1, 1915, expended for additions and betterments to its property in Fort Wayne alone the sum of $3,045,290.84, and January 1, 1910, to October 1, 1915, for the same purpose, the sum of $1,950,425.15. The company pays out to its employes in Fort Wayne each year for the operation of its properties an average of $340,000.

In closing the statement says: "Street car transportation and electric light and power are essential factors in the development of every large city. No modern city can increase in population or business without both. The destruction of the traction company's property or rights would be an unspeakable calamity to our city. The traction company has endeavored to the best of its ability to give to the people of Fort Wayne good street car and electric service, it has obeyed the law in all things and has not given cause for offense to anyone. It therefore appeals to and confidently relies upon the generous protection and support of the good people of Fort Wayne."

Auto Bus Company Formed.

At a meeting of the boosters for the auto bus company Friday evening in the headquarters of the Federation of Labor a temporary organization was effected with the following officers: Clayton H. Johnson, president, Christ Hahn, vice president; C. N. Felts, secretary, and J. B. LaTourette, treasurer. The company will be capitalized at $50,000 and will be organized permanently at the first meeting of the stockholders.

An effort will be made to have ten busses in operation about the first of the year and thirty within sixty days. It is probable that Ford cars will be purchased and later a few larger cars will be put in service during the rush hours.

Arrangements were made for a systematic canvass for stock subscriptions, the city being divided into two sections, with Calhoun street as the dividing line. B. Stuller was named captain of the east side and J. E. Hooper captain of the west side. The winners are to be given a banquet at the expense of the losing side at the close of subscriptions.

INCREASE IN DEFECTIVES.

Committee Named to Study Problem Has First Meeting.

Indianapolis, Dec. 18.—The committee appointed by Governor Ralston, some time ago to study the problem of mental defectiveness in Indiana held its first meeting here yesterday. Figures were presented showing that in the decade ending Oct. 1, 1914, there was an increase of 1,400 in the number of defectives in state institutions. This, it was said, was a more marked increase than was that of inmates in penal and benevolent institutions. The committee decided to meet January 6, to plan a survey or census of mental defectives in the state.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes a full pint —a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. Also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good —children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex,"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

STILWELL SAYS HE NEVER GOT LOOK-IN

Republicans Give Chilly Greeting to Returning Progressive.

By Willis S. Thompson.

Indianapolis, Dec. 17.—"Who wished Horace C. Stilwell on the republican party," was what Charlie Sefrit asked through his newspaper, the Washington Herald, the other day. When some people said this was not a nice way to talk about progressives who showed no signs of repentance, Sefrit described his previous utterance as an "innocent remark."

The next picture on the program, Indiana progressives, is "what happened to Horace C. Stilwell when he tried to get some recognition for the progressives at the hands of the republican national committee. "This is an exceedingly interesting picture and it is described vividly by Horace C. Stilwell himself. The story is published from Washington by the Indianapolis Star, the recognized progressive newspaper of Indiana. Here is the story which could not be made more interesting to the people of Indiana:

"Washington, Dec. 14.—Horace C. Stilwell, of Indiana, who came here to get some progressive reform ideas adopted by the republican national committee, was giving a fine imitation tonight of a man who has been steam-rollered.

"'The bosses are in the saddle,' said he, 'and it is useless for a well-meaning progressive reformer to buck up against the little tight corporation that is doing business at the G. O. P. stand.'

"When asked to whom he referred by the term 'bosses,' he said he meant Barnes, Crane, Smott, Hemenway and Penrose.

"'The five men are running the republican party machinery,' he said, 'and I find it is perfectly useless to try to put any reforms across. This little bunch is not particularly fond of reforms.'

"Stillwell came here with Oswald Ryan to try to get the national committee to change the basis of representation at the national convention to votes cast instead of arbitrarily according to states and districts. He soon found he had run up against a stone wall. Then, in a letter to National Committeeman Goodrich, he proposed that the national committee voluntarily abdicates its right to select the temporary roll of the convention and permit that to be done by the committee on credentials.

"'Barnes, Crane, Smoot, Hemenway and Penrose looked over my proposition,' said he, 'and it was "good night." I came here as the self-appointed voice of 4,500,000 republicans who were in rebellion in 1912. But I didn't get a look-in.'"

NOW WHO'S THE JOKE ON?

I. O. Holmes, who was presented as a joke with mining stock presumed to be worthless by Harmon Sheets several years ago, has now discovered the stock to be worth approximately $900. Mr. Holman has gone to Mishawaka to investigate his good luck.

Paper Suits Are a Boon to Aviators

Ever see a "poor, down and outer" who had no other place to rest his head in the early days of fall but the park bench, wrap himself in newspapers, and wonder why? The answer is simple. Just to keep warm. Paper being a non-conductor, prevents the cold from entering and prevents the heat from escaping. Because of its non-conductiveness, the idea as obtained for a suit of paper to be worn under the outer garments of aviators who find it almost impossible in making flights to any altitude to keep warm. The photograph shows an aviator in the new paper suit.

START HONEYMOON IN JAIL.

Young Couple Charged With Being Expert Shoplifters.

Indianapolis, Dec. 18.—A young married couple began their honeymoon in the city prison last night and an aunt of the bride observed her birthday anniversary behind the bars following the arrest of four persons, said by the police to be expert shoplifters. Police announced that loot valued at $1,000 has been recovered and that the prisoners confessed that they have operated in Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. The four gave their names as Frank Lee, 25, and his 23-year-old wife, whom he married yesterday; Minnie Foley, who was 37 years old yesterday and who is an aunt of Mrs. Lee, and Paul Hartle, 25. Their homes are in Dayton, O., they said.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Lightness of world shipments other than from America tended to harden prices today in the wheat market here. Bullish sentiment was increased also by reports of rain interfering with the Argentine harvest. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛@¼c off to ¼c advance with December at $1.16⅝, and May at $1.17¾ to $1.18, were followed by a moderate general upturn.

Clear cold weather eased corn. After opening ½c lower to a gain of a shade, prices went slightly above yesterday's finish, but again turned down grade.

Selling on the part of leading concerns weakened oats. Demand was only of a scattered sort.

Provisions rose on account of liberal shipments for the week. Little or no attention was to be given the fact that hog receipts here for the same period were the largest on record.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Dec. 18.—Trading in stocks today was of a minor and superficial character, dealings being light and price changes for the most part circumscribed. The short interests was again disposed to cover outstanding contracts and to that extent a firm undertone was maintained. The active features aside from U. S. Steel, which was a trifle irregular, included American Smelting, Republic Steel, Baldwin Locomotive and Studebaker.

Overnight developments were helpful to the moderate improvement recorded by today's early market, initial quotations showing gains in most quarters of the stock list. Trading was light, however, U. S. Steel being the only issue to show more than ordinary animation. Representative issues were neglected, while war shares and kindred descriptions were one to two points higher. Prices shaded on secondary offerings.

High pressure covers the country to the westward of the Rockies, and another high overlies the Gulf states. The pressure is low over the Canadian northwest, and a disturbance of considerable intensity occupies the Atlantic coast states to the northward of the Carolinas, with the low center near Washington. In connection with this distribution of pressure precipitation has occurred quite generally in the sections to the eastward of the Mississippi, in the upper Missouri valley and locally in the northern Rocky mountain region. The temperatures are generally below the seasonal average, except in the extreme portion of the lake region and thence east and southward along the Atlantic coa

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Lightness of world shipments other than from America tended to harden prices today in the wheat market here. Bullish sentiment was increased also by reports of rain interfering with the Argentine harvest. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛@¼c off to ¼c advance with December at $1.16⅝, and May at $1.17¾ to $1.18, were followed by a moderate general upturn.

Clear cold weather eased corn. After opening ½c lower to a gain of a shade, prices went slightly above yesterday's finish, but again turned down grade.

Selling on the part of leading concerns weakened oats. Demand was only of a scattered sort.

Provisions rose on account of liberal shipments for the week. Little or no attention was to be given the fact that hog receipts here for the same period were the largest on record.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Dec. 18.—Trading in stocks today was of a minor and superficial character, dealings being light and price changes for the most part circumscribed. The short interests was again disposed to cover outstanding contracts and to that extent a firm undertone was maintained. The active features aside from U. S. Steel, which was a trifle irregular, included American Smelting, Republic Steel, Baldwin Locomotive and Studebaker.

Overnight developments were helpful to the moderate improvement recorded by today's early market, initial quotations showing gains in most quarters of the stock list. Trading was light, however, U. S. Steel being the only issue to show more than ordinary animation. Representative issues were neglected, while war shares and kindred descriptions were one to two points higher. Prices shaded on secondary offerings.

High pressure covers the country to the westward of the Rockies, and another high overlies the Gulf states. The pressure is low over the Canadian northwest, and a disturbance of considerable intensity occupies the Atlantic coast states to the northward of the Carolinas, with the low center near Washington. In connection with this distribution of pressure precipitation has occurred quite generally in the sections to the eastward of the Mississippi, in the upper Missouri valley and locally in the northern Rocky mountain region. The temperatures are generally below the seasonal average, except in the extreme portion of the lake region and the east and southward along the Atlantic coa

Most Awful Tragedy World Has Ever Know is Fate of Serbia's 10,000 Starving Orphans

Letters from Relief Workers Paint Horror Picture of Misery of Nation of Homeless Babes—Soldiers Fighting Desperately in Trenches Snatch Moment to Share Crust With Suffering Waifs That Crawl to Them for Aid.

By Harry Payne Burton.

New York, Dec. 18.—Serbia is going to leave an almost humanless, lifeless country to the conquerors!

Except for the cries of the 10,000 starving babies wandering through the woods and devastated villages and towns, Serbia will be deserted, desolate, voiceless.

Yesterday I tried to visualize for Americans just how this state has been brought about, and just what it means. I showed that 200,000 war casualties and the wiping out by typhus of 600,000 mothers and fathers had left a nation of orphans, starving, living like scavenger dogs.

I have just heard from the trembling lips of Miss Helen Losanvitch, the beautiful daughter of a former Serbian minister to London, terrible stories of the utter wretchedness of these lost "Babes in the Woods."

For gripping, pathetic, tragedy, history has never heard the equal of these tales. Their pathos is staggering. Their appeal must reach down to the very depths of the hearts of the most cynical and skeptical.

"You cannot possibly conceive what frightful unhappiness the war has brought to Serbia," began Miss Losanvitch.

"They have killed off the parents and have left the children to be starved to death. These 10,000 orphans—Mr. Wordsworth of the Rockefeller foundation says they number 20,000—are the flotsam and jetsam of a wrecked nation. They are groping in the woods and hills, living on roots!

"During the summer the army cared for many of the orphaned children, for the soldiers adopted the waifs they met, shared their food and blankets with them, and cared for the tiny tots with the utmost tenderness.

"But when they were called to the battle front they had to leave their charges behind them, to the mercy of chance. Sometimes they sheltered and fed them in the trenches. Here is a letter I have received from my mother. My father, you know, is head of the Serbian war relief fund. My mother says:

"'Now the cold is coming and at night the children generally gather near a village, and creep against a house wall to sleep. The older ones take care of the younger.

"'I went to St. Roman's where the St. Helen's home is, the other day and the lady in charge told me a heartrending story. A poor soldier who was wounded, came home for ten days' leave. When he reached home he found his wife dead of typhus and his two children alone, starving. He was heartbroken.

"'After his leave was up, and he had to return to the front, he did not know what to do with the kiddies. So he took them to this home, and, crying bitterly, pictured what would happen to them unless they were received there.

"'The children were sobbing and the lady cried, too. It seemed to her so tragic that the soldier must leave them in the hands of strangers to save them from worse things that must befall were the enemy not to be kept out of the country.'

"So much for my mother's letter.

"The municipalities," Miss Losanvitch explained, "have tried to farm out these 10,000 orphans among the peasants, by twos and threes. But as these peasants can scarcely maintain their own children, they generally keep them a few days, and then take them out into the streets and leave them there, where they are found by the police, and brought back to the municipality, which tries again to place them.

"The trouble is not only how to keep these children alive, but how to keep them good. With the lack of oversight, and the disorder of the community, we are afraid many of them will grow up beggars and criminals.

"Surely you cannot turn a deaf ear to the sobs of these fatherless, motherless and homeless little wanderers.

"If these children were running wild in this country a million dollars would be raised in a few hours. Don't forget that Serbian children are very much like yours.

"I am sure that Americans will not let these innocent victims of the war perish by the roadside in thousands like so many noisome insects."

There's 10,000 of these starving Serbian "Babes in the Woods!" Homeless, hungry and sick little Serbian waifs, like the two pictured above, are even forced by their misery to crawl in the very fighting trenches in hopes of sharing some soldier's crust of bread.

TO PROSECUTE DOG TAX DELINQUENTS

Prosecutor's Office Will Begin Suits Soon to Collect Dues.

If you are delinquent in what you owe to the government because you harbor Fido or Towser it will behoove you to pay up. There are about two hundred dog tax delinquencies in Wayne township and Township Trustee Henry P. Scherer has turned this lot over to Prosecuting Attorney Hilgemann for collection by suit. A dog tax doesn't cost much unless it is collected by the prosecutor by court procedure and then it mounts up. Prosecutor Hilgemann is preparing to clean up these delinquencies before the end of the term, which closes December 31. Prompt action with the cash at the trustee's office will probably suffice to get your name removed from the list filed for prosecution.

NEWS OF THE COURTS.

Adam Hans Sues Pennsylvania Road for $10,000 Damages.

Adam Hans has begun action in the circuit court against the Pennsylvania railroad company, demanding $10,000 damages for personal injuries received May 14, last, when his automobile was struck by a train on the defendant's road near Maples. The complaint alleges that the view of the track is obstructed from the highway as it approaches the crossing, that though himself and companions in the automobile took special care to observe whether a train was approaching they could see and hear none and drove on the track, where the automobile was struck by a train. Roy Richey, who was in the car, was killed and Hans received injuries which he says are permanent. It is alleged that no warning was given of the approach of the train. The plaintiff is proprietor of the Kreibaum wall paper store, 826 Barr street, and early in the morning of May 14 he, with Richey and Frank Hutchinson had started in the automobile for Monroeville to do some work. Hutchinson was little hurt. Breen & Morris are attorneys for the plaintiff.

COMMISSIONER BUTT HONORED.

Fellow Officials in Court House Give Him a Surprise.

A surprise party was the method adopted to pay a tribute of esteem to James D. Butt, president of the board of county commissioners, who retires from that body January 1, and his associates in officialdom and a large number of his neighbors gathered Friday evening at his Lake township home, about supper time, and extended good wishes for his future. The affair was planned by Mrs. Butt and Hon. E. G. Hoffman, county attorney. Mr. Butt was detained in the city until evening by his son, who came to town for that purpose, and when he arrived home he found his domicile in full possession of the friendly invaders. Mr. Butt was presented with a handsome gold watch of costly design, which was presented in a felicitious little speech by Mr. Hoffman. Commissioner Butt made a suitable response. Among the county officials present were Commissioners William C. Schwier and Albert J. Black, Hon. Edward G. Hoffman, County Auditor Will Johnson, O. B. Wiley, bridge superintendent; William G. Tonkel, road superintendent; Jay Brown, deputy auditor; George Jaap, contractor; Henry Getz, deputy road superintendent; Henry A. Wetzel, commissioner-elect; John B. Wyss and F. William Franke-ex-commisisoner.

for the wedding. Arrangements for guarding the house during the ceremony included a diversion of all traffic from the street and a heavy guard of policemen and secret service agents about the premises.

Although details of the wedding trip had not been disclosed it became known that the couple will leave for the south shortly after the ceremony.

Third President to Wed

Woodrow Wilson is the third president to be married during his term of office. President Tyler was the first and President Cleveland was the other. Mr. Tyler, like Mr. Wilson, was left a widower during his term. Two years later, in 1844 in New York city he was married to Miss Julia Gardiner, who then presided at the white house during the last year of her husband's term of office.

Grover Cleveland's marriage to Miss Frances Folsom took place in the blue room of the executive mansion. It was comparatively a private affair for the invited guests included only the cabinet members, their wives and a few friends and relatives of the couple.

President Wilson's wedding is the third in his family since he took office. The first white house wedding of his term was that of his second daughter, Jessie Woodrow Wilson, to Francis Bowes Sayre and the other was that of his youngest daughter, Eleanor, to Secretary McAdoo. The president now has two grandchildren, the little son of the Sayres and the baby daughter of the McAdoos.

Are Both Virginians.

The president and his bride both are Virginians by birth. He was born at Staunton, 59 years ago this month and she was born at Wytheville, the daughter of Judge and Mrs. William H. Bolling and was one child in a large family. Two sisters, Mrs. Alexander H. Galt and Miss Bertha Bolling, and three brothers, John Randolph, Richard Wilmer and Julian B. Bolling live in Washington. Rolfe E. Bolling, another, is manager of the Commercial bank at Panama, and another, Dr. William E. Bolling, lives at Louisville, Ky. A third sister, Mrs. M. H. Maury, lives in Anniston, Alabama. The bride's family has been prominent in the history of Virginia and she herself is a descendant of Pocohontas the Indian chief's daughter who married John Rolfe.

Since 1896 Mrs. Galt has lived in Washington, belonging to none of the distinct social sets, but active in charity and philanthropy in her own ways. From her first husband she inherited control of a prosperous mercantile business of which she has been accredited with now being the active head and many tributes are paid to her ability. But activity in business, her friends say, never has diminished her interest in a woman's world. She loves flowers, books and out door recreations.

When Courtship Began

After the president's courtship began she took up golf and on many Saturday afternoons they were seen on the links at some one of the country clubs about the capital, or at other times taking long motor drives over the Virginia hills or along the shore roads in lower Maryland. Often they took picnic luncheon from the white house on their journeys and ate it by the roadside.

In the white house circle the bride quickly found her place. She plays the piano, sings and loves to read poetry and when in the intimacy of the family, the president often has read aloud his favorite poems, as is his custom, she is said to have been one of his most interested hearers.

Miss Margaret Wilson, the president's eldest daughter, and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, his cousin, are said to have drawn her into the white house circle in the early autumn of 1914. From that time, she was a frequent guest at the executive mansion and last summer spent a month as the guest of Margaret Wilson at the summer white house at Cornish, N. H. The engagement was announced on October 6, not long after the presidential party returned to Washington for the winter.

Mrs. Galt's Home

Both the president and his bride agreed not to have their wedding in the white house, but in her home near Dupont circle, which sometimes is called the social hub of the capital. She lives there in a tastefully arranged house, somewhat small by comparison with the mansions which surround it. It is not large enough for entertaining on an extended scale and for that reason a large company was not invited to the wedding. It was the only member of the cabinet included in the party. The rest were all relatives.

The repeatedly expressed wish of the couple for a quiet wedding, unattended by any great amount of publicity, is responsible for the general lack of common knowledge of so many of the details which attend such a ceremony. No public announcements have been made of the gifts received and likewise there has been no announcement of the gowns and decorations. New York dressmakers have been calling frequently during the last few weeks at the white house and at the bride's home, and she has made one or two shopping trips out of the city to complete her trousseau.

at Athens told Premier Skouloudis the Germans would be compelled to attack the British and French forces. The landing of Italian forces in Albania is likely to prove an important factor, as the Italians may be able to attack themselves to the remainder of the Serbian army for concerted action.

If all current reports were true, the Germans would be preparing offensive movements in all directions—in Belgium and France, in Greece against Egypt, on the Riga-Dvinsk front and in Galicia. British military critics believe, however, that the central powers have not enough available reserves for an offensive movement on more than one front. In fact it is frequently argued in England that the central powers are approaching the last stratum of reserves in men and must make a determined effort to obtain a victory over one of their enemies.

The British public was surprised today by the appearance of the royal proclamation posted in public places calling out four classes of Derby recruits. It is inferred from this move that the Derby campaign was successful. No important fighting was reported over night from any field.

most rigorous legal conception were applied to the judgment of the case it does not in any way sufficiently warrant attaching blame to the commanding officer of the war vessel or to the imperial and royal government.

"The government of the United States has also failed to designate the persons upon whose testimony it relies and to whom it apparently believes it may attribute a higher degree of credibility than the commander of the imperial and royal fleet. The note also fails to give any information whatsoever as to the number, names and more precise fate of the American citizens who were on board of the said steamer at the critical moment.

Proposes Exchange of iVews.

"However, in view of the fact that the Washington cabinet has now made a positive statement to the effect that citizens of the United States of America came to grief in the incident in question, the imperial and royal government is in principle ready to enter into an exchange of views in the affair with the government of the United States.

It might, however, in the first place, raise the question why that government failed to give juridical reason for the demand set forth in its note with reference to the specific circumstances upon which it itself lays stress and why, in lieu thereof, it referred to an exchange of correspondence, which it has conducted with another government in other cases.

The imperial and royal government is less able to follow the Washington cabinet on this unusual position, since it, by no means, possesses authentic knowledge of all of the pertinent correspondence of the government of the United States, nor is it of the opinion that such knowledge might be sufficient for it in the present case, which insofar as it is informed, is in essential points of another nature than the case or cases to which the government of the United tSates seems to allude. The imperial and royal government may therefore leave it to the Washington cabinet to formulate the particular points of law against which the commanding officer of the submarine is alleged to have offended on the occasion of the sinking of the Ancona.

The government of the United States has also seen fit to refer to the attitude to which the Berlin cabinet assumed in the above mentioned correspondence. The imperial and royal government finds in the much esteemed note no indication whatever of the intent with which this reference was made. Should, however, the government of the United States thereby have intended to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed for the imperial and royal government with respect to the judicial consideration of teh affair in question this government must in order to preclude possible misunderstandings declare that as a matter of course it reserves to itself full freedom of maintaining its own legal views in the discussion of the case of the Ancona In having the honor to have recourse to the kindness of his excellency the ambassador of the United States of America with the most respectful request to be good enough to communicate the foregoing to the American government and on this occasion to state that the imperial and royal government in no less degree than the American government and under all circumstances most sincerely deplores the fate of the innocent victims of the incident in question the undersigned at the same time avails himself of this opportunity to renew the expression of his most distinguished consideration to his excellency the ambassador.

"BURIAN,
"PENFIELD." e

NEW NOTE MORE VIGOROUS.

Washington, Dec. 18.—President Wilson began work today on the second note to Austria on the sinking of the Ancona.

Friendly relations between Austria and the United States, it was stated authoritatively, are nearing the breaking point and their continuance will depend entirely upon the reply Austria will be asked to make immediately to the note being framed today.

The note, more vigorous than the first, will request prompt acquiescence in the original demands of the United States, all of which, Secretary Lansing announcede, Austria failed to meet.

The dispatch of a second note was determined upon late yesterday after President Wilson and his cabinet had considered the official text of the Austrian reply to the first American communication. It was rejected as wholly unacceptable to the American government.

The new note will be dispatched, with President Wilson's approval, to Ambassador Penfield for presentation to the Vienna foreign office as "quickly as possible."

It was said that while the United States would not go into a detailed discussion, it might give some of the facts which Austria requested.

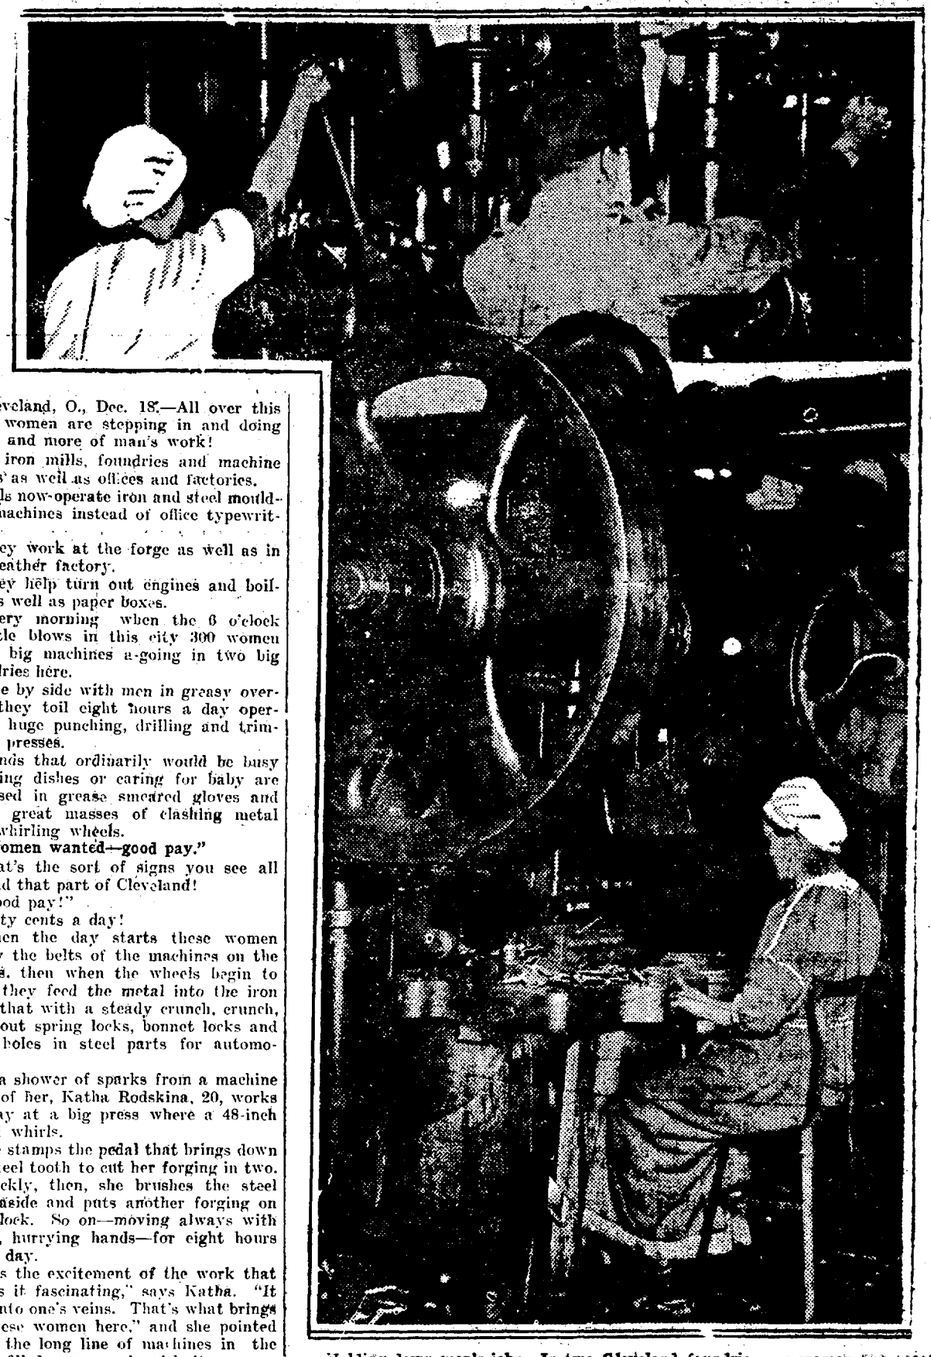
WOMEN DOING MEN'S WORK AMID CLANG OF STEEL AND HISS OF SPARKS IN IRON FOUNDRIES.



Cleveland, O., Dec. 18.—All over this land women are stepping in and doing more and more of man's work!

In iron mills, foundries and machine shops as well as offices and factories.

They work at the forge as well as in the feather factory.

They help turn out engines and boilers as well as paper boxes.

Every morning when the 6 o'clock whistle blows in this city 300 women start big machines a-going in two big foundries here.

Side by side with men in greasy overalls they toil eight hours a day operating huge punching, drilling and trimming presses.

Hands that ordinarily would be busy washing dishes or caring for baby are enclosed in grease smeared gloves and guide great masses of clashing metal and whirling wheels.

"Women wanted—good pay."

That's the sort of signs you see all around that part of Cleveland!

"Good pay!"

Sixty cents a day!

When the day starts these women throw the belts of the machines on the shafts, then when the wheels begin to turn they feed the metal into the iron jaws that with a steady crunch, crunch, turn out spring locks, bonnet locks and drill holes in steel parts for automobiles.

In a shower of sparks from a machine back of her, Katha Rodskina, 20, works all day at a big press where a 48-inch wheel whirls.

She stamps the pedal that brings down the steel tooth to cut her forging in two.

Quickly, then, she brushes the steel dust aside and puts another forging on the block. So on—moving always with quick, hurrying hands—for eight hours every day.

"It's the excitement of the work that makes it fascinating," says Katha. "It gets into one's veins. That's what brings all these women here," and she pointed down the long line of machines in the spark-filled room, each with its woman attendant.

Katha works by the piece and earns from $1.20 to $3 a day. The pay of all the women is between 60 cents and $3.

MUNITIONETTES NOW ASKING EQUAL WAGE

Women at $1.50 a Week in London Factories Are Making Protset.

BY SYLVIA PANKHURST,
As told in interview by
Mary Boyle O'Reilly.

(Miss Pankhurst, the daughter of the famous British suffragette, has given up feminine frightfulness for adventures into adversity and has become a recognized leader among the groping workers of East London).

London, Dec. 18.—Bread is 16 cents a loaf in London and the price is rising. Three million wage earners are under arms leaving—probably—a million wives to feed alone in war time.

Comment on these facts to the fair weather philanthropist and the answer is invariably: "But consider what women now earn in munition factories."

Well, let us "consider" the wage scale of munitionettes.

Making munitions is admittedly dangerous work. Women entering many of the shops must change their boots for special slippers, assume overalls, discard their hairpins and wear fireproof caps. A nail, a bit of wire, might cause an explosion. People should be paid for taking such chances.

Sir William Bardmore, the big munition master of Glasgow, declares the work done by women workers in his factories, whether by night or day, is "astounding," being just as good and just as speedy as that of men. Night work by women is no longer prohibited. While England is under military law (and this threatens to be a long, long war) all labor laws are abrogated. Now the minister of munitions (Mr Lloyd George) when taking over the munitions of war factories pledged the government to establish an equal wage scale for men and women and to see that there would be no sweated labor.

SYLVIA PANKHURST

"We shall not," said the munitions minister, "utilize the services of women merely to get cheap labor."

That was months ago. Today British battles are being fought with bullets and shells made by sweated workers.

East London munitionettes who have earned $6.35 a week have been warned that they are making far too much and must accept lower paid processes to bring their wages down. Croydon girls can earn only $2.-$3.12 a week, Wolverhampton women from $1.50 to $3 for 55 hours' work, Walsall munitionettes $3.75 to $4 for a 73 1-2 hour week. And under the munition act wage scales in the thousand and more "controlled factories" cannot be altered unless by consent of the munition minister.

Moreover, a munition maker who attempts to leave one arms factory to seek employment in another can be taken into court by an employer and prosecuted under the munitions act.

Many deputations from trades unions and women's organizations have waited upon the munitions minister to submit this scale of weekly wages paid men and women munitions makers doing the same work.

Sheffield:—Men, $5.62 week; women $2 to $3 a week.

Those figures point the way to the war that is behind war. The question of equal pay for men and women is a very serious one for both men and women. If women do men's work at a lower wage, and prove that they are able and willing to do it equally well, men will either have to accept the lower wage or join the army of unemployed. And if wages are to be depressed it will prove disastrous for men and women and for their children.

DEATH TOLL OF OLD BRIDGE IN THE PAST

The death toll of the bridge in the past few years has been as follows:

1908—Two boys and two foreigners killed.

1909—Man knocked into river—died.

1910—No fatalities.

1911—Three were killed.

1912—Unidentified man killed.

1914—W. L. Newport and son killed.

In addition three were killed in the Swinney park wreck and five have drowned in the river below the bridge.

Engineering feats vary in their importance with their geographical locations. Down in Kentucky, High Bridge caused more or less comment in the fastnesses where the good citizens gathered to dodge the arm of the law and discuss weighty matters. Several people stopped on their way to church in Colorado to watch the building of the Moffat road. The Alaska-Yukon railroad furnished a topic for conversation in the dug-in season around Dawson town for several winters. The laying of the new board sidewalks at Saugetauk, Mich., was the occasion for a five-column spread across the front of that community's contribution to the world's literature, the Weekly Enterprise.

It all depends on where it happens. The announcement that a railroad would start from the courthouse and run to an elevation of eight thousand feet would startle even the most imaginative of Fort Wayne's citizens. But a regular straight-away 150 foot railway bridge wouldn't be worth passing notice in Leadville.

But right here in Fort Wayne there is an engineering job that few people know is in the making, but which has been under way for fully three months. That is the placing across the St. Mary's river of a new bridge by the Pennsylvania company.

In the past dozen years a score of men, women and children have walked to their deaths on the Pennsylvania bridge that spans the St. Mary's. Tragedy has flapped its ribbed wings over the double track span several times in each twelvemonth, and death has ridden the pilot of many an engine over the river. Always—or nearly always—death played safe for the railroad, for the victims were walking where they had no business to be. There is no footpath on the bridge, and the railroad has time and again issued orders in thunderous tones, forbidding trespassing on the right of way. But still there are those who dare. Each day sees scores and some times hundreds risk their lives in crossing the bridge.

The new structure is much the same as the old one, in two spans, one of seventy-two and the other of seventy-five feet. The old pier has been rebuilt and enlarged, and will be used for the new bridge.

Built Along Side.

Supported on wooden piling driven into the river and on ties piled into supporting towers, the new bridge is being built just north of the old one, and there isn't even the slightest interruption of traffic It will be completely finished, even to the placing of the ties and the laying of rails before it will be ready to place in position. It is built on tracks, and when the time comes, it will be slid over into position. The contractors are long experienced in this work, and can do it in practically no time.

No Traffic Interruption.

Traffic will not be interrupted when this is done. For it will not require three minutes from the time the rails of the old one are cut until the new one will be in service. The old structure will slide south out of the way and on some specially constructed supports and at the same time the new one will slide into position.

The work will be planned so that there will be no passenger trains due at the time, and there will be absolutely no delay, and not a train will be held up a single minute.

No Foot Bridge.

Soulless and heartless corporation, the Pennsylvania company will place no foot bridge across the span. The officials put their thumbs in their armholes and blandly remark that they have fought trespassing so long that they don't intend to turn about and encourage it. But as there is no bridge between Taylor street and Main, a distance of nearly a mile, it is likely that the bridge will be used as the old one was. It will require a squad of armed watchmen to keep people off it, for there has been plenty of terrible examples and none has seemed to have an effect.

The bridge is being put in by the Seaboard Construction company of Philadelphia, and the steel work was turned out in the shops and foundry of the Fort Pitt bridge works at Pittsburg, Pa. It is of steel, and is painted red as most of the other new Pennsy bridges are.

According to the office of Division Engineer Guy Scott, which is doing the company's part of the work and is overseeing the job, the bridge cannot be ready to go into service before February.

In the accompanying pictures made this week several phases of the work are shown. In the upper row, the outer photographs, show the men at work high on the temporary towers. They climb about on these things as comfortably as most men walk the streets. In one of the snaps a man is seen sauntering down a six inch beam. In the center is a general view of the completed portion, made from the river bank a hundred feet north of the right of way. In the lower left hand corner a big crane, mounted on a car, is shown with a stack of steel girders swinging about over one of the temporary ways, while the workmen are waiting for it to deposit its load. The lower right hand picture is a general view from the tracks, showing the old bridge with the new one to the right of it.

IN THE THEATERS

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Mutt and Jeff in College" at the Majestic Again Tonight.

Mutt and Jeff has actually created a sensation never before known in theatrical history. In New York city, where the play ran to record business at the Manhattan opera house; in Chicago, where it ran fifteen weeks to actual capacity, and in every large or small city in the entire country and wrung from the most conservative critics the enviable title of being the greatest financial and artistic success in a quarter of a century. You don't want any better evidence than this, do you The big New York company with all of the arguments that won its success will be here again this evening at the Majestic.

AT KEITH PALACE

Current Bill at New Palace Closes This Evening.

Tonight will afford the final opportunity for Fort Wayne to enjoy the strong bill now running at the New Palace, the bill that includes such acts as Verna Mersereau and company, in a drama of pagan times, interpreted through the dance; Merle's marvelously plumaged and remarkably intelligent cockatoos; the Five Musical Gormans, in a clever musical turn; Yates and Wheeler in their surprise party, "Who's Who and Which"; and the Jewell comedy trio of melodious voices and clever comedians.

For the coming week the New Palace has a splendid treat in the person of Miss Betty Wells, as Mrs. Robert W. Fowler of our own fair village is known. Betty Wells' comedy character songs and sketches are one of the prides of Fort Wayne, ranking alongside the court house, the New Palance, the Pennsylvania station and the park system. She is a Fort Wayne girl in every sense of the phrase, for she never has forgotten "her old home town," and each holiday season sees her treking back. To this annual pilgrimage may be ascribed her presenec on this new bill. Faye, two Colis and Faye, although not home guarders, are prime favorites here by reason of their having done their black face mixed quartet act here several seasons now. Their stuff never grows old because they constantly are altering their act to keep it just a jump ahead of the times. Charles Semon, the elongated comedian, is another superlative number on this bill. George Felix and the Barry Girls will present their latest thought. "The New Baby," and Chuck Haas will do his celebrated lariat tossing act. Si and Mary Stebbins, a Barnum and Bailey hit, are on this program as a special added attraction.

On Monday afternoon the Temple players will present each woman attending the performance with a silver spoon, the exact duplicate of the ones given away last Monday. Tuesday afternoon again will be a jitney matinee, with every seat in the house open to the women for a thin nickel.

AT THE TEMPLE.

A LIVELY FARCE COMEDY

"The Chauffeur" to Succeed "Call of the Woods" at Temple.

"The Chauffeur," and this one runs in high speed all the time, is the bill for the coming week at the Temple. It is a joy ride to happyland, with the most amusing of drivers at the wheel and it will run all week, leaving at the usual hour. The plot of a farce comedy never tells the story, because all farces are made up of a series of situations that are funny only as you see them depicted on the stage. Imagine trying to tell someone in cold print how funny Charlie Chaplin is when he hits some one over the head with a mallet and you have some conception of how inadequate printer's ink is to convey the fun of a farce comedy like "The Chauffeur." It's so funny the members of the Temple Players have been laughing at rehearsals at the absurdities, laughing longer and louder than they did while rehearsing "The Man From Mexico," and "The Girl in the Taxi."

"The Chauffeur" succeeds the melodramatic production, "The Call of the Woods," which has been running all week with remarkable success. This story of the north woods will close this evening.

Last night was amateur night at the Temple and again it was the signal for a capacity house and a rousing good time, which means, of course, that it will be repeated next week. On Tuesday afternoon another tango tea party will be given by the Temple Players for their friends, both old and new. Tea and other refreshments will be served on the stage and there will be dancing for all who care to indulge themselves in that character of amusement.

AT THE EMPRESS

All of next week "Amy, a Child of the Circus," will be the attraction at the Empress theater and in this newest production by the Empress stock McLain Gates and Miss Helen Gleason will play the principal parts. As this will be the Christmas production at the Empress special efforts have been made by the organization to make the play particularly attractive. Those who have seen the rehearsals know that success has crowned these efforts.

There will be a special Christmas matinee of "Alma" at the Empress on Saturday afternoon and, of course, there will be the customary matinees on Tuesday and Thursday. The matinee on Tuesday will be the customary souvenir matinee. Muc hinterest attaches to the production of this drama here as the leading part was originally played by the famous Mabel Taliaferro.

The final performance of "The Road Agent" will occur at the Empress tonight. Fort Wayne people have liked McLain Gates' performance in the part originally played by Dustin Farnum, exceedingly. Tonight will be the last chance to see Mac play this role.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"THE DISCIPLE,"

A Wonderful Film Play at the Jefferson Today and Tonight.

W. S Hart featured in "The Disciple," the current attraction at the Jefferson, gives an excellent interpretation of the "Shootin' Iron Parson," a frontier missionary who makes a startling transformation to a genuine "bad actor" upon learning that his wife has eloped with an ex-physician and gambler. The part gives him every opportunity to display his emotional talents and he makes the most of them.

His support is excellent and the acting throughout is of the highest order. The lightning and wind storm are a revelation, the effects being the limit of realism. This storm takes place a short time after the elopement. The parson's wife and Hardy return to Barren Gulch and Hardy leaves the woman in a deserted cabin in the mountains while he goes to the camp to complete the sale of his place of business. During the absence of the mother the child has been taken down with mountain fever and the night of the storm is calling for her mother. The parson, nearly crazy, prays that the mother might be sent back to the child. Lightning strikes the cabin where the mother is waiting for Hardy's return and she escapes unhurt and looks for shelter, stumbling on the cabin where her husband and child are living. The husband takes her in and points to the sick child lying on the bed. The wife tells him that Doc is in camp and that only a doctor can save the child. He goes after the doctor and at the point of a gun brings him to the child. After a night of waiting the crisis is past, and the little one is on the way to recovery. The wife sees the error of her ways and is forgiven, not, however, until one of the most thrilling and intensely dramatic scenes is enacted. Simple words cannot do this scene justice.

A very clever Triangle-Keystone. "Saved by Wireless," featuring Chester Conklin and Mark Swain, give an opportunity for some good laughs. Admission 10c and 5c.

AT THE LYRIC.

"Damaged Goods," which was shown in Fort Wayne for the first time at the Lyric theater last Monday, was originally scheduled for a four-day engagement, but the indorsements of this film by local physicians, together with the real merit of the photoplay, have made such an impression on the public that the management was forced to arrange for a continuation of the production for the remainder of the week, which establishes a long run record for a motion picture film in this city.

It was necessary to secure permission from the film owners to obtain the picture for the additional three days, and because of the fact that they had already arranged a schedule for its production in other cities, the owners were loath to permit that it should be held at the Lyric, but finally granted a two day's additional stay, and yesterday morning wired that it might be held for the usual performances.

As the local physicians who have indorsed "Damaged Goods" have stated, it tells a story which is true to life and one which occurs only too frequently. The story of the temptations of a straightforward young man by his more sophisticated friends is an old one indeed. His indulgence in strong drink, at first under protest and even force, but later with reckless drunken abandon, i staged in real life day after day. After arriving at the maudlin stage, he is ensnared into committing the sin, the consequence of which he does not realize until the terrible weeks that follow. This is o too common occurrence in our modern life to be hidden by false modesty.

"Damaged Goods" is not a film to be viewed as a mere matter of entertainment. It is educational and provides a lesson that will do more to combat the vices of modern life than any other means found up to the present day. Its stirring plea for pure life before marriage in order to make impossible the transmission of hereditary taints to the future generations, is put in such a way that it cannot remain unheeded.

Physicians are ready to urge the public to view "Damaged Goods" because they appreciate the enormous number of parallel cases caused either by ignorance or innocence. And only medical men are able to realize how essential education along these lines are. In the words of one prominent local physician, "when once parents lay aside their false modesty and permit their children to know the full truth—calling 'a spade a spade,' as so well illustrated in 'Damaged Goods'—then the results of the debauchery of young manhood will have made its impression."

HE MET MAY BOITET AND NOW IS IN JAIL

Fat and Jolly Henry Brown Comes from Defiance for High Life.

Fat and forty and a jolly bachelor is Henry Brown, who buys eggs, butter, poultry and other produce for commission merchants in Defiance, Ohio. Henry journey to Fort Wayne Friday afternoon to buy a new suit of clothes with which to get himself all dolled up for the merry yuletide season. He got the scenery all right and donned the jacket and waistcoat (low-brow for vest) but had to leave the trousers in the store to be brought into concord with the healthy latitude of his middle and the length of legs that are a trifle shy. This was Henry's undoing. While he waited for the sartorial alterations he wandered forth in search of adventure and met May Boitet. You know May? We thought so. Friday evening Captain Richard Kelly and Acting Detective Sergeant George Eisenhut invaded May's apartment at 117 East Washington street. What they saw was good and ample occasion for an arrest and the officers took them both. In court Henry told all about it and May said she was merely at work with her needle earning an honest living while Mr. Brown looked on. The court caused a concerted gasp of astonishment in the court room from all hands—buzzards, officers, attaches and the crowd singular and in general—when he soaked Brown $25 and costs and added fifteen days in jail, which latter part was afterwards suspended. This was $10 more severe than the fine per head imposed a short time ago on the crowd mixed in a nasty mess broken up by the police on Clinton street and just equaled the penalty imposed on the riotous Baker brothers, who battled half the police force a few days ago. May Boitet was continued until Monday, when she may be sent to the woman's prison.

Vag Was in Bad Company.

Frank Schafer, a vag, was fined $10 and costs and went to jail for twenty days and his trouble grew out of bad company. He was with Frank Briggs, sent over for forty-five days earlier in the week for petit larceny. Briggs stole some brass from the Nickel Plate roundhouse and Schaffer was with him when it was sold to a junker on Superior street. Schaffer denied any knowledge of the theft, but there was some evidence that he did.

Ate Most of the Chicken.

Emma Baker had her husband, Arthur Baker, arrested for non-support and testified that since last June he had given her all told $8 cash and much of the time furnished nothing for the house. Mrs. Baker said that her husband gave her 50 cents to buy a chicken for the Thanksgiving dinner and then came home to dine and ate most of the fowl himself. Juge Kerr put Baker under $100 for his appearance next Thursday, when he will be required to furnish $300 bond for the support of his wife or go to the state farm.

Other City Court Cases.

Ed Riley, just out of jail Friday, was in again on a drunk charge and flashed the same old railroad ticket to Lagrange, where he lives, that he pulled when in two weeks ago. He begged hard to be let go, but went over for fifteen days.

Mose Dahibe, a Syrian, charged with assault and battery, was continued until witnesses could be brought to court.

Henry Griffin, who said he had been robbed, was found to have left his money for safe-keeping with a friend. He faced a drunk charge and was turned loose.

Minnie Cannon, John Schultz and Jake Harris, drunks, were turned loose, and John Stolten, another drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

John Winks, a vag, went over for fifteen days, and Earl Hillis, Ed Hall and Howard Burch, loiterers, were turned loose. Mike Ford, another loiterer, was continued until the 24th inst.

Jay Wilkerson, a chauffeur, who drives a taxicab, was charged with speeding and the case was continued until the 23d inst. with bond fixed at $100.

James Lee and James Iims, charged with stealing a pair of boots from William Stahlhut, were continued until Monday and gave bond of $50 for their appearance to answer to petit larceny.

MUST GET NEW AUTO NUMBERS.

Chief of Police Charles Lenz has issued an order to the men of the police department that the law requiring owners of automobiles to have their license numbers by the first of January must be enforced. There will be no granting of grace until March or April, says the chief in his order, and by January 1, 1916 auto owners must either have their license numbers or show evidence that they have been applied for.

SKIN DISEASES

LITTLE CHILD HAD ECZEMA ALL HER LIFE—CURED IN TWO WEEKS

My little girl had eczema on her face from the time she was born till she was about three years old. It was so sore and irritating that we had to watch her day and night to keep her from scratching her face and making it bleed. It seemed to annoy her almost constantly and we tried many remedies without any benefit till we consulted Dr. Wells who cured her in two weeks. Over a year has elapsed and there has been no evidence of its return. I am pleased to recommend his treatment to others.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

BOWSER STARTS THE DIVIDEND SYSTEM

Will Distribute $2,000 in Pay Envelopes in Addition to Wages.

for the first half of December, the 550 shopmen at S. F. Bowser & Company will receive $2,000 next Monday as their portion of the monthly dividend to be given under the new co-operative system. This sum covers a period of six weeks and hereafter the dividends will be distributed monthly. The new system of production inaugurated by the shop management makes it possible for the company to give a 5 per cent dividend monthly, because the output of the shop is increased without any increase in the cost of production. Factory Manager H. J. Grosvenor says that the company expected to increase the dividends as the employes become more familiar with the system.

BIGGEST IN ITS HISTORY

Is the Shop Pay Rolls of the Western Gas.

The shop force of the Western Gas Construction company is now between 400 and 500, the largest in the history of the plant. A year ago the works were on short time with only about a half force, with a very poor outlook for an improvement very soon. But business conditions took a bound forward and now the company has all the work it can handle and has not only increased its shop force, but has put on additional erecting force, which is busy in numerous places installing gas machinery.

CHANGES NAME JANUARY 1.

Business houses, railway managers and managers of industrial plants, who deal with the Fort Wayne Electric works, have received instructions to direct mail intended for that company to the General Electric company, of Fort Wayne, after January 1. On that date the General Electric company will take over the accounting department of the Fort Wayne Electric company and all collections and credit work will be performed at the Schenectady office of the company. H. F. Thomas, head of the accounting department, who came here three years ago from Schenectady, will be transferred, probably returning to Schenectady. Several bookkeepers, stenographers and clerks will also be transferred to other plants or dropped from the service, but just how many will be affected is not known at present.

NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED.

The X-ray taken of Clifford E. Madden, the Pennsylvania employe injured yesterday by a smoke box front falling upon him, developed the fact that he was not as seriously injured as feared. The hip bones were not broken and there were no internal injuries, so far as could be ascertained. Dr. Garrett Van Sweringen, the attending surgeon, says that the injured man will be able to leave the hospital within a few days.

WILL INSTALL JANUARY 8.

Division, No. 119, Order of Railway Conductors, and Kekionga division, No. 51, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Order of Railway Conductors, will have joint installation of officers, followed by a social and banquet, January 8. The divisions held their elections two or three weeks ago, which were remarkable because of the re-election of all of the leading officers.

ARE ALL READY TO KISS AND MAKE UP

Feds and O. B. Are on the Verge of Getting Together.

New York, Dec. 18.—Approval of the tentative baseball peace plan having been given by representatives of the National, American and Federal leagues the details of the treaty were considered in a conference here today of the members of the national commission with a committee from the Federal league. Meanwhile the negotiators are awaiting the result of efforts which it is understood are to be made in Chicago today to obtain the consent of Judge Landis to dismiss the suit brought by the Federal league against organized baseball. A question was raised in the negotiations here whether it would be legal or in contempt of Judge Landis to sign a peace treaty while the legal action was still pending before him. Once Judge Landis' consent is obtained it is understood the national commission and the Federal league committee have the authority to adjust details and sign the peace agreement. Aside from the mergers of the National and Federal league clubs in Chicago and St. Louis, one of the most important clauses in the agreement, it is authoritatively stated, is that seventy-two of the Federal league players who now have contracts with the Federal league shall be fully protected by organized baseball. According to the same authority other Federal league players will be given ten days' notice.

An important phase of the negotiations is the part assigned to the International league and the American association in taking over clubs and players left over by the elimination of the Federal league. Newark, Buffalo, Baltimore and Pittsburg, it is stated, are to have clubs in the reorganized International league. It is reported that Carroll Rasin president of the Baltimore Federals, will control the new Baltimore club and that Edward G. Winner, head of the Pittsburg Federals, will be president of the reorganized Pittsburg club. Rasin, however, demands that the St. Louis National league club be transferred to Baltimore.

It was said today that probably the International league and the American association will have to take care of Federal league players rejected by the two major leagues.

Former Fort Wayne Man Elected to Good Office.

Charles W. Cross, a former Fort Wayne railway man, has just been elected vice-president of the Equipment Improvement company, with offices at 30 Church street, New York. Mr. Cross has been with the Equipment company since July, 1914, going thence from the New York Central, where he was superintendent of apprentices eight years. Mr. Cross began his career as an apprentice in the C., H. & D. shops at Lima, Ohio, coming to the Fort Wayne shops of the Pennsylvania in 1880, remaining here until 1900, serving, respectively, as machinist, draftsman, foreman and assistant master mechanic. In 1900 he went to Elkhart as master mechanic of the Lake Shore shops and remained there until 1906, when he became superintendent of apprentices. While a resident of Fort Wayne he married Miss Sadie Newell, daughter of Engineer Newell, one of the pioneer engineers of the Pennsylvania, who resided on Douglas avenue.

CHARLES W. CROSS.

PLUCKY WHITE WOMAN, DEFENSELESS AMONG PHILIPPINE TRIBESMEN, WON TRIUMPH OVER SAVAGERY AND DEATH.

Mrs. Kelly's home near Baguio, Philippine islands. At right, Fantek, a Bontock girl and chief's daughter, in Mrs. Kelly's school.

(Editor's Note—Mrs. Alice McKay Kelly is an American woman who for 14 years has devoted herself to the welfare of the Philippine wild tribes with remarkable influence. She is today probably the most widely known woman in the islands. Her home near Baguio has become the mecca for distinguished visitors from two continents, while among the Igorottes she is affectionately known as "Mother," occupying a station corresponding to that of chief. She established the first school for those bronzed highlanders, and in the following story gives a hint of what it means to extend the frontiers of civilization among barbaric people).

Mrs. Alice McKay Kelly

recently turned a Philippine mountain tragedy into far-reaching account for the government in the islands.

It required amazing courage, patience and vision.

Death, attempted murder, superstitious terror, a savage courtship and weird ceremonial were some of the elements with which Mrs. Kelly, a lone white woman among the Igorottes, was compelled to cope in the Luzon wilderness.

In the end she guided an entire tribe toward civilization.

A Tagalog had broken the moral law by alluring little Koning Cerino, daughter of the Igorotte Chief Sioko. The girl's confession to Mrs. Kelly, whose school she attended, had resulted in the Tagalog's suicide and his attempt to kill his inamorata.

Chief Sioko held Mrs. Kelly responsible for the entire affair, although she knew nothing of the clandestine wooing until the day of the tragedy.

"If she dies," he had sent word, "you must die, too. We will be sorry to kill you, but so it shall be."

Then he disappeared in the forest until word should come from the hospital at Baguio, some miles away, where Mrs. Kelly had transported the wounded girl, hovering between life and death.

Pleading was of no avail. All Mrs. Kelly's unselfish service for the Igorottes counted for naught in this hour of Sioko's frenzy.

"We will be sorry to kill you!" Sioko had spoken.

Had Mrs. Kelly been thinking only of herself she might have escaped, for she rode every day to Baguio to see the wounded sufferer. And in Baguio were friends, refuge. But her whole life was wrapped up in the constructive work she had started among the Igorotte youngsters. She could not desert them, even to save her own imperiled life. That's how this plucky American pioneer felt about it.

"Little Koning's life hung by a thread," said Mrs. Kelly. "Day by day she had been getting worse. And in the somber forest Sioko, the father, waited, as I waited, for a change in her condition.

"Meantime an old Mambonong, or priestess, had come to my home at Bua, bearing a white rooster in a bag.

"'I bring him,' she explained, 'to coax back the angry soul of Koning Cerino—to carry it back to the suffering body in the soft breast feathers of this cockerel.'

"All that day the weird ceremonial continued. I had sent the school children away and participated in the rites as the priestess commanded. Near sunset it was finished.

"'And now,' said the old woman, 'you will saddle your horse and ride with me to the hospital at Baguio. I have promised it to the great Mambonong. You must talk to no one on the way. If any friend give you a greeting, you must but ride on the faster.'

"By the time we reached Baguio we were being followed by a motley procession of natives. A nurse at the hospital protested against this 'nonsense' and would have turned them away, but I persuaded her to let the natives have their way.

"The Manbanong chanted an invitation to little Koning's soul to transport itself from the white rooster's breast feathers to the pain-racked body of the Igorotte maiden.

"And on the instant there was a remarkable change. Sweat poured from the girl's forehead. She sank into a restful slumber, and from that hour began to mend rapidly."

"Your conduct," he said, "has pleased us. If my daughter gets well I will send her publicly back to the government school. I shall tell my people that I have confidence in you, and advise them to allow their girls as well as sons to attend your place of learning—if she gets well."

The day Koning Cerino left the hospital, recovered, was one of celebration among the Igorottes. From far and near the tribespeople gathered in the clearing about the school at Bua. Mrs. Kelly was there, too, still in doubt as to Sioko's intentions.

"Then," she said, "the chief arose and talked. It was a wonderful speech."

He told the assembly of 300 natives of Mrs. Kelly's efforts to guide the tribe to a better and more purposeful life. He rehearsed the tragedy, and his daughter's sufferings. But his fury, he said, had died. He was sending her back to the school. Let others do likewise.

Pluck, kindliness and service had triumphed over savagery.

Fort Wayne Young Man Praises Miller's Herb Remedy

The best evidence we give, is given by Fort Wayne citizens, whom you know and can trust. We do not go to Muncie, Anderson, or Kokomo to get our evidence. Mr. Wm. Mosshammer, of 836 West Creighton avenue, says: "I was tortured with rheumatism so that I could not sleep, although I worked hard every day. I am employed at the Boss Glove factory and have charge of two hundred sewing machines to keep in repair. At night I could not sleep. I would bathe my limbs with hot water to get relief. Other members of our family recommended Miller's True Herb Remedy very highly, so I got a bottle. The first few doses relieved me of the pain. When I had less than a bottle taken the rheumatism was gone and now I am feeling fine again. Two years ago I had a very bad case of Lumbago. I used only one bottle of this good medicine and Lumbago disappeared entirely. I have great faith in Miller's True Herb Remedy, it is very pleasant to take, it is a large 14 oz. bottle and you take only one dose a day and it gives you a 25 days' treatment for 75c, while other remedies you get an 8 oz. bottle for $1.00 and required to take 3 and 4 doses a day, and will last at the longest 5 days, which makes it a very expensive remedy to use. My advice is, if you want quick results, use Miller's True Herb Remedy." At all druggists, 75c per bottle. Mail orders receive prompt attention. Chas. A. Miller, 1234 Scott avenue, Fort Wayne, Ind.

DICK HAS IT DOPED THAT PLAYERS OVEREAT

New Central President Figures That Eating Slows Them Up.

However, may it be said for the Fort Wayne team that the local battlers last year fed none too well just before the battle, mother. A bowl of soup, a glass of milk, a couple of boiled eggs, and sometime as an added festivity a hunk of restaurant pie—that was the before playing menu.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 18—President E. W. Dickerson has figured out the reason ball players dream on the diamond. Many fans also have figured out the reason in the past, but the fans either have attributed it to staying out nights or too close acquaintance with John Barleycorn.

Now along comes Dick and dopes out overeating on the part of ball players as the real reason. And after listening to Dick's argument it seems possible the new president of the Central league may have found the real reason after all.

Dick figures that a ball player eats too much because he gets it for nothing, the clubs being in the habit of paying the players' hotel expenses on the road. And he also figures that many times a player with the appetite of a canary bird will load himself down with a meal that would founder an ox and then will go out on the diamond and attempt to put up a snappy game.

"And a player in such a case as that," said Dick today, "usually has the ambition of a groundhog in winter or a stuffed eagle up in the museum. Like as not he will dream on the base lines or go to keep in the field and straddle the ball or cross signals or pull off some kind of a boner. Sometime when you aren't hungry go and eat a barrel of fried oysters and see how you feel."

Dick believes the players eat too much because they get the food for nothing, and if they had to pay for the food they would content themselves with a glass of milk and a sandwich a lot of times that they now indulge in everything on the bill of fare.

Dick's idea though, is not to place any hardship on the player. He favors paying the players more money and allowing him to buy his own meals, or allowing him a certain sum for meals out of which he might save something by safety first eating. He favors the plan for the Central league.

CONCORDIANS WALLOP FIVE FROM PAYNE

Visitors Defeated in Second Half by the Local Germans.

Coming out from behind in the second half of a game full of kick, the Concordia basketballers demonstrated that they are the real for sure stuff last night by walloping the Payne, O., crew of rustic giants by a total of 67 and 27. It looked at the half way mark as though the Payne bunch was there to stay, and Cap Byroade simply kicked a little ambition into his boys between the halves and everything went smoothly.

The Concordians showed a remarkable amount of classy team work, and held together like the machine that Cap Byroade is working so hard to perfect. It was the best game they have put up this season and they are showing the effects of good training.

In the preliminary the Concordian seconds were defeated 33 and 17 by the St. Paul's Nationals. Lineups and scores:

Concordia, 67—Luerssen, F.; Schilf, F.; Wacker, C.; Metzdorf, G.; Dorn, G.

Preliminary.

Free throws—Gremel 1, Hoffmann 1.

NEW HAVEN CARDINALS are WORTH GOING SEVEN MILES TO SEE

Every now and then a basketball team that is of more than usual interest hops into the spotlight. Such a team is the New Haven Cardinals, a bevy of pretty girls, who are putting up a mighty classy game. In the picture are the Misses Lucinda Dennis, Florence Schuckman, Agnes Becker, Loretta Dennis and Etta Harper. The sixth member of the team wasn't on the job when the picture was made.

ATTENDS DISTRICT MEETINGS.

Jesse Macbeth, of this city, grand master of the I. O. O. F. lodge in Indiana, has been attending a series of meetings throughout the state conferring with district deputy grand masters and patriarchs. Wednesday he was at Lafayette.

IT'S A HABIT.

Leach Cross was walloping Ad Wolgast something frightful in the sixth round of a go in New York last night when a kindly referee stepped in and saved the old man from Cadillac from a disgrace. This is the second time in a week Wolgast has stayed on his pins through the kindness of the third man. Bennie Leonard knocked out Joe Mandor in the seventh of their go.

KAUFF, "TY COBB OF THE OUTLAWS," WILL BE CENTER OF SCRAMBLE FOR PLAYERS IN FED DISTRIBUTION.

RECORD WITH FEDS.

Stole most bases, 54.
Second in run getting.
Second in home runs.

Led batters with .366.
Scored most runs, 112.
Made most hits, 210.
Stole most bases, 75.
Made most doubles, 45.
Hit for greatest number of bases, 305.

(By Brown Holmes).

When the committees of the National, American and Federal leagues, in arranging for baseball peace, reach the point of distribution of players who have been in the Federal league, there will be a grand scramble for Benny Kauff, the Brooklyn outfielder, called the Ty Cobb of the "outlaw" organization.

Kauff has been the leading performer in the Federal league for two years and there is not a club in the National and American leagues right now, with the exception of Detroit, that could not make good use of him.

It is too early to tell what system will be used in distributing Fed players among the teams to be in the two leagues that will remain after the Federal is eliminated, but it is a cinch every manager, with the exception of Hughey Jennings, of the Detroit Tigers, will be trying to land Kauff.

Jennings already has the best outfield in the majors in Cobb, Crawford and Veach. The next best outfield is that of the Boston Red Sox, composed of Speaker, Hooper and Lewis.

Next to Kauff the most wanted player will be Lee Magee, who managed the Brooklyn Feds part of last season. Magee is a finished ball player. He can play the infield or outfield, hits well and is one of the fastest base runners in the game.

Kauff has been with the Brooklyn Feds since the Federal league started its career. He has been the star of the team and has led the league batters in several departments.

Kauff went from the bushes to the Indianapolis club of the American association but jumped to the Feds for 1914. He helped the Indianapolis Feds win the pennant. He led the league in six departments in 1914 and was rated among the "outlaws" as Cobb is rated in organized ball.

This year Kauff was shifted to Brooklyn and kept up his great work at bat and on the bases leading in both departments. At one time during the season he tried to jump to the National league but couldn't get away with it, and returned to Brooklyn.

Kauff has only one fault. He is not a finished fielder. He covers a lot of ground in the outfield but does not play with as much intuition as many other gardeners, is a little late starting for fly balls at times and does not always use good judgment in throwing to bases.

These faults probably can be corrected and even if they are not he is a valuable player because he can pound that old pill.

FREDDIE WELSH IS THE CLASSIC STALLER

Charlie White's Manager Calls Bout Off After Monkey Business.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—According to a telegram received last night from New York, the now justly celebrated negotiations between Freddie Welsh and Charlie White for a twenty round battle for the world's lightweight championship are at an end.

The following message from White's manager, Nate Lewis, tells the story:

"Have called off all negotiations and am signing White up for other matches. Pollok wants to wait for bid from Juarez. Told him if Juarez bid was satisfactory to him and he signed up there will be no trouble. White leaving for Chicago Saturday. New York promoters bidding for White's services against Ted Lewis, Willie Ritchie and Dundee. Pollok plainly showed that he wants none of White's game for Welsh."

Which indicates that the possibility of a titular battle between these two boys is as remote as it ever was—and that is some remote. Harry Pollok had said time after time that he would accept the highest bid submitted by Dec. 16, but when it came to a showdown no bid was accepted.

It is understood here that the American Boxing association, an organization of promoters, will now take up the matter and attempt to force Welsh into defending his title. Their chances are not such that they have to be viewed through smoke glasses. Welsh still is an attraction in a few hick towns where ten round bouts are permitted, and it is not believed he will allow himself to be forced into any twenty round battles until he has exhausted every possibility in the ten round circuit.

Indications now are that most of Welsh's winter "campaign" will be conducted in Canada, where there is still some easy money to be plucked over the short route.

STRONG AND WELL AS EVER.

Fred Smith, 325 Main St., Green Bay, Wis., says: "I suffered a long time with a very weak back. Foley Kidney Pills completely relieved me of all soreness and pain and I now am strong and well as ever." Winter aggravates symptoms of kidney trouble; cold weather makes aching joints, sore muscles and irregular bladder action more unbearable. Foley Kidney Pills help the kidneys eliminate pain-causing poisons.—Dreier Drug Co.

The South Whitley Metropolitans defeated the Fort Wayne Turners last night 24 and 14, and put up an intelligent game in spite of the name they travel under. They had the local Deutchers going every minute of the time.

WHAT HAS THE TRACTION COMPANY DONE FOR FORT WAYNE?

Let us see what the real facts are and then let every one judge for himself.

The Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction Company was organized under the laws of Indiana in 1903 for the purpose of acquiring, building and operating street and interurban railroads and electric light and power plants. In 1911 it was re-organized under the laws of the State of Indiana, with practically the same stockholders and officers, under the name of Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction Company. These two companies, therefore, for the purpose of this article, are properly treated as one and will be designated the "Traction Company."

The Traction Company is subject to regulation and control by both the Interstate Commerce Commission, at Washington, and the Public Service Commission of Indiana. To each of which Commissions and to the Treasury Department of the United States, it is required by law and does make annual and sworn report of all its receipts and expenditures in detail, on forms expressly prescribed by said Commissions and the Treasury Department, whose expert accountants examine the books of the Traction Company for verification of these reports. Severe penalties are provided in the law for the making of false reports. These reports are on file in the office of the Commissions, are subject to examination by anyone, and there is therefore nothing that can be concealed in the business or operations of the Traction Company, and no excuse can be made for false charges against it.

The Traction Company in 1904, purchased and acquired: (a) The street railroad properties in Fort Wayne which had twice before been in the hands of a receiver; (b) the interurban railroad from Fort Wayne to Wabash, constructed by the Fort Wayne and Southwestern Traction Company (which was also in the hands of a receiver) and the electric light and power plant of the Fort Wayne Electric Light and Power Company which had been acquired by said Southwestern Company; (c) The interurban railroad from Wabash to Peru, then owned by the Wabash River Traction Company; (d) The interurban railroad from Peru to Logansport, then owned by the Wabash and Logansport Traction Company; (e) The street railroad properties in Logansport, then owned by the Logansport Railway Company, and the Logansport, Rochester and Northern Traction Company; (f) And the street railroad properties in Lafayette and West Lafayette, then owned by the Lafayette Street Railroad Company.

The Traction Company afterwards built: (a) The interurban railroad from Fort Wayne to Bluffton, there connecting with the lines of the Union Traction Company, and the Marion, Bluffton and Eastern Traction Company, thereby giving Fort Wayne direct communication and frequent interurban passenger, express and freight service with Bluffton, Montpelier, Hartford City, Muncie, Anderson, Indianapolis and Marion, and the numerous intervening towns; and (b) The interurban railroad from Logansport to Lafayette giving a through interurban line from Fort Wayne through Huntington, Wabash, Peru, Logansport and Delphi to Lafayette and intervening towns, thereby connecting with other interurban railroads running through North and South at Wabash, Peru, Logansport and Lafayette.

The Traction Company thus brought Fort Wayne into direct and frequent interurban communication with cities and towns, and the rural communities adjacent thereto, having an aggregate population of more than a half million of people. If anyone asks: "What has the Traction Company done for Fort Wayne?" or doubts the immense advantage and profit to Fort Wayne from these interurban railroads and connections made by the Traction Company, let him ask the merchants, business men and traveling salesmen of Fort Wayne, and not the man with "an ax to grind"—at the expense of the Traction Company,

WHAT HAS THE TRACTION COMPANY DONE IN FORT WAYNE SINCE IT ACQUIRED ALL THE ABOVE PROPERTIES?

1. It located in Fort Wayne its principal offices from which all the business of its large system is done and where all its official and clerical force reside.

2. It located and built in Fort Wayne one of the largest and best equipped electric light and power plants in the middle West at an actual cost of more than one million dollars.

3. It extended its electric light and power system, formerly owned by the Fort Wayne Light and Power Company, to every part of the city and so as to furnish to every inhabitant an electric light and power service not surpassed in any city in the country.

4. Since 1904 it has re-built and reconstructed nearly every line of street railroad in the city in a manner equal to the bet street railroad construction to be found anywhere; and it has paved or re-paved most of the streets between its rails and for a distance of one foot outside of the rails. It has also purchased new cars and other equipment, and respectfully submits that the street car service in Fort Wayne compares favorably with street car service in any other city of its size in the country.

5. It has paid out and expended for street paving alone in the city of Fort Wayne the sum of $333,583.21, which amount has thereby been saved to the abutting property owners and to the city. The "jitneys" are now permitted, without expense or regulation of any kind, not only to use and wear out these pavements paid for by the Traction Company but to obstruct and interfere with street car service and render hazardous the lives of people using the streets. "IS THIS A SQUARE DEAL?"

6. The Traction Company paid in taxes in 1915 the sum of $65,120.41, of which $20,590 was paid to the Treasurer of Allen county. How much do the "jitneys" pay? Should not the above amount of taxes insure protection to the property on which the taxes are paid?

7. The Traction Company, from January 1, 1904, to October 1, 1915, has expended for additions and betterments to its property in Fort Wayne alone the sum of $3,045,290.84.

8. The Traction Company from January 1, 1910, to October 1, 1915, has expended for additions and betterments to its property in Fort Wayne alone the sum of $1,950,425.15. How many people in Fort Wayne have realized the enormous sum of money which the Traction Company has expended in the upbuilding of its properties in this city?

9. The Tractions Company pays out each year to its employes in Fort Wayne for the operation of its properties an average of $340,000.

10. Neither the present Traction Company, nor any other company owning and operating the system of street railroads in Fort Wayne, including its electric light and power plant, has ever paid a dividend of any kind on any kind of stock, except a six per cent. dividend on the preferred stock, for one and a half years only; but a considerable portion of that dividend was paid out of a special fund voluntarily paid in by the preferred stockholders themselves and not out of the earnings of the company.

11. The following is a sworn statement of the expenditures of the Traction Company for additions and betterments to its properties in Fort Wayne, prepared and sworn to by Mr. Harry E. Vordermark, Auditor of the Traction Company, for whose honesty and integrity everyone who knows him will cheerfully vouch.

STATE OF INDIANA } SS.
COUNTY OF ALLEN }

Harry E. Vordermark, being duly sworn on his oath, says he is Auditor of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Company, and has been connected with the Auditing Department of the several companies owning and operating the street railroad system in Fort Wayne for the past 22 years; that the above statement of the amounts paid for taxes in 1915, for street paving, and for additions, constructions, and betterments, are true and correct; and he personally knows that during the past 22 years neither said Traction Company or any other Company owning and operating the street railroad properties in Fort Wayne, ever paid a dividend of any kind on any kind of stock, except for one year and a half when a six per cent. dividend was paid on the preferred stock only, but a considerable portion of that dividend was paid out of a fund voluntarily paid in by the preferred stockholders and not out of earnings of the Company.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public, this 17th day of December, 1915.

HARRY E. VORDERMARK.

My commission expires Jan. 7, 1916.

ARTHUR C. PONTIUS,
Notary Public.

What other corporation has expended as much money in additions and improvements to its property in the same period of time as the Traction Company?

Street car transportation and electric light and power are essential factors in the development of every large city. No modern city can increase in population or business without both. The destruction of the Traction Company's property or rights would be an unspeakable calamity to our city.

The Traction Company has endeavored to the best of its ability to give to the people of Fort Wayne good street car and electric service, it has obeyed the law in all things and has not given cause for offense to anyone. It therefore appeals to and confidently relies upon the generous protection and support of the good people of Fort Wayne.

JAMES M. BARRETT,
President Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction Company.

It has allus been our custom ever sinst we took charge of the Bugle lo these menny yrs agone—ever sinst Heck was a pup as you might say, to dash off each yr a approperate eddytoriul on glad Xmas & we dont perpose to deevyate one jot ner tittle from our eddytoriul polisy this yr, neither, and wed like to see ennybody try to make us! Thats one thing where we wont brook er tollerate enny interferents namely in the management of conducktin the Bugle to suit ourself. N. B.—You can take this or leave it alone jest as you see fit.

Xmas incloodin the hollerdays whitch comes betwixt it and New Yrs as well as New Yrs itself is a season when everybuddy in Bingville is sposed to be full of the spirrit of charitty and peace on earth and good will tords their fellermen. It is a season when we ort to throttle down our real selfs and try to get the best of our nasty disposishions. In other words we ort to lay aside our spites & grudges and selfishnesses and not indulge in bitter & acrimonious feelings aginst our nabers but ruther go around with our hearts sloppin over with good nachure & cheer and love and affeckshion.

But do we do so here in Bingville? Anser—no we dont. On the other hand were jest as mean & penoorius & hipperkritikal & graspin & gougin durin the glad Xmastide as we be all the rest of the yr. Were allus lookin out fer No. 1 as we might say—allus tryin to git the best of each other and the devil take the hindmost. Thats the kind of a attytood whitch Bingville folks manifests aginst one another.

Take Lem Gookins for a sample. We met Lem on the st tother day and ast him if he was a going to give Xmas gifts this yr, as ushual. Lem he up and says no hed be hornswoggled if he was. And when we ast him why not he says becuz heretofore when he has give Xmas gifts to his wife & children he has allus got cheated being as the Xmas gifts whitch they give him diddent begin to cost half as mutch as the ones he give them and hed got so disgusted that he was a going to stop givin Xmas gifts altogether.

Now aint that a purty way for Lem Gookins to ackt! When we give Xmas gifts to folks we ortent to allus expeckt to git back moren we give. That aint no kind of a Xmas spirrit to manifest. It aint the cost of a Xmas gift that counts—its the spirrit whitch it is give with.

Why cant folks hereabouts exert a true Xmas spirrit tords one another this Xmas for a change? Shurely they could manage to do so for a week ennyhow and then after the New Yr has came we spose they could go back to the old way agin if theyre bound to and be mean and ornery and pusilanamus & penoorius according to their real nachures.

Lem didn't know where the durnashion it went to unless he must of dropt it under the board walk in front of his house, wich he tore all up to see but couldn't find same, and had to pay 25 cts. for nails to fix the board walk up again with. Samuel Moore, our beluvved pastor, entered the store and heerd the awful swear words which Sime was a-uttering. "My bruther," sayd the Rev. Moore, you must remember that Job had boils and he didn't swear none."

"Gosh a-mighty," says Sime, "he must of had a stoppage in his speech then!" The Rev. Moore then left Sime in disgust. It aint so safe to invite parties to church.

Ras Slocumb went and got his hair sheered by Harve Hines, our tonsorial barber last week, and now Ras has a awful cold in his chest, whereas you'd nachurally think the cold would be in his head. Ras says a person is a fule to have their hair cut in winter and run the risk of ketching cold.

Bingville is very quiet this week. Why is this?

Hank Dewberry started in to bild a stone fence for Cy Hoskins last Monday morning, but after working 2 hrs. got a severe crick in his back and is now looking for another job with shorter hrs. and longer pay.

Gideon Johnson sold his cow last wk. to Eph Higgins for $15. Gid says she is due to come in fresh next April and so Eph ain't to pay for her until she does.

Mrs. Jerushy Perkins had the kindness to leave a hot mince pie on our desk one day last week for which we are devoutly thankful. We laid the pie by to keep until the day's work was over when we could set down and enjoy it, but when the time come to do this we found that the offis cat had discuvvered the pie and had et it over haff up. We throwd the shears at the cat hoping to kill it but we only broke the shears. Who wants a good offis cat for nothink?

Seth Cooper has a girl over Snake Head way as Dave Rumor says. Seth You must be turrible sweet on her, Seth.

Milly Henderson's mother made Milly put on wool stockings last week and says she shant take em off agin until next May. This is right. It would be a good thing if all Bingville mothers would make their daughters wear wool stockings. Girls is a-gitting sich fool new fangled noshions in their heads nowadays that they would probably wear cotton stockings all winter long and ketch their deth of cold.

Brad Hinsley's red cow had a calf one night recent. Mother and kaff are both doing well at this writing.

Important If True

It is roomerd that there will be a moovin pickshure show give in the town hall by co. seat parties for one night only during the last wk. in Janooary.

We Ist heerd the roomer down to Hen Weathersby's store and tride to run it down, but we can't seem to find out head nor tail of it. Even the town selecktmen from who the Town Hall would haft to be hired don't seem to know nothink about it and they tell us that if ennybuddy is a going to give a mooving pickshure show in the town it will be without their nolledge and consent.

We should like to know who starts sitch roomers ennyhow. Of course it is important if true, but on tother hand if it aint true why it dont amount to a hill of beans and only works us all up for nothink. However, we'll find out if it is true if we wait long enuff fer truth is might and will pervail.

Sassiety

Mrs. Cy Hoskins give another quilting party last Satterday ev'g. Mrs. Hoskins' nabors have made her 7 quilts at her quilting parties so far this winter, and all they got in return is a few crackers and a cup of tea on each occashion. There is a good deal of talk about it.

Mrs. Amri Haines is talking of holding a coming-out party for her daughter Sarah before spring sets in. Mrs. Haines says Sarah will soon be 17 years old and is already to be launched into sassiety.

Miss Amelia Tucker, our raining sassiety queen, has received a violent setback to her soshial whirl duties because of a wart which has made its appearance on the end of Amelia's nose, and makes her look rediklus in the extreme when she is in sassiety. Doc Livermore is treating the wart at present and hopes to remove same in due time.

Hank In a Bad Fix

Hank Dewberry, one of our most goodfornothing citizens has been suffering from what he calls plumbago for some time past. Hank went to Doc Livermore for it. Doc told him to try a capsicum plaster. Hank went to the co. seat after a capsicum plaster and stuck it on his back. Hank says after it had been on about an hour it burnt like wild fire and he tried to pull it offen his back but it stuck so tite that it nearly made him holler out with pain every time he give a yank on it, so he had to get his wife to pull it off of him, being as he didn't have the moral courage to do it. Hank says that where the plaster was on his back is all blistered and that he has learnt since he put that plaster on that it wasn't nothing but a plaster made of red pepper with glue on one side to make it stick. Hank said Doc Livermore better keep outen his way hereafter if he values his life very much. Hank says his plumbago is worse than it was before he tried the

Strange Experience

Hank Simpson was tuk suddintly sick tother night about 2 o'clock in the morning and Doc Livermore was sent for in grate haste. Doc was hardly awake when he arrived on the scene of ackshion, but he opened his medesin case and give Hak a pill, and after Hank had swallered it Doc discovered that he had went and give him a horse pill for colick.

Doc broke the truth to Hank as gentle as he could and told Hank he might as well prepare to meet his maker, becus them pills was turrible powerful.

Hank was awful skeerd, but as he lade there awaiting deth, as you might say, he begin to feel better and is now a well man which he thinks was caused by the horse pill. Doc has now desided to give horse pills regular to them as is sick.

DO THINGS

HOW many times you read of someone making a fortune with some little contraption you might have thought of yourself, or running a business in some new way that is so simple it would be silly except that it happens to be a success.

"Why, any one could have thought of that," is your thought.

It isn't the thinking of the thing; it's the putting it over that counts.

Where a hundred people are capable of thinking something new, or realizing the possibility in something old, one possesses the gumption needed to put it over.

It doesn't require genius to put a thing over, but it does need perseverance, faith in yourself, power to concentrate and to snatch at opportunity. You must make other people see you are right, and to do that you must believe yourself right.

The real secret of being a good business woman, a good saleswoman, a good secretary, is this same ability to put it over—to get results. If you can't convince yourself that what you have is worth pushing, if it doesn't get over with you, don't think you can put it over on any one else. Quit it and go in for something different.

ODDS AND ENDS

ONCE more the graceful tulle scarf, of immense width and length and of gossamer-like fragility, is being liked and used. It is wound about the arms, the shoulders, or the head, just as it happens to be needed. Some new ones seen the other day were radiant in color; and each had a fresh touch, namely, a very narrow hemband of gold or silver thread, jetted chenille, or something equally effective. A rosy cloud of brilliant tinting, with gold braid, has a fascinating beauty of its own, and another lovely choice which would suit a girl with a pale brown or fluffy golden hair was of that vivid shade of blue called Madonna, hemmed with the very narrowest silver braid. It seems to be essential that "pure" colors should be used for these picturesque scarfs, but black ones are available, of course, with the jetted hem that is so fashionable a punctuation of all gossamer fabrics.

COMBINATION underclothes are becoming more and more the rage. Almost all the corset covers and petticoats that one sees for sale are fastened together around the waistline. Both bodice and skirt are made on the circular pattern, so that there is as little fullness as possible around the waist and hips, and they are joined together by beading through which ribbon is run. It is a very attractive looking garment for negligee, but it is far more trouble to keep them both clean and fresh than it is to care for only one piece at a time. The reason for the innovation was, of course, the return of the empire gown, but the princess slip of lace and nainsook is a far more becoming gown to the figure than is the combination.

THE fashionable sets of buttons evolved for the embellishment of blouses bodices, waistcoats and coatees are so tastefully painted, beaded or embroidered as to offer both to the home artist and needle woman the opportunity of making presents at a small cost. To these effective novelties are lent often added an extra charm by the fact that they are treated in the same way and intended to be threaded with lace, braid or ribbon as dress, blouse and cushion trimmings.

CHARMING little bootees of white kid are made for the baby and embroidered with the feather-stitch in pink or blue silk. The patterns for the diminutive boots are the same as that used for the knitted slippers of older people. First, the tiny sole is cut, then the upper. The one is sewed to the other, the seam is fastened at the heel and the top is bound in ribbon. The feather or brier stitching is then put all around the seams and just below the ribbon binding and baby's shoes are finished.

BLACKBERRY mould will be a surprise for the nursery supper table. Stew and mash a quart of berries with a little water. Stir into this a small cup of farina and a pinch of salt. Cook for an hour in a double boiler and put into wet moulds to harden. Turn out on individual dishes and serve with a little thin cream. Another delightful dish that can be prepared in the morning and eaten at night is blackberry and apple fool. To make it, take one pint each of the berries and nice juicy apples. Peel, core and slice the latter, then put them with the berries into a saucepan with a quarter cup of water and one cup of sugar. Cook gently until the fruit is tender, then rub through a sieve. If not sweet enough add more sugar and stir into the fruit pulps one pint of thick boiled custard. Pour into a glass dish, the one it will be served in. When ready to serve whip cream to a stiff froth, sweeten and flavor. Heap in mounds over the fool. Serve very cold. Raspberry cream is the queen of dainty desserts. Soak half a box of gelatin in cold water to cover for half an hour. Stand over boiling water until dissolved. Add half a cup of sugar and a pint of strained raspberry juice. Stir until thickened over cracked ice. Then add one pint of whipped cream and mix thoroughly. Pour into a mould and set away to harden.

THE NEWEST NECKWEAR

BY MRS. KINGSLEY.

IN spite of the fact that life for most women has taken on a new and strenuous aspect since the commencement of the war, those dainty accessories which lend a charm essentially feminine to the simplest and most severe gowns were never so much in evidence as at the present moment. From the perfectly simple collars in fine white lawn, innocent even of a line of hemstitching, up to the elaborate fichus in net or ninon, ruffled with fine real lace, there are endless varieties in the way of neckwear which are well worth consideration. There is no need either for most of them to spell extravagance, since it should be quite a simple matter to have them carefully washed at home.

For morning use, nothing is more becoming than a small sailor collar of clear white muslin, continued in front in the form of revers, and arranged in such a way that it looks equally well worn with a simple blouse or outside a coat in serge or summer cloth. Some of these collars are rendered more decorative by fine embroideries worked just in the corners only, while others again look very pretty arranged with lines of hemstitching, which cross each other at the corners. Other muslin collars of a more elaborate description are cut out in points shaped like the petals of an arum lily, and slightly stiffened with very fine wire, which can be quite easily withdrawn and replaced when the collars are washed.

Upstanding frills of net and lace which stop short on either side, leaving the front of the throat bare, are still enjoying a certain share of Fashion's favor, but since they proved somewhat unmanageable in their original form, they are now almost always held securely in place by a narrow strap of black velvet ribbon, which is in some cases drawn through a small paste slide, while in other instances it is secured by small rosettes of ribbon to match. A pretty collar of this kind, carried out in cream Alencon lace, is mounted on a broad black velvet band and then drawn together in front by double straps of cream moire ribbon, finished on either side by clusters of small pink satin roses.

It is the fichu, however, in its many forms, which takes the place of honor among the dainty accessories of the moment, if only because it adapts itself so amiably to frocks that are suitable for widely different occasions. By a little skilful manipulation, too, it can be made equally becoming to those who are very slim and to those others who are not so easily suited because their figures err upon the generous side. The soft folds of lawn or muslin, net or lace can be draped firmly or loosely, as occasion requires, and can be arranged in such a way that by concealing certain deficiencies they will succeed in giving a delightfully graceful outline to the figure. Some of the newest fichus are draped round the shoulders in the demure fashion which prevailed in 1820, while others are arranged with folds that are drawn closely together a little distance below the throat, and fastened either with a cluster of flowers or a knot of black velvet ribbon.

Preparedness

A WOMAN of wealth, but who is nevertheless identified with civic work and a practicing lawyer, lately gave a talk before a mothers' club. Here is a part of what she said:

"There is one question to which every woman ought to be able to answer YES. It is this, "Can you earn a living if you should need to do?"

If there is one lesson more than another that has been emphasized in recent years it is that the untrained suffer most when a pinch comes. Another lesson that is not sufficiently understood is that there is practically no security in fortune.

Be prepared is advice for a woman as well as for a nation. Train your daughters, you mothers, to something that will pay a return sufficient at least for a livelihood. It can do no harm, and it may mean just the difference between happiness and misery in later life.

There is nothing more pathetic than the sight of some unfortunate woman, brought up to a competency and utterly unprepared to support herself, who has been suddenly reduced to poverty. We all know some such woman. Pottering along at things that are of no real use, at work given by pitying friends or strangers, more or less tinged by contact with a world that is foreign to her, sinking little by little to meaner surroundings and more desperate makeshifts, she at last disappears, sucked under in the maelstrom she has neither the strength nor the training to resist.

Surely you don't want to run even the faintest chance of becming such a derelict, you don't want your daughters to run any such risk. So be prepared. Be fit for something, trained to something, ready to take hold if you must. Know at least one thing so well that people will be glad to pay you for doing it. Be able to say YES if the world should ask you if you can figure fair value for a living. It is the right of human safeguards.

CARE OF YOUR NAILS

BY EDNA EGAN.

JUST watch me scrape the flakes of dead skin off the base of the nail with the cuticle knife. You don't feel any pressure, do you? You hardly know I am scraping.

"While I scrape I barely insert the tiny point of the knife—not the orange stick; that is too dull—under the edge of the fold of skin that comes over the base of the nail. I don't push or press back; I barely touch the joining and lift the fold ever so slightly. Remember that. When you push it back to loosen the skin from the nail, you stretch and break that dainty little fold and make the flesh just beyond puffy and red.

"The cuticle in manicuring sense means the skin around the nail, especially the little fold at the base, which makes a dainty finish below the half moon and must not be cut. There are jagged places on the rim of your cuticle that may be snipped off, just as I snip off nightly the hang nails and the bits of clinging skin that have been removed by the bleach or the knife. Never, never cut deep enough into the skin to make it bleed.

"Plenty of oiling is the thing to get the cuticle into good condition, smooth and even unbroken. Every night under the cuticle and under the free edge of the nail run a toothpick dipped in cream or oil. This process nourishes and softens the cuticle and nail, and prevents their adhering.

"Here's something more to remember. Each time you wipe your hands gently run the towel around the base of the nail to clear away the dead skin. Don't push down with the towel, rather wipe upward from the base to the tip.

"There! The cuticle is all snipped off. Now dip your fingers in the water, and watch me use the nail brush on them. I stroke downward, seldom across or upward. Now with the pumice stone or gritty soap rub stains or rough spots gently, but never let the rough surface touch the nail.

"Again the water and nail brush to clear away the polishing powder.

"Last of all, for the final brilliant polish I rub a dash of powder on the palm of the dry hand and finish off the nails with that."

THE KITCHEN

Cinnamon Cake.

Two cupfuls flour, yolks of two eggs, one cupful of sugar, lump of butter size of an egg, two teaspoonfuls ground cinnamon, two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Filling. Put through meat chopper one cupful raisins. Beat the whites of the two eggs thoroughly and add enough powdered sugar to make it stiff. Mix raisins with the eggs and sugar and put between layers. The frosting may be either of chocolate or plain white.

Fancy Salad.

Boil until tender one-half dozen carrots and one-half dozen beets; when cold chop fine. Chop one head cabbage fine. Season the chopped carrots with vinegar, sugar and salt and a little cinnamon; beets with vinegar, sugar, and salt; cabbage with one-half cup of cream, vinegar, sugar, and salt. Then put a circle of carrots in center of platter, then a ring of beets, then a ring of cabbage. A little parsley or lettuce leaves put around the outside of platter adds greatly to the appearance of the salad, a good and decorative dish to the table.

Steamed Blackberry Pudding.

Sift one cupful of flour into a basin, add one saltspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking powder; then gradually add two well beaten eggs and one pint of milk. Stir in one pint of blackberries which have been thoroughly dredged with flour. Pour at once into a greased mold, cover with a greased paper, and steam steadily for two hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Fruit Pies.

When making berry pies cut a tiny hole in the center of the top crust, and when ready to bake make a cornucopia of brown or any paper without printing and slip apex into hole and half way into the berries. This is an escape for all of the air, and your pie will not run over or bubble. Is this not worth the trouble?

Cinderella Cake.

Two eggs, one cupful of sugar, one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour, one gill cold water, one teaspoonful lemon juice, one teaspoonful baking powder, one tablespoonful chocolate, one-half glass jelly.

Beat yolks of eggs with sugar, add chocolate, and beat in whites of eggs, lemon juice, water, flour, and baking powder. Beat four minutes. Bake in two pans in moderate oven eighteen minutes. When done spread with jelly and ice with chocolate icing.

Sweet Potato Relish.

One of the best relishes for poultry or roast pork: Slice firm boiled potatoes, keeping the slices whole, arrange them in layers in a baking dish, smothering the layers in sugar and dotting them liberally with butter. Season with nutmeg or mace and a little white pepper. Almost cover with boiling water and set for two hours in a slow oven. As the water wastes add more a little at a time. The aim is to preserve the potato slices. When taken out there should be a rich syrup, half the depth of the dish. Good either hot or cold.

Cranberry Souffle.

Line a shallow tin with short crust and bake for twenty minutes. When cool, put a good layer of stemmed cranberries sprinkled well with sugar; then fill up with custard made with the yolk of two eggs and three-quarters of a cupful of milk, and return to the oven to set. Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, mix in two ounces of sugar, and beat again for a few minutes. Take the souffle from the oven, spread an even layer of the whites over the custard, put the remainder into an icing bag with tube and ornament. Put it back in the oven for a few minutes, but take great care it does not brown too much.

Fish Pie.

Take any canned fish and free from bones and skin. Flake the fish and season with pepper, adding a little lemon juice and also salt if necessary. Pare and slice four boiled potatoes and arrange in layers with the fish in a buttered baking dish, seasoning with salt and pepper, a tablespoonful of grated onion and minced parsley, if at hand. Add one tablespoonful of butter and cover with a baking powder biscuit dough cut into small pieces. A half-pint of boiling water is added to the fish before placing the dough on top. Bake until the biscuits are done. Serve with a white sauce or any left-over meat gravy at hand. To the white sauce add a chopped, sour pickle or olives.

Smothered Chicken.

A delicious dinner dish may be made at small cost of labor in this way: Cut up a medium sized chicken, sprinkle each piece with a little flour, and put them into a covered bean pot. Cover with water and season with a little salt and pepper. Bake slowly four or five hours. Then add five medium potatoes, two or three onions cut in pieces, and one-half cupful of peas previously cooked until nearly done, one-half cupful of chopped celery, and, if needed, a cupful of water. Cook until vegetables are done. If done as directed, the gravy will be thick and brown and delicious to taste. Serve hot.

Chowder.

Cut in dice form, to try out, half a pound of salt pork. Put in the bottom of a two gallon granite kettle. Cut up two pounds of fresh fish—cod, perch, or pickerel, cod preferred. Place a layer over the pork, then a layer of sliced potatoes. Eight medium sized potatoes to two pounds of fish. Slice four good sized onions and place a layer of them on the potatoes, season with salt and pepper, cover with hot water. Cook one hour and then add one quart of milk, and before serving add half a pound of Boston crackers that have been soaked two minutes in cold water.

Pecan Pie.

Line a pie pan with crust, and bake. Filling, cook one cupful of cream, one cupful of sugar, four eggs, saving the whites of two for meringue; one cupful of chopped pecan meats chopped fine. When this mixture thickens fill the crust and put on the meringue of the two whites of eggs beaten stiff, and sweeten. Sprinkle over meringue a few finely chopped pecan meats. Brown in oven.

WILSON WORKS TO LAST HOUR

Clears Away Official Business in Preparation for Honeymoon Trip.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Everything was ready today for the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt. Guests had arrived and decorations in Mrs. Galt's home, in which the ceremony will be performed tonight, were completed.

Members of the president's family attended at noon the christening of Ellen Wilson McAdoo, daughter of Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo and the president's only granddaughter. The christening was in the blue room of the white house. The president was godfather and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, the baby's aunt, and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, cousin of the president, were godmothers. The Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of the Johns Protestant Episcopal church here, christened the baby, who was born last May. The president's other granddchild, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sayre, was christened at Williamstown, Mass. The president acted as his godfather, too.

How President Spent Day.

The president paid an early morning call today on Mrs. Galt.

After a brief visit the president went to his bank, where he spent half an hour looking through his safe deposit box and going over some accounts.

One room at Mrs. Galt's home has been reserved for wedding presents. Many gifts have been received from strangers in spite of the efforts of the president and Mrs. Galt to discourage giving of presents from those outside of the circle of friends and relatives. Gifts continued to arrive at the white house today.

The president planned to devote the afternoon today to work and clearing up much official business before departing on his honeymoon trip. He will dine with members of his family at the white house about 7 p. m., and leave soon afterward for Mrs. Galt's home for the wedding ceremony.

Arrangements were complete for the ceremony which is to be solemnized at Mrs. Galt's home tonight. The members of the two families who are to be the wedding guests were present and decorators and florists had put the finishing touches on the rooms to be used.

RECORD BUSINESS DONE BY MERCHANTS

Tremendous Rush at the Stores on Last Saturday Before Christmas.

A new record was made by the merchants of Fort Wayne Saturday in the volume of business done on the last Saturday before Christmas. Throughout the entire day the stores were thronged with Christmas shoppers from all sections of northern Indiana.

As a matter of fact every kind of business in the city is on the boom and conditions are so much improved over the same period last year that there is really no comparison.

According to the bank officials the banking institutions are doing a greater volume of business than perhaps ever before in their history. The total footings of the First National, Old National, Hamilton National and German-American National banks are almost $15,000,000, and the footings of the four trust companies are nearly $9,000,000, making a total of $24,000,000.

The bank clearings for the week ending Saturday were $1,404,519.14, as compared with $1,246,116.53 for the same week last year and $1,287,058.70 last week. The clearings for each day of the week were as follows: Monday, $249,794.87; Tuesday, $227,870.33; Wednesday, $256,250.63; Thursday, $257,502.82; Friday, $196,962.82; Saturday, $216,077.17.

65 ACCIDENTS IN MONTH OF OCTOBER

During the month of October there was a total of sixty-five accidents of every kind on the city lines of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, as compared with thirty-two accidents in October of 1914. Notwithstanding the greatly increased number of accidents the figures for October, 1915, are surprising to the officials of the company, for they had expected even more than were reported, owing to the congested condition of the streets. In October, 1914, there were no jitney buses in operation, while in October, 1915, more than 100 of them were running every day, saying nothing of the increased number of private automobiles and other vehicles.

The report of accidents is as follows:

	1915.	1914.
Persons hurt alighting	1	4
Persons hurt boarding cars	0	3
Collisions with cars	8	1
Collisions with vehicles	14	11
Collisions with autos	42	13

Heavy Bail Demanded for Men Now Accused in Canal Plot.

New York, Dec. 18.—Paul Koenig, head of the bureau of investigation of the Hamburg-American line, and Richard Emil Leyendecker, a New York art goods retailer, were held in $50,000 and $30,000 bail, respectively today by United States Commissioner Houghton on a charge of conspiring to blow up the Welland canal. The hearing was set for Jan. 12. Counsel for Koenig and Leyendecker fought hard for a reduction of the bail asked by the government. In insisting on the higher bond Assistant United States Attorney Wood said: "The amount is not too large. The people back of these men can put up any amount of money that is needed."

The specific offense charged against Koenig and Leyendecker is conspiring to send a military expedition from this country against a friendly nation. Frederick Metzler, employed by the Hamburg-American line and said to have acted as stenographer to Koenig, who was also arrested with Koenig and Leyendecker, will be arraigned Monday.

Assistant United States Attorney Sarfaty said that information in possession of the government made it almost certain that additional arrests will be made throughout the country during the next few days. All of these he said would be in connection with the canal plot.

ELEVEN INJURED IN WRECK NEAR BRAZIL

Brazil, Ind., Dec. 18.—Eleven persons were injured, two seriously, today when the southbound passenger train on the Centerpoint branch of the Vandalia railroad was wrecked at a bridge three miles south of here.

Arthur C. Davis, engineer, and Dudley Miller, fireman, both of Brazil, were the more seriously hurt, but both will recover. The nine passengers hurt were said to have received only minor bruises.

The wreck was due to the engine tender leaving the track and pulling the rest of the train off. About 150 feet of track was torn up.

FORD PEACE PARTY TO FIND HOTELS CROWDED

Christiana, Norway, Dec. 18.—Efforts to make arrangements here for the reception of the Ford peace party, on its way here in steamship Oscar II, have failed. The hotels are crowded for the Christmas holidays and will not agree to reserve 168 beds from day to day while awaiting the arrival of the travelers.

The Christiana branch of the Clergymen's Peace association is considering plans to hold a prayer meeting for peace when the party arrives. Captain Totten, the American military attache at Copenhagen, is on the way to Christiana, the first port at which the Oscar II will touch. He denies his trip is connected with the Ford party.

VIENNA NOTE DENIES MUCH

Wilson Prepares Stronger Demand to Be Made on Austria.

Washington, Dec. 18.—The official text of Austria's reply to the American note on the Ancona, made public here today, reveals that the Vienna government denies that the views presented by the United States, even if correct, warrant the blame for the disaster being placed upon the commander of the submarine.

The reply denies also that blame can be placed upon the Austro-Hungarian government even if "a most rigorous legal construction were applied to the judgment of the case."

Professes Itself Puzzled.

The note also states that the Austro-Hungarian government is unable to determine what the United States intended to indicate when it mentioned the attitude which Germany had assumed toward submarine warfare. It adds that if the United States intended "to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed" with respect to "judicial consideration" of the affair the Vienna government declares that it reserves to itself "full freedom of maintaining its own legal view."

Except for slight variation in translation the remainder of the official text virtually is identical with the unofficial version cabled from London.

Door Not Closed.

It was agreed seemingly in official quarters that the official text did not minimize a realization of the gravity of the situation which was impressed on officials by the unofficial cables, but it also was apparent that the door to further negotiations was not closed.

While the state department was making the note public, President Wilson was at work in his study on the outline of a reply which will go forward some time next week.

The state department also made public an official text of the Austrian admiralty's statement previously published which admitted that the submarine fired on the Ancona after the ship had come to a stop and while passengers were still aboard. It was upon this official admission of the Austrian admiralty itself that the principal portion of the note was based.

Full Text of Austrian Reply.

The full text of Austria's reply to the American note on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona as made public today by the state department follows:

"American Embassy Vienna, Dec. 15, 1915. Secretary of State, Washington. Following note received from minister foreign affairs noon today:

"In reply to the much esteemed note number 4167 which His Excellency, Mr. Frederick Courtland Penfield, American ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the United States of America directed to him in the name of the American government under date of ninth inst. in the matter of the sinking of the Italian steamer Ancona the undersigned preliminary to a thorough, meritorious treatment of the demand, has the honor to observe that the sharpness with which the government of the United States considers it necessary to blame the commanding officer of the submarine concerned in the affair and the firmness in which the demand is addressed to the imperial and royal government appear to be expressed, might well have warranted the expectation that the government of the United States should precisely specify the actual circumstances of the affair upon which it bases its case.

Leaves Room for Doubt.

"As is not difficult to perceive the presentation of the facts in the case in the aforesaid note leaves room for many doubts and even if this presentation were correct in all points and the

NEXT CRISIS AT SALONIKI

Chief War Interest Now Centers on Bold Move by the Teutons.

London, Dec. 18.—The unprecedented military situation in Greece has developed a new crisis. The allied troops, which, according to the estimates of British newspapers, numbered 200,000, are fortifying themselves about Saloniki, digging trenches and placing guns. It is reported the Germans are preparing to advance into Greek territory to attack them.

Whether the Bulgarians also will cross the border is a vital question to the Greeks. It is believed a Bulgarian advance would rekindle old enmities and might draw the Greek people into the conflict.

The Greek general election will be held tomorrow, but it is not expected the result would have any controlling influence on the policy of the government. The party of former Premier Venizelos have refrained from putting candidates into the field and the soldiers under arms, constituting a large proportion of the electorate, will not vote. King Constantine remains indisposed.

Compelled to Attack.

HUNTED WITH FERRET AND IS ARRESTED

Charged with hunting rabbits with a ferret in violation of the game laws of the state, Bernard Bickle was arrested Friday by Deputy Warden James A. Connell. The alleged offense is said to have taken place on September 14. Bickle was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Henry J. Grabner at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Miss Morrison Fined.

Miss Morrison, who refused to give her first name, was found guilty Friday afternoon in the court of Justice August C. Nierman of assault and battery on Henry F. Bloemker and was fined $1 and costs. According to the testimony in the case Bloemker went to the Morrison meat market at Francis and Wayne street sto take some things that had been replevined. Miss Morrison objected to Bloemker's intrusion and proceeded to attack him with a stick of wood.

Peter Miller was found not guilty in the court of Justice Grabner, Friday afternoon, of the charge of public intoxication.

BAKERY WAGON TIES UP CAR TRAFFIC

Fort Wayne's street car system was sewed up like a seamless sock at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, when a Geller bakery wagon got jammed in the frog at Lewis and Calhoun streets. Inertia made the mare go after the wagon had stopped short, and it simply broke the tugs and cantered north along the street. The arm of the law, hanging at the good right side of Patrolman Charles Eisenhut, grabbed the dashing beast, and held it firm before it did any damage. However, eight northbound cars were held up before the wrecker arrived and succeeded in jacking the wagon from between the rails. Traffic northbound was held up half an hour.

SEVEN DEAD AT SPOKANE

VICTIMS PINNED LONG UNDER WATER

Seven Hurt in Bridge Disaster Which Costs Lives of Others.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 18.—Seven persons were killed and ten injured today when a street car went through the Division street bridge over the Spokane river.

The killed were in the car more than an hour after it went into the river. The injured were removed to a hospital.

Two street cars were on the bridge when the whole structure collapsed. One end of one car fell to the water and the other end rested on the abutment. The car crew and two passengers were rescued uninjured.

The other car, inbound and carrying about twenty passengers, fell into the river and a heavy steel beam crashed down lengthwise upon it, crushing passengers on one side of the car. Two

LONG UNDER SUSPICION

New York, Dec. 18.—Charged with conspiring in a military enterprise to destroy the Welland canal, the Canadian waterway which connects Lake Erie and Lake Ontario, three men are under arrest here today awaiting arraignment before a United States commissioner, while a fourth man is in the custody of the government authorities.

Those under arrest are: Paul Koenig, formerly head of the bureau of investigation of the Hamburg-American line, who, it is charged, has been the head of a German secret service in the United States since the beginning of the war; Richard Leyendecker, a retailer of art goods in this city, a naturalized American, alleged to have been employed by Koenig; Frederick Metzler, of Jersey City, reported to have been a clerk in the office of the Hamburg-American line and secretary to Koenig.

Held as Witness.

The fourth man held in custody is George Fuchs, who was formerly in Koenig's employ and who has given the authorities valuable information. So far as known he is not alleged to be a party to any conspiracy.

The arrests were made last night under the direction of Wm. M. Offley, head of the agents of the department of justice in New York, and A. Bruce Bielaski, head of the special investigators of that department. The complaint, made by Mr. Offley, alleges that Koenig and others went to Buffalo and Niagara Falls in September last to prepare means to destroy the canal "by force of arms."

Long Under Surveillance.

The three defendants, it was learned today, have been under surveillance for a year. The evidence which led to their arrests was given by George Fuchs, who, it is charged, quarreled with Koenig over the payment of $50 which he claimed Koenig owed him. Detectives employed by Captain Tunney, of the New York police department obtained Fuchs' statement and turned him over to Mr. Offley.

The purpose of the alleged attempt to block the canal was it is charged, to prevent the movement of supplies down the great lakes and through the Welland canal and St. Lawrence river to the entente allies.

The names of workers in San Francisco, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston and other cities are said to have been discovered among documents seized by the authorities in a raid upon the offices of Koenig and Leyendecker.

The penalty for the crime charged in this case is three years in prison or $3,000 fine or both. Koenig came into public notice last June when the affidavit of Gustav Stahl, averring that he had seen cannon on board the steamship Lusitania before she sailed on her fatal voyage, was submitted to the state department. It was Koenig who notified government authorities that Stahl could be found at Albany. The alleged plot to destroy the Welland canal recalls the attempt last February of Werner Horne, who said that he was a captain in the German army, to blow up the Canadian Pacific railroad bridge over the St. Croix river between Maine and New Brunswick. Horne is still awaiting trial.

GOOD ROADS EXHIBIT AT AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Through the efforts of Congressman Cyrus Cline the government's good roads exhibit will be shown at the automobile show to be held in this city from Jan. 10 to 15 in the new Riegel building on West Jefferson street and the Myers barn facing West Washington street. Announcement of this was made Friday evening at a meeting of the Fort Wayne Auto Dealers' association at the Commercial club.

The exhibit consists of photographs of good and bad highways and models of improved methods of constructing roads. Lectures will also be delivered by a government expert.

The board of works of the city has given the association permission to use the alley between the two buildings wherein the show will be held. The passageway will be enclosed. The association has decided not to issue a program.

QUIT CAPITOL FOR CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY

Washington, Dec. 18.—The capitol building, for the past two weeks the scene of congressional activity, today practically was deserted.

Virtually all the members of congress, following adjournment last night for the Christmas holidays, were homeward bound, not to return until the reopening on January 4.

One official act was the passage by the senate of the house joint resolution extending the emergency revenue law until Dec. 31, 1916. President Wilson, shortly afterwards, affixed his signature to the measure. Adoption of the resolution came after a lively partisan debate by a vote of 45 to 29. The measure had the full support of the democrats and the solid opposition of the republicans. When congress reconvenes the administration legislative program, including plans for national defense, will be undertaken in earnest.

Chester Stovall, Wabash electrician, returned yesterday after spending a few days in Toledo.

FLOOD WARNING IS GIVEN EVANSV'LLE

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 18.—With the Ohio river rising at a rate faster than has ever been known here, the local weather bureau this morning issued a flood warning instructing farmers to remove all property affected by the flood stage of 35 feet or over. The flood stage is expected here some time Monday.

The river early today registered 24.9 feet and was rising at the rate of eight tenths of a foot an hour. Thousands of bushels of corn, stacked on the river bank to be loaded on steamers, are endangered by the sudden rise in the river. Small streams in this vicinity, swollen by recent rains, are out of their banks, inundating farm lands.

ENGLAND CALLS OUT THE DERBY RECRUITS

London, Dec. 18.—(11:50 a. m.)—Four classes of recruits who enlisted under the Earl of Derby's plan, were called out today by royal proclamation.

All recruits on the Derby rolls, who did not enlist for immediate service were placed on the army reserve rolls and therefore the first call for service of four classes is made by the same formality as in the case of the old army reservists, who heretofore have been called to the colors. The appearance of placards to help with the royal arms caused a stir in the streets. The public infers that the Derby enlistment plan has been a success and that conscription at least is postponed. If it should develop that any large percentage of unmarried eligibles failed to enlist, it is expected they will be subjected to conscription, as foreshadowed by Premier Asquith, before any calls are made for married men who volunteered under the Derby plan. It is inferred the government intends to consider the first class, consisting of 18 year old boys, as corresponding to the class of 1917 in continental countries and will defer indefinitely putting them into training.

W. G. Rose Delivers Interesting Address on "Start Something."

"Start Something" was the subject of an interesting address delivered by William Ganson Rose, president of the Advertising club, of Cleveland, O., at the meeting of the Quest club Friday evening. The speaker declared that it is up to the successful man to take the initiative, to make the first move and make it right. When this is done it is very essential to follow it up with consistent play.

Henry C. Paul, president of the Old National bank, followed Mr. Rose in which he gave a concrete example of a young man's rise in the business world. He told of a young man coming to him six years ago for a position. There was nothing open to him, but he did not give up. He continued to call on Mr. Paul until he found him a position with the traction company. Today he is vice-president and general manager of three large traction companies with headquarters at Boise City, Idaho. That man, Mr. Paul said, was Mr. Dickey, well known in Fort Wayne, who is now only 28 years old.

Chicago Mayor Assails His Police Department

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Roused by a recent wave of crime, which has resulted in several murders and numerous robberies and hold-ups, Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson today charged the Chicago police department with shielding criminals, grafting and contributing to the orgy of crime.

"I know the police department is absolutely rotten," the mayor said. "It is honey-combed with grafters. I know criminals, hold-up men, murderers, pickpockets and thieves of all description known to the police are walking the streets every day and are not arrested.

"This is a terrible thing to say, but I would not be surprised to learn that in the department are men who have planned murder."

Mayor Thompson said he would immediately start a wholesale cleaning up of the police department and rid it of crooks, "even though it costs me my life." Nicholas Hunt, former inspector of police, who, for the last few years has been at the head of a private detective agency, will be installed as head of the detective bureau of the police department, according to reliable information, succeeding Captain John Halpin, who last week was convicted of grafting in offering protection to swindlers.

Mayor Thompson said he had no intention of removing Chief of Police Charles C. Healey.

"Chief Healey has been making an honest effort to make the entire force honest," the mayor said, "and I propose to back him up."

SALVATION ARMY W.LL DISTRIBUTE BASKETS

Hope to Raise $500 for Benefit of Poor of the City.

More than one hundred families will be made glad on Christmas through the Salvation Army, which is now busily engaged raising the necessary funds whereby it may bring happiness to as many homes as possible. Adjutant Charles S. Biddle is desirous of raising $500, but up to the present time the response to the Army's appeal for funds has not been as generous as in former years. He hopes, however, that the deficiency may be made up during the coming week. Five kettles have been placed at the busiest street corners and up to Friday these had only netted about $100. He hopes to raise over $200 in this manner and the remaining amount in soliciting and in other ways.

The Salvation Army will fill one hundred baskets with roast meat, potatoes, apples, canned goods, coffee, flour, jelly and bread amounting in value to approximately $2 for each basket. These will be distributed among the most needy. On Tuesday evening following Christmas the poor children of the city will be given a treat.

DR. GEISEL TO SPEAK TO SCHOOL PATRONS

Will Deliver Series of Lectures on Jan. 12, 13 and 14.

Dr. Carolyn E. Geisel, of Battle Creek, Mich., has been secured to deliver a series of lectures before the school patrons of the city, January 12, 13 and 14, 1916.

Dr. Geisel is a wonderful speaker. She spoke before the teachers' institute of this county the first week in September at the high school and completely won the approval of the city's teaching force. She has a national reputation as a skilled physician and as a platform speaker on helth topics.

Dr. Geisel has been secured by the united efforts of all the Parent-Teacher clubs in the city. Parents and their friends are urged to make arrangements to hear this gifted woman. Announcement will be made later of the hour and place of the lectures.

The course is to be thrown open to parents and their friends and no charge will be made either at the door or collection. The vast number represented by the Parent-Teacher clubs or the city, which means all patrons of the schools, twelve to fifteen thousand in all, make it possible to bring a lecturer of such prominence to the city on such terms.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

Mrs. Grace Mulligan Ends Life by Plunging From Fire Escape at Kendallville.

Kendallville, Ind., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Grace Mulligan, 43 years old, of Rockville, Ind., committed suicide here yesterday afternoon by leaping from a fire escape on the third floor of a school building during a Christmas entertainment. Her daughter, 14 years old, clung to the woman's skirts and fought frantically to prevent the plunge. The child's pleading cries brought assistance too late. Mrs. Mulligan came to this city Thursday night to visit her sister, Miss Jennie Blatchley, a teacher in the school. While the children's entertainment was in progress she slipped upon the fire escape unobserved by any one except her daughter. She died three hours after her plunge. The woman's mind is believed to have been unbalanced.

INDICTED AS LAZY HUSBAND.

Frank Trout, of Bluffton, First Man of That County to Be Arrested.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 18.—Frank Trout, a well known local man, was arrested yesterday on a grand jury indictment, charged with failure to make necessary provision for his family, the indictment alleging virtually the same charges made in the affidavits for child neglect or failure to provide, it being alleged that he is the father of minor children, for whom he fails to supply the necessities of life, in the way of clothing, provisions, etc. The indictment is drawn, however, specifically under an act passed by the last legislature, entitled the "Lazy Husband Act."

The law provides a penalty, upon conviction, of a fine not to exceed $500, and a sentence not to exceed six months in a jail or workhouse, in the latter case meaning at the state penal farm. The court may suspend sentence. Trout's bond was fixed at $100, and if he desires an immediate trial Judge Eichhorn said yesterday afternoon that he would be given a trial at this term of court.

WAS BORN IN FORT WAYNE.

Alexander McClure, Almost 77 Years in DeKalb County, is dead.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 18.—Alexander McClure, for over three-quarters of a century a resident of DeKalb county and for fifty years an occupant of the farm where he died, passed away at his home in Keyser township. He had been in poor health for a year, but his condition did not become serious until two weeks ago. Had Mr. McClure survived until Monday he would have been 77 years old. The deceased was born in Fort Wayne on December 18, 1838. When but four months of age his mother died and he was brought to DeKalb county to make his home with his grandfather in Butler township in the part now known as Keyser township. After his marriage to Miss Sarah J. Swihart he moved on an adjoining farm and has ever since made his home there. Three children were born to the union, Mrs. J. L. Grubb, of Auburn; W. W. McClure, of Garrett, an engineer on the Baltimore & Ohio, and Sam'l McClure, who lives in another house located on the old somestead.

ADAMS COUNTY PIONEER DIES.

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 18.—Karl Krueckeberg, one of the best known pioneer residents of Adams county, died at his home in Union township Friday at the age of almost 81 years. He was born in Germany and was brought by his parents to America in 1840. The family lived for a time in Fort Wayne, where the father was engaged in the tailoring business, in which the son, Karl, assisted. They came soon after to Preble township, this county, to reside. Karl Krueckeberg was married in 1860 to Caroline Kleinschmidt and they later moved to Union township. Mrs. Krueckeberg died two years ago. The surviving children are Fred Krueckeberg, Mrs. Wilhelmine Thieme, Ernest Krueckeberg and Charles Krueckeberg, who reside in Van Wert county, Ohio. Thirty-two grandchildren and six great grandchildren survive. The funeral will be held Sunday.

CITY TREE FOR LAGRANGE.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 18.—Arrangements have been completed for a municipal Christmas tree, in line with other up-to-date cities. A giant pine tree has been secured from Mrs. Mary Schermerhorn, on South Detroit street, which has been erected at the intersection of Detroit and Spring streets. It is to be wired and decorated with colored electric lights and kept lighted throughout the holiday season. Miss Mildred Gilliams is the moving spirit in the joyous enterprise and is being ably assisted by a committee of business and professional men of which Dr. D. W. Dryer is the energetic chairman. The plan is to have a big celebration on Christmas eve, to which all the people of the county are invited.

TO PLANT MUNICIPAL TREE.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 18.—It looks now as if a municipal Christmas tree would be a fixed feature hereafter in Auburn. Persons who favored the plan started the movement Friday to transplant a large evergreen tree on the west lawn of the court house square near Main street. Mrs. Adams Richey of Franklin township, is the owner of a place near Woodlawn cemetery on which a number of large evergreen trees are growing and she has generously donated the finest tree in her grove for that purpose. All that was then needed was the consent of the county commissioners and this was secured from E. A. Bordner, chairman of the board.

MONTPELIER FAIR IN TROUBLE

Montpelier, Ind., Dec. 18.—Following in the wake of a court of inquiry, Charles Oliver and Nellie Vernon, of this city, were arrested on charges of illegal association. They were given a hearing in Mayor Neal's court and both pleaded not guilty. Each was placed under $50 bonds. They will have their trial January 5. At the present time a divorce case is pending in the courts against Oliver. The Vernon woman, who was formerly Mrs. Nellie Huffman, of Keystone, has secured a divorce from her husband. In the case of William Montgomery, who was arrested in Fort Wayne and brought here on a charge of beating a board bill at the Vernon home, he was not tried on the charge, but was placed under a $50 bond to appear in the Oliver Huffman case. His case will come up later for a hearing.

DIES GETTING OUT OF BED.

Kendallville, Ind., Dec. 18.—While in an effort to crawl out of bed shortly before 7 o'clock, at his home, 418 Matthews street, Victor Twitchell fell over dead. A stroke of apoplexy was the cause. Wednesday he suffered a light stroke which had affected him somewhat, but his condition was not regarded as serious. Victor Twitchell was 47 years, 6 months and 5 days of age. For some years he had followed the vocation of a nurse, but was compelled to give up the work following his illness of a year ago. Surviving besides a widow are three children, Basil, Leon and Ollen.

TEAM ATTACKED BY BOAR.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 18.—While working with a team in a corn field where a number of hogs were running at large, Oliver Prough, of Newbury, had a valuable mare ruined by an attack of a large boar which suddenly became vicious. The hog rushed under the team and with its tusks severed the arteries in the horse's leg, just above the hoof, and the animal came near bleeding to death before it could be gotten to the barn where the wound could be bandaged. The hog had never shown any vicious tendencies before and the attack was wholly unexpected.

TRAIN CLIMBERS IMMUNE.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 18.—The arrest of persons who are charged with train riding has become a burden on the taxpayers of DeKalb county and it has not resulted in checking the evil. Ninety per cent of the inmates of the county jail are held on this charge and the prisoners are fed and kept warm at the expense of the taxpayers. Prosecutor J. R. Nyce has had it in mind to call a halt on this useless expense and Thursday he addressed a letter to the chief of the B. & O. police force, announcing that hereafter he will decline to prosecute such cases.

DIFFICULTY WITH FAIR DATES

Van Wert, Ohio, Dec. 18.—Difficulty is being experienced in deciding on the dates for the Van Wert County fair in 1916. The fair is held ordinarily the week following the Ohio State fair, but so far the dates for the state fair have not been fixed on account of a conflict with the dates of the Indiana state fair. Secretary Walborn is now having prepared the list of premiums for the schools exhibit for the fair next year and in a short time they will be mailed out. It was impossible to state the exact date of the fair and hence the premium list was printed with the date as being the week following the Ohio state fair.

WASHBURN LEFT NO WILL.

BERT HAND IN BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 18.—Deputy Sheriff George Albright arrived in Bluffton late Friday afternoon, bringing with him Bert Hand, who is wanted here to answer a criminal assault charge and who was surrendered to the Wells county officers last week after several months fight against extradition through the California courts.

Hand says that he is innocent and that he will make a fight in the local courts.

VOTE FOR SUNDAY THEATERS.

Huntington, Dec. 18.—Of 355 votes cast in the Huntington motion pictures shows only fifty-three were registered against Sunday exhibitions. Thus far an overwhelming number of the "movie" patrons have been in favor of Sabbath shows. T. Guy Perfet, manager of the shows, was not disconcerted by the stand Prosecutor A. H. Sapp has taken against Sunday film exhibits. Nor did he evince any great concern over the fact that the Ministerial association had called a meeting to discuss the Sunday opening plan.

GOVERNOR HOLDS PRISONER

Van Wert, Ohio, Dec. 18.—Contrary to the report circulated Thursday, Governor Ferry, of Michigan, has not given out extradition papers for the return of Alonzo Elliot to Van Wert county to answer to a grand jury indictment for non-support. He honored the requisition papers but will not issue papers for the extradition of Elliot until after a hearing is held Monday on the habeas corpus proceeding instituted at Adrian, where Elliot is now in jail.

CONFER ON ROAD NUMBERING

Van Wert, O., Dec. 18.—County Highway Superintendent Mollenkopf has been in Lima, conferring with the highway superintendent of Allen county in regard to the new numbering system being worked out for all of the roads of the county. The work on the system for Van Wert county is progressing well and will be completed in a short time. The Allen county surveyor adopted the numbers arranged by Mr. Mollenkopf for all roads on or near the county line on which it was necessary to reach an agreement.

DECATUR MASONS ELECT

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 18.—Election of officers for the Masonic lodge, resulted in the selection of David E. Smith, master; L. L. Baumgartner, senior warden; R. D. Meyers, junior warden; E. B. Adams, secretary; G. T. Burk, treasurer and J. H. Heller, trustee. A house committee to have charge of the club and assembly rooms of the new home consist of W. P. Schrock, Roy Archbold, J. S. Peterson, Charles Ernst and Fred Patterson.

A SCHOOL GIRL'S EXPERIENCE

Hartford City, Ind., Dec. 18.—Miss Alma Stump, a student at the North Ward school, was sent home when it was learned that she had been sitting in her classes for some time in a semi-conscious condition as a result of a fall which she took upon the icy pavement, on her way to school. On being questioned at home, Miss Stump said that she did not remember of having been in school.

INDIANA ELOPERS WED.

Hillsdale, Ind., Dec. 18. These elopers from Indiana have been married at the court house here this week by Justice C. M. Weaver: Thomas Gaff and Miss Maud E. Bennet, both of Collins, Ind.; Homer D. Birkhold, of Edgerton, Allen county, Ind., and Miss Gladys I. Stanger, of Antwerp, Ohio. Forrest Chase and Miss Florence B. Hendershot, both of Auburn, Ind., were married at the Presbyterian manse by Rev. J. W. Will.

HUNTINGTON CLAIMS 15,000

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 18.—According to figures from the slips collected by the city mail carriers in the last six weeks, Huntington has 14,111 inhabitants who are served by the postoffice directly. It is estimated that there are enough living in the city that are not served by the carriers to make the population more than 15,000. These figures agree fairly well with the telephone census, and with the figures of E. Q. Drummond.

PREACHER'S NARROW ESCAPE

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 18.—Rev. W. F. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church, was overcome by partial asphyxiation in the garage at his home at Guilford and Washington streets. Gas, which had formed from burned gasoline from the automobile engine, was responsible for the severe illness that attacked him.

ADAIR OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN AT PERU

Defends Administration in First Speech as Candidate for Governor.

Peru, Ind., Dec. 18.—Representative John A. M. Adair made his first address at a political meeting since the announcement of his candidacy for the democratic nomination for governor when he spoke last night at a meeting of Miami county Democrats in the Moose hall here.

Mr. Adair referred to the necessity of the democratic party organizing early under the new primary law, declaring it the duty of every citizen to take part in politics.

"There are those who say that there is too much corruption in politics for them and for that reason they refuse to become active in the work. These men should assist in the primaries and help to purify politics. The citizen who thus fails to discharge his duty has no right to complain as long as he neglects and refuses to take a part in the organization and primary plans. It is the duty of every citizen to take part in politics whether he favors any one candidate or not.

Upholds Administration.

"There is not a single act of the present democratic administration but that every democrat can defend. The legislation passed has been a success from every standpoint. The opposition would not dare to say to the people if successful they would repeal the income tax law, which lifts a burden of nearly $100,000,000 off the shoulders of the average man and places it on the wealth of the country, where it properly belongs.

"Neither would they dare to propose to repeal the new currency law, which takes the control of money and fixes the interest rates out of the hands of Wall street and places it with the people. Neither would our opposition dare to propose to take away the right to vote direct for United States senators. In fact there is no legislation passed by this administration that the republicans would dare to repeal except the Underwood tariff law, and I honestly believe I can drive any republican off the platform in a discussion of that law.

"It has not closed a single factory in the United States nor thrown a single workingman out of employment. Under this law the country is more prosperous than it ever has been. More goods are being made than ever before and more men are employed and have been during the year 1915 than were ever before employed in the nation's history.

Superior Revenue Producer.

"As a revenue producer it has been far superior to any other tariff law ever enacted. The first nine months under the Underwood bill before the war broke out it produced twenty-seven millions more revenue than the Payne-Aldrich bill produced during the same months the year before. If the European war would close this tariff law would produce more revenue as it now stands than will be required to pay the running expenses of the government.

"As a matter of course, while the war continues, importations will not come in, and therefore it will be absolutely necessary to provide some other form of taxation until the war ends and conditions become normal. Our opposition would not dare to propose a re-enactment of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, upon which they lost every state in the union except Vermont and Utah."

WILL MEET NEXT WEEK.

The apprentice printers' night class at the Harmar school will meet Monday and Wednesday, Dec. 20 and 22, for the final class before the brief holiday vacation. The classes thus far have been largely attended and excellent progress in all branches of instruction given is reported by those in charge of the work.

"GIVING"

That's the best part of Christmas; receiving is second. When you think about giving, you think most of the one who is to receive; you study the gift from that point of view. When you give what somebody wants; something unique, valuable for utility and durability, you've done the thing perfectly. Here are but a few of the many suggestions we have to offer you.

COLUMBIA AND CLINTON STS.

By Willis S. Thompson

Indianapolis, Dec. 18.—L. Ert Slack has been selected by Senators Kern and Shively to succeed Frank C. Dailey, who has resigned as United States district attorney. Rumor has pointed to Mr. Slack's appointment since the first intimation that Mr. Daily though of retiring to become a member of a leading Indianapolis law firm. This being the case, there has been a chance to hear much comment from all factions in and out of the democratic party.

Nothing but commendation of the senators in making this choice has been heard. And that he should have been selected is the more flattering to L. Ert Slack, because the first intimation he had of Mr. Dailey's intention to quit was when he received the offer of the appointment from the two senators. It came to him without solicitation on his part, with no recommendation or urging from anyone, and when no one save the two senators knew a vacancy was likely to occur. So there are no disappointed candidates.

L. Ert Slack has been a conspicuous figure in the democratic party of Indiana for a number of years. He has been one of the democrats who has always been in the fight, when his services were needed. In the contest which was waged for the democratic nomination for governor in the state convention of 1908, and in which Thomas R. Marshall was the nominee, Slack and Ralston were the two who came at once to the front to congratulate Thomas R. Marshall and assure him privately and in the public prints of all the support possible in his campaign. Slack has been as good a loser as any democrat who ever aspired although he has no long list of failures to his credit.

He has been engaged in the practice of the law for eighteen years, graduating from the Indiana Law School in 1897 and opening his office in his home town of Franklin. Two years ago he came to Indianapolis because of the larger field. He is one of the members of the board of trustees of the Central Hospital for the Insane, having been appointed to that position by Governor Ralston.

He was a member of the legislature in 1901 and when he returned in 1903 he became the minority floor leader in the house. He served in the state senate in the sessions of 1905 and 1907 and in 1908 was a candidate for the nomination for governor. In 1909 he became a candidate for United States senator when Benjamin F. Shively was elected, and although not a candidate he received some votes when Kern was elected in 1911. He has also served as deputy prosecutor and as county attorney for Johnson county. He has a wide acquaintance over the state and is generally popular and his legal ability well recognized.

If what one hears of a victor can be fully relied upon and in this case there appears no doubt of the genuine sentiment, the two senators could not have agreed upon a more satisfactory selection as the successor to Frank C. Dailey.

Isaiah 30:27-33.

27 Behold, the name of the Lord cometh from far, burning with his anger, and the burden thereof is heavy: his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire:

28 And his breath, as an overflowing stream, shall reach to the midst of the neck, to sift the nations with the sieve of vanity: and there shall be a bridle in the jaws of the people, causing them to err.

29 Ye shall have a song, as in the night when a holy solemnity is kept; and gladness of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe to come into the mountains of the Lord, to the mighty One of Israel.

30 And the Lord shall cause his glorious voice to be heard, and shall shew the lighting down of his arm, with the indignation of his anger, and with the flame of a devouring fire, with scattering, and tempest, and hailstones.

31 For through the voice of the Lord shall the Assyrian be beaten down, which smote with a rod.

32 And in every place where the grounded staff shall pass, which the Lord shall lay upon him, it shall be with tabrets and harps: and in battles of shaking will he fight with it.

33 For Tophet is ordained of old; yea, for the king it is prepared; he hath made it deep and large: the pile thereof is fire and much wood; the breath of the Lord, like a stream of brimstone, doth kindle it.

Causes of Industrial Unrest.

Expert conclusions as to the causes of industrial unrest in America, a subject which has been under deep study by political economists during the past two or three years, are significantly summed up in a report just made by W. Jett Lauck, for the special United States commission on Industrial Relations. The fundamental causes of industrial unrest are set forth by Mr. Lauck as follows:

"The constant increase in the level of prices during recent years, resulting in a decline in real wages, very marked in this country and abroad.

"Inequalities in the distribution of the output of industry, due the co-ordination of industry; the increasing use of machinery, and the improvement of facilities for transportation and communication; and, coincident with this, 'the subordination of the industrial worker to machinery and the consequent weakening of his bargaining power.'

"Unrestricted immigration, which has enormously increased the labor supply, checked age advances by lowering the standard of living and intensifying unemployment.

"The uncontrolled issuance of stocks and bonds in all industries, including railroads, resulting in the absorption by interest and dividend. requirements of fictitious securities of the increased productivity of the laborer.

The insecurity of employment to workers in mines and mills.

"The growing physical and nervous pressure placed on industrial workers.

"Lack of accident and sickness insurance, impairing the efficiency of the worker.

"Women and child labor.

"Control of industrial communities by corporations.

"Excessive hours of work.

"Lack of organization for collective bargaining among the workers.

"Lack of aspiration for advancement on the part of many workers, chiefly recent immigrants from southern and eastern Europe."

Enough of them, aren't there? Doubtless, also, Mr. Lauck is correct in most of his conclusions. But of quite as much importance is his further conclusion that the remedy is not to be found wholly in legislation. Laws can at best merely aid in directing economic forces into their proper channels. We shall have a better order of things only as we develop an increasing consideration for the rights of others, even if it shatters traditions on which some have climbed while others have merely endured.

A rather remarkable ordinance just passed by the council at Terre Haute will attempt to regulate the cigar store "smoke houses" in which card games are played and in which are found slot machines, tables, alleys and other devices for sports and games. The ordinance, said to be the first of its kind passed in Indiana proposes to exact a license of $25 a year, and as it will affect from 150 to 175 places it is figured that it will bring Terre Haute a revenue of from $4,000 to $5,000 per year. Mayor Gossom has refused to approve the ordinance, and likewise declines to veto it, so that at the end of ten days it will become a city law there. The ordinance will produce revenue, it is true, but its effect will be vicious because its license feature gives apparent legal sanction to cigar-store gambling that is all too prevalent both in Terre Haute and in practically every other Indiana city. Twenty-five dollars a year license fee is a bargain price to pay for the rich picking that comes from the harvest of the petty gambling privilege in a "smoke house" that caters to this sort of business.

Figures just given out at Indianapolis show that a total of 96,915 licenses for automobiles have been issued in Indiana during the present year, which number is an increase of something over 80,000 above the figures for 1914. It would now be interesting to know whether the Indiana township assessors are as proficient at counting automobiles as is the secretary of state, who issued those rose-tinted numeral tags which have adorned the motor cars in Indiana this year.

The breach between the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and the National American Woman Suffrage Association continues to widen, and these rival organizations promoting the cause of the ballot for woman are making faces and calling each other names. Mr. Ford overlooked a splendid chance to get a bit of practice at restoring peace by tackling this poblem at home before he sailed away to take up the troubles of others.

The Fort Wayne man who, as a practical joke, was given some supposedly valueless mining stock that now turns out to be worth approximately $1,000, doubtless figures that at the rate he can afford to be the butt of still another practical joke of the same sort.

Still, there is always the possibility that nobody would have invited Colonel Roosevelt to that republican national convention in Chicago next year, anyway

TOO LATE! TOO LATE!

COLONIES A COMMERCIAL FIZZLE

(Grand Rapids Press).

No news from Spain except good news. Spain is doing very nicely, thank you, since we relieved her of the burden of overseas dominions. The reports from that ancient kingdom indicate steady material developments and sound financing, despite the strain put upon the treasury by the war. The king busies himself with the welfare of prisoners, grows more popular daily and leaves the heavy affairs of state to ministers more disposed to develop the country than quarrel with each other, a new and tonic temper in the lands of the Dons.

Spain's rejuvenation since 1898 has been remarkable, attracting the attention of economists and students of politics. The anti-imperialists draw much comfort from her rise in capacity and estate. They consider Spain's improved condition final proof of the proposition that colonies cost more than they earn. With us that is a settled proposition as we make no effort to draw revenue from subject peoples, but Spain for centuries believed that colonies were assets. Her balance sheet since 1808 demonstrates, however, that the taxes turned into the Madrid treasury during the latter part of her colonial era were more than offset by the cost of administering and policing the colonies.

From the economic standpoint the colonial system is a fizzle. If the market is thrown open to traders of all nations there is no advantage in controlling it: if closed the development of the market is retarded so that there is little money for anyone in exploiting it. As outposts and military depots colonies serve the ends of empire, but there their utility ceases. If England could separate herself from all colonies and remain the sole great free trader among the nations London still would continue to be the commercial and financial center of the planet.

THE FOOD OF THE GODS

(Toledo Blade).

After long experiments with animals, a Philadelphia scientist makes the announcement:

"We have it in our power to say whether an animal shall do its growing in youth or old age, or whether it shall have several periods of growth. This being true, it is not too much to expect that the ultimate outcome of such work will be the scientific control of the forces of organic growth even in human beings."

The little excitement over eugenics has died away. People had an interesting time with this branch of science so long as it seemed a fairly simple subject. But when they got deeper into it and found it full of tough problems and baffling complexities as a bushel of potatoes, they dropped it and took up subjects less consuming of brain tissue. However, their heart's desire may be realized yet. The race of supermen may possibly be obtained another way than through applied eugenics. With the Philadelphia scientist's food of the gods, children can be fed, short-length adults can be dicted, the slow-growing and non-growing can be victualed, and we will have a race of giants.

M'NAMARA LAWYER WINS LIBEL SUIT

Bests General Otis in a Court Action at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Dec. 18.—Attorney Joseph Scott, of Los Angeles, made famous by the celebrated McNamara case, recently won a libel suit against Gen. Harrison Grey Otis, owner of the Los Angeles Times, the newspaper plant dynamited by Jim McNamara and a confederate. Attorney Scott sued Otis for $100,000 because of articles published in the Times relating to his connection with the divorce case of Bessie O. Hillman against Clarence Dayton Hillman, formerly of Seattle. Scott was awarded $1,000.

Attorney Joseph Scott

"This suit is the culmination of a series of attacks against me by the Times, covering a period of four years because of my connection with the McNamara defense," said the attorney. "Otis had instructed his paper to investigate and criticize my public utterances and my actions in court. I did not mind him fighting me in politics or criticizing my public career, but when he tried to take the roof off my house by attacking my profession I decided it was time to let a jury look into the matter."

Scott was recently awarded $30,000 from the Times for libel and the question of payment is now in the supreme court. Another Scott libel suit against the Otis paper will come to trial in January.

It was reported that the Times would appeal the decree of this last case to the state supreme court.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

What the Sentinel Had to Say About Persons and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Christmas trees are already much in demand.

The Fort Wayne Electric company will make a display at the world's fair in Chicago.

The new houses in Lakeside now number twenty-six and twice as many more will be erected next season.

Taylor university now has an excellent attendance of students and is rapidly working its way to the front as an educational institution.

The evergreen tree placed at the corner of Calhoun and Berry streets by Manager James Geary, of the museum, attracts a great deal of attention.

Louis Heilbroner, who is considerable of a sporting man, has a game fighting cock which he is anxious to match against any bird in the city for a purse.

M. M. M. Slattery, the electrician of the Fort Wayne Electric works, has made a nice wager with a friend that he will have a street car equipped with his new storage battery in operation on the streets of Fort Wayne by the end of the year.

Dr. J. S. Irwin, superintendent of the Fort Wayne public schools, says that the crowded condition of the schools call for new buildings and wings next spring. There are 560 odd children crowded into the Bloomingdale building and it will be urged upon the school board that a new school house be built in the neighborhood of Huffman street.

A man who gives the name of John Harder and his home as New York, was arrested last night at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for molesting women on the streets and as he answers the description of the miscreant who was guilty of a mysterious and sensational series of offenses here for several days prior to last night it is believed that he is the wretch who performed in Fort Wayne.

A Timely and Fitting Suggestion

Christmas is only a few days away. Once again the annual eternal question of "what to give" stares you in the face. You desperately think of this, that and the other thing, yet you can decide on nothing that will particularly please the whole family.

You do not want to give the average expected gift. On the contrary, you are only too anxious to do something out of the ordinary—if you could but think of it.

So here's a thought. Give them a fine, big, useful and beautiful Overland Six! Present it yourself Christmas morning. Don't tell a soul. Just drive up to the house on the quiet; call them all out; point to the dandy new Overland and say: "It's yours!" Then watch their loving faces light up with joy and delight. It will, without question, be the best Christmas, by far, of their entire life!

Besides the Overland Six there are two four-cylinder Overlands—the graceful, light and economical Model 75 at $615 and the larger Model 83 at $750. Roadsters are $595 and $725, respectively.

The Willys-Knight, with its quiet sleeve-valve motor, comes in four styles—the Touring Car at $1095; Roadster at $1065; Coupe at $1500 and Limousine at $1750. All cars are priced f. o. b. Toledo.

It will not obligate you in any way to learn more about any or all of them. Call, telephone or write us.

We Can Give You Immediate Delivery on the Car You Select

Don't wait any longer---have an OVERLAND this Christmas. If you wish to buy a car on Easy Terms, we will arrange it that way for you.

MORE THAN 200 AIR BATTLES RECENTLY

Air Strategy on Western War Front Has Made Much Change.

London, Dec. 10.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—German air strategy has changed since last May, when, for a period of some months, few German aeroplanes appeared near the allied lines on the western front. But the latest reports from Sir John French show that more than 200 air battles have been fought recently with the British aviators, by whom sixteen German aeroplanes were brought down. These included several new types, besides the familiar Taube.

The new types the Germans have been experimenting with are modeled on the battleplane idea. One of these was a big heavily armed biplane with twin bodies and two or three engines. But it did not seem to be entirely successful, as it was rather slow and unwieldy. Next to appear were two very similar biplanes of the ordinary tractor type with single, but very powerful engines. The two used to chase up and down the German lines at a terrific speed and with an unusual amount of noise, apparently to frighten away British airmen. Apparently they impressed the Germans as useful, as more of the same type made their appearance. Machine guns fore and aft, the range of the first limited by the propeller and the after gun having a clear field in an upward direction, gave them a certain formidableness as scouts. Several of these were brought down by both British and French, but their numbers have nevertheless continued to increase of late. They keep largely to their own lines which seems to be the German plan of air strategy.

The German plan is obviously to destroy the greatest number of enemy aeroplanes, with a minimum loss to themselves. They do this by enticing the foe over their own lines. It is an immense advantage to fight an adversary over one's own lines, as the airman not only has the support of high angle guns below but can land within his own territory in case of injury to himself or his machine.

A WORTH WHILE EVENT IN MUSICAL CIRCLES

It "means business" when the "Big Store" takes hold of anything. It means "a go" every time. It has the capital, the space, the skilled assistants and every other requisite for success.

When, therefore, the announcement was made that it had taken the agency of the "Edison Diamond Disc" and the Aeolian Co.'s "Vocalion"—the two leaders in tone and general excellence of all Disc Machines—the Fort Wayne public took immediate "notice."

Miss F. Eugenia Michaels, a graduate in music, and the organist at the First Baptist church in this city, has been placed at the head of the New Department, and she extends a cordial invitation to all citizens of Fort Wayne and adjoining cities and towns to visit the department on the first floor of the Foster Furniture Company, no matter whether they do or do not want a machine. Bring in your friends who may be visiting you and treat them to the privilege of hearing the "Edison Diamond Disc." You will always receive a cordial welcome.

Get the machine which reproduces the human voice so accurately that you find great difficulty in distinguishing between the machine and the actual voice of the singer, and if you decide to buy an Edison, but it at Foster's, where they have the latest improved and the latest styles of cases. Terms of deferred payments given, if required. All the latest records in stock.

Take special note of this statement: The Edison plays all the records of the Columbia, Victrola and other lateral disc machines, by the use of an extra needle arm, and plays them with all the Edison clearness of expression, so if you have a stock of records of other machines they are equally good, yes better, for playing upon the Edison.

New York, Dec. 18.—Here it is—the Polymuriel—the gown that won the $150 prize in the national contest for the best universal dress for women!

The Polymuriel, if you don't already know, is a dress that a woman can wear in the mornings, for ordinary wear or for business and then, presto, with but a few slight changes can be transformed, almost instantly, into a gown suitable for social and formal affairs.

Jessie Rosefield

The Polymuriel is an American gown for American women!

The award was made in June but since then a special committee of famous designers has had to meet to make several minor changes in costume before it was given final official approval as the new universal dress for American women.

Now for the first time, the Daily Sentinel is able to make public a picture and description of the now famous dress. Here is the first authentic description of it:

The under part is made in two pieces which opens down the front to waistline for putting on. The smocking which is shown in the accompanying illustration, allows for fullness over the bust. The yoke, panel, belt and tunic are made in one piece and detachable for the purpose of reversing.

The plain side aided by attractive collar and cuffs is suitable for business or ordinary wear. The underside can be braided in soutache of gold or some contrasting color and when reversed makes a neat and dressy custome for social and formal affairs.

It can be made in almost any material at small cost but black crepe meteor is suggested for general use. The length of the dress is left to the judgment of the wearer.

Believing a universal dress just as necessary for women as the sack suit is for men, Mrs. Mildred Johnston Landone and some other New York clubwomen decided last spring to offer $150 as a national prize for the best design for a Polymuriel.

Thousands of designs were submitted and after weeks spent in going over them the judges finally awarded the prize to Miss Jessie M. Rosefield, a 20-year-old New York girl.

The Polymuriel winner is a modest, pretty young woman, who studies in an art class in the morning and in the afternoon conducts her own tiny studio for the designing of original artistic fashions.

She is a suffragista and believes in free votes for women as well as free skirts. She is an American through and through and staunchly believes "made in America" gowns are the equal if not better than Paris fashions.

"One important point about my Polymuriel is that it does not call for corsets," declares Miss Rosefield. "Even a stout woman can wear it gracefully without support."

A statement was issued Saturday by the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company setting forth what the traction company has done for Fort Wayne. The statement shows that the company has paid out and expended for street paving alone in the city of Fort Wayne the sum of $333,583.21 and paid in taxes in 1915 the sum of $65,120.41, of which $20,590 was paid to the treasurer of Allen county. The company, from January 1, 1904, to October 1, 1915, expended for additions and betterments to its property in Fort Wayne alone the sum of $3,045,290.84, and January 1, 1910, to October 1, 1915, for the same purpose, the sum of $1,950,425.15. The company pays out to its employes in Fort Wayne each year for the operation of its properties an average of $340,000.

In closing the statement says: "Street car transportation and electric light and power are essential factors in the development of every large city. No modern city can increase in population or business without both. The destruction of the traction company's property or rights would be an unspeakable calamity to our city. The traction company has endeavored to the best of its ability to give to the people of Fort Wayne good street car and electric service, it has obeyed the law in all things and has not given cause for offense to anyone. It therefore appeals to and confidently relies upon the generous protection and support of the good people of Fort Wayne."

Auto Bus Company Formed.

At a meeting of the boosters for the auto bus company Friday evening in the headquarters of the Federation of Labor a temporary organization was effected with the following officers: Clayton H. Johnson, president, Christ Hahn, vice president; C. N. Felts, secretary, and J. B. LaTourette, treasurer. The company will be capitalized at $50,000 and will be organized permanently at the first meeting of the stockholders.

An effort will be made to have ten 'buss in operation about the first of the year and thirty within sixty days. It is probable that Ford cars will be purchased and later a few larger cars will be put in service during the rush hours.

Arrangements were made for a systematic canvass for stock subscriptions, the city being divided into two sections, with Calhoun street as the dividing line. B. Stuller was named captain of the east side and J. E. Hooper captain of the west side. The winners are to be given a banquet at the expense of the losing side at the close of subscriptions.

INCREASE IN DEFECTIVES.

Committee Named to Study Problem Has First Meeting.

Indianapolis, Dec. 18.—The committee appointed by Governor Ralston, some time ago to study the problem of mental defectiveness in Indiana held its first meeting here yesterday. Figures were presented showing that in the decade ending Oct. 1, 1914, there was an increase of 1,400 in the number of defectives in state institutions. This, it was said, was a more marked increase than was that of inmates in penal and benevolent institutions. The committee decided to meet January 6, to plan a survey or census of mental defectives in the state.

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes a full pint—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. Also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex,"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

STILWELL SAYS HE NEVER GOT LOOK-IN

By Willis S. Thompson.

Indianapolis, Dec. 17.—"Who wished Horace C. Stilwell on the republican party." was what Charlie Sefrit asked through his newspaper, the Washington Herald, the other day. When some people said this was not a nice way to talk about progressives who showed no signs of repentance, Sefrit described his previous utterance as an "innocent remark."

The next picture on the program, Indiana progressives, is "what happened to Horace C. Stilwell when he tried to get some recognition for the progressives at the hands of the republican national committee. "This is an exceedingly interesting picture and it is described vividly by Horace C. Stilwell himself. The story is published from Washington by the Indianapolis Star, the recognized progressive newspaper of Indiana. Here is the story which could not be made more interesting to the people of Indiana:

"Washington, Dec. 14.—Horace C. Stilwell, of Indiana, who came here to get some progressive reform ideas adopted by the republican national committee, was giving a fine imitation tonight of a man who has been steam-rollered.

"'The bosses are in the saddle,' said he, 'and it is useless for a well-meaning progressive reformer to buck up against the little tight corporation that is doing business at the G. O. P. stand.'

"When asked to whom he referred by the term 'bosses,' he said he meant Barnes, Crane, Smott, Hemenway and Penrose.

"'The five men are running the republican party machinery,' he said, 'and I find it is perfectly useless to try to put any reforms across. This little bunch is not particularly fond of reforms.'

"Stillwell came here with Oswald Ryan to try to get the national committee to change the basis of representation at the national convention to votes cast instead of arbitrarily according to states and districts. He soon found he had run up against a stone wall. Then, in a letter to National Committeeman Goodrich, he proposed that the national committee voluntarily abdicates its right to select the temporary roll of the convention and permit that to be done by the committee on credentials.

"'Barnes, Crane, Smoot, Hemenway and Penrose looked over my proposition,' said he, 'and it was "good night." I came here as the self-appointed voice of 3,500,000 republicans who were in rebellion in 1912. But I didn't get a look-in.'"

NOW WHO'S THE JOKE ON?

I. O. Holmes, who was presented as a joke with mining stock presumed to be worthless by Harmon Sheets several years ago, has now discovered the stock to be worth approximately $900. Mr. Holman has gone to Mishawaka to investigate his good luck.

Several second-hand car bargains. Will go quick. Come if you want one. Fort Wayne Overland Co.

Paper Suits Are a Boon to Aviators

Ever see a "poor, down and outer" who had no other place to rest his head in the early days of fall but the park bench, wrap himself in newspapers, and wonder why? The answer is simple. Just to keep warm. Paper being a non-conductor, prevents the cold from entering and prevents the heat from escaping. Because of its non-conductiveness, the idea as obtained for a suit of paper to be worn under the outer garments of aviators who find it almost impossible in making flights to any altitude to keep warm. The photograph shows an aviator in the new paper suit.

START HONEYMOON IN JAIL.

Young Couple Charged With Being Expert Shoplifters.

Indianapolis, Dec. 18.—A young married couple began their honeymoon in the city prison last night and an aunt of the bride observed her birthday anniversary behind the bars following the arrest of four persons, said by the police to be expert shoplifters. Police announced that loot valued at $1,000 has been recovered and that the prisoners confessed that they have operated in Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. The four gave their names as Frank Lee, 25, and his 23-year-old wife, whom he married yesterday; Minnie Foley, who was 37 year-old yesterday and who is an aunt of Mrs. Lee, and Paul Hartle, 25. Their homes are in Dayton, O., they said.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Lightness of world shipments other than from America tended to harden prices today in the wheat market here. Bullish sentiment was increased also by reports of rain interfering with the Argentine harvest. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛@¼c off to ¼c advance with December at $1.16⅜, and May at $1.17¾ to $1.18, were followed by a moderate general upturn.

Clear cold weather eased corn. After opening ½c lower to a gain of a shade, prices went slightly above yesterday's finish, but again turned down grade.

Selling on the part of leading concerns weakened oats. Demand was only of a scattered sort.

Provisions rose on account of liberal shipments for the week. Little or no attention was to be given the fact that hog receipts here for the same period were the largest on record.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Dec. 18.—Trading in stocks today was of a minor and superficial character, dealings being light and price changes for the most part circumscribed. The short interests was again disposed to cover outstanding contracts and to that extent a firm undertone was maintained. The active features aside from U. S. Steel, which was a trifle irregular, included American Smelting, Republic Steel, Baldwin Locomotive and Studebaker.

Overnight developments were helpful to the moderate improvement recorded by today's early market, initial quotations showing gains in most quarters of the stock list. Trading was light, however, U. S. Steel being the only issue to show more than ordinary animation. Representative issues were neglected, while war shares and kindred descriptions were one to two points higher. Prices shaded on secondary offerings.

Most Awful Tragedy World Has Ever Know is Fate of Serbia's 10,000 Starving Orphans

Letters from Relief Workers Paint Horror Picture of Misery of Nation of Homeless Babes—Soldiers Fighting Desperately in Trenches Snatch Moment to Share Crust With Suffering Waifs That Crawl to Them for Aid.

By Harry Payne Burton.

New York, Dec. 18.—Serbia is going to leave an almost humanless, lifeless country to the conquerors!

Except for the cries of the 10,000 starving babies wandering through the woods and devastated villages and towns, Serbia will be deserted, desolate, voiceless.

Yesterday I tried to visualize for Americans just how this state has been brought about, and just what it means. I showed that 200,000 war casualties and the wiping out by typhus of 600,000 mothers and fathers had left a nation of orphans, starving, living like scavenger dogs.

I have just heard from the trembling lips of Miss Helen Losanvitch, the beautiful daughter of a former Serbian minister to London, terrible stories of the utter wretchedness of these lost "Babes in the Woods."

For gripping, pathetic, tragedy, history has never heard the equal of these tales. Their pathos is staggering. Their appeal must reach down to the very depths of the hearts of the most cynical and skeptical.

"You cannot possibly conceive what frightful unhappiness the war has brought to Serbia," began Miss Losanvitch.

"They have killed off the parents and have left the children to be starved to death. These 10,000 orphans Mr. Wordsworth of the Rockefeller foundation says they number 20,000—are the flotsam and jetsam of a wrecked nation. They are groping in the woods and hills, living on roots!

"During the summer the army cared for many of the orphaned children, for the soldiers adopted the waifs they met, shared their food and blankets with them, and cared for the tiny tots with the utmost tenderness.

"But when they were called to the battle front they had to leave their charges behind them, to the mercy of chance. Sometimes they sheltered and fed them in the trenches. Here is a letter I have received from my mother. My father, you know, is head of the Serbian war relief fund. My mother says:

"'Now the cold is coming and at night the children generally gather near a village, and creep against a house wall to sleep. The older ones take care of the younger.

"'I went to St. Roman's where the St. Helen's home is, the other day and the lady in charge told me a heartrending story. A poor soldier who was wounded, came home for ten days' leave. When he reached home he found his wife dead of typhus and his two children alone, starving. He was heartbroken.

"'After his leave was up, and he had to return to the front, he did not know what to do with the kiddies. So he took them to this home, and, crying bitterly, pictured what would happen to them unless they were received there.

"'The children were sobbing and the lady cried, too. It seemed to her so tragic that the soldier must leave them in the hands of strangers to save them from worse things that must befall were the enemy not to be kept out of the country.'

"So much for my mother's letter.

"The municipalities," Miss Losanvitch explained, "have tried to farm out these 10,000 orphans among the peasants, by twos and threes. But as these peasants can scarcely maintain their own children, they generally keep them a few days, and then take them out into the streets and leave them there, where they are found by the police, and brought back to the municipality, which tries again to place them.

"The trouble is not only how to keep these children alive, but how to keep them good. With the lack of oversight, and the disorder of the community, we are afraid many of them will grow up beggars and criminals.

"Surely you cannot turn a deaf ear to the sobs of these fatherless, motherless and homeless little wanderers.

"If these children were running wild in this country a million dollars would be raised in a few hours. Don't forget that Serbian children are very much like yours.

"I am sure that Americans will not let these innocent victims of the war perish by the roadside in thousands like so many noisome insects."

There's 10,000 of these starving Serbian "Babes in the Woods!" Homeless, hungry and sick little Serbian waifs, like the two pictured above, are even forced by their misery to crawl in the very fighting trenches in hopes of sharing some soldier's crust of bread.

WILSON WORKS TO LAST HOUR

for the wedding. Arrangements for guarding the house during the ceremony included a diversion of all traffic from the street and a heavy guard of policemen and secret service agents about the premises.

Although details of the wedding trip had not been disclosed it became known that the couple will leave for the south shortly after the ceremony.

Third President to Wed

Woodrow Wilson is the third president to be married during his term of office. President Tyler was the first and President Cleveland was the other. Mr. Tyler, like Mr. Wilson, was left a widower during his term. Two years later, in 1844 in New York city he was married to Miss Julia Gardiner, who then presided at the white house during the last year of her husband's term of office.

Grover Cleveland's marriage to Miss Frances Folsom took place in the blue room of the executive mansion. It was comparatively a private affair for the invited guests included only the cabinet members, their wives and a few friends and relatives of the couple.

President Wilson's wedding is the third in his family since he took office. The first white house wedding of his term was that of his second daughter, Jessie Woodrow Wilson, to Francis Bowes Sayre and the other was that of his youngest daughter, Eleanor, to Secretary McAdoo. The president now has two grandchildren, the little son of the Sayres and the baby daughter of the McAdoos.

Are Both Virginians.

The president and his bride both are Virginians by birth. He was born at Staunton, 59 years ago this month and she was born at Wytheville, the daughter of Judge and Mrs. William H. Bolling and was one child in a large family. Two sisters, Mrs. Alexander H. Galt and Miss Bertha Bolling, and three brothers, John Randolph, Richard Wilmer and Julian B. Bolling live in Washington. Rolfe E. Bolling, another, is manager of the Commercial bank at Panama, and another, Dr. William E. Bolling, lives at Louisville, Ky. A third sister, Mrs. M. H. Maury, lives in Anniston, Alabama. The bride's family has been prominent in the history of Virginia and she herself is a descendant of Pocohontas the Indian chief's daughter who married John Rolfe.

Since 1896 Mrs. Galt has lived in Washington, belonging to none of the distinct social sets, but active in charity and philanthropy in her own ways. From her first husband she inherited control of a prosperous mercantile business of which she has been accredited with now being the active head and many tributes are paid to her ability. But activity in business, her friends say, never has diminished her interest in a woman's world. She loves flowers, books and out door recreations.

When Courtship Began

After the president's courtship began she took up golf and on many Saturday afternoons they were seen on the links at some one of the country clubs about the capital, or at other times taking long motor drives over the Virginia hills or along the shore roads in lower Maryland. Often they took picnic luncheon from the white house on their journeys and ate it by the roadside.

In the white house circle the bride quickly found her place. She plays the piano, sings and loves to read poetry and when in the intimacy of the family, the president often has read aloud his favorite poems, as is his custom, she is said to have been one of his most interested hearers.

Miss Margaret Wilson, the president's eldest daughter, and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, his cousin, are said to have drawn her into the white house circle in the early autumn of 1914. From that time, she was a frequent guest at the executive mansion and last summer spent a month as the guest of Margaret Wilson at the summer white house at Cornish, N. H. The engagement was announced on October 6, not long after the presidential party returned to Washington for the winter.

Mrs. Galt's Home

Both the president and his bride agreed not to have their wedding in the white house, but in her home near Dupont circle, which sometimes is called the social hub of the capital. She lives there in a tastefully arranged house, somewhat small by comparison with the mansions which surround it. It is not large enough for entertaining on an extended scale and for that reason a large company was not invited to the wedding. Mr. McAdoo, the president's son-in-law, was the only member of the cabinet included in the party. The rest were all relatives.

The repeatedly expressed wish of the couple for a quiet wedding, unattended by any great amount of publicity, is responsible for the general lack of common knowledge of so many of the details which attend such a ceremony. No public announcements have been made of the gifts received and likewise there has been no announcement of the gowns and decorations. New York dressmakers have been calling frequently during the last few weeks at the white house and at the bride's home, and she has made one or two shopping trips out of the city to complete her trousseau.

at Athens told Premier Skouloudis the Germans would be compelled to attack the British and French forces. The landing of Italian forces in Albania is likely to prove an important factor, as the Italians may be able to attach themselves to the remainder of the Serbian army for concerted action.

If all current reports were true, the Germans would be preparing offensive movements in all directions—in Belgium and France, in Greece against Egypt, on the Riga-Dvinsk front and in Galicia. British military critics believe, however, that the central powers have not enough available reserves for an offensive movement on more than one front. In fact it is frequently argued in England that the central powers are approaching the last stratum of reserves in men and must make a determined effort to obtain a victory over one of their enemies.

The British public was surprised today by the appearance of the royal proclamation posted in public places calling out four classes of Derby recruits. It is inferred from this move that the Derby campaign was successful. No important fighting was reported over night from any field.

most rigorous legal conception were applied to the judgment of the case it does not in any way sufficiently warrant attaching blame to the commanding officer of the war vessel or to the imperial and royal government.

"The government of the United States has also failed to designate the persons upon whose testimony it relies and to whom it apparently believes it may attribute a higher degree of credibility than the commander of the imperial and royal fleet. The note also fails to give any information whatsoever as to the number, names and more precise fate of the American citizens who were on board of the said steamer at the critical moment.

Proposes Exchange of Views.

"However, in view of the fact that the Washington cabinet has now made a positive statement to the effect that citizens of the United States of America came to grief in the incident in question, the imperial and royal government is in principle ready to enter into an exchange of views in the affair with the government of the United States.

It might, however, in the first place, raise the question why that government failed to give juridical reason for the demand set forth in its note with reference to the specific circumstances upon which it itself lays stress and why, in lieu thereof, it referred to an exchange of correspondence, which it has conducted with another government in other cases.

The imperial and royal government is less able to follow the Washington cabinet on this unusual position, since it, by no means, possesses authentic knowledge of all of the pertinent correspondence of the government of the United States, nor is it of the opinion that such knowledge might be sufficient for it in the present case, which insofar as it is informed, is in essential points of another nature than the case or cases to which the government of the United States seems to allude. The imperial and royal government may therefore leave it to the Washington cabinet to formulate the particular points of law against which the commanding officer of the submarine is alleged to have offended on the occasion of the sinking of the Ancona.

The government of the United States has also seen fit to refer to the attitude to which the Berlin cabinet assumed in the above mentioned correspondence. The imperial and royal government finds in the much esteemed note no indication whatever of the intent with which this reference was made. Should, however, the government of the United States thereby have intended to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed for the imperial and royal government with respect to the judicial consideration of [illegible] affair in question this government must in order to preclude possible misunderstandings declare that as a matter of course it reserves to itself full freedom of maintaining its own legal views in the discussion of the case of the Ancona. In having the honor to have recourse to the kindness of his excellency the ambassador of the United States of America with the most respectful request to be good enough to communicate the foregoing to the American government and on this occasion to state that the imperial and royal government in no less degree than the American government and under all circumstances most sincerely deplores the fate of the innocent victims of the incident in question the undersigned at the same time avails himself of this opportunity to renew the expression of his most distinguished consideration to his excellency the ambassador.

"BURIAN,
"PENFIELD."

NEW NOTE MORE VIGOROUS.

Washington, Dec. 18.—President Wilson began work today on the second note to Austria on the sinking of the Ancona.

Friendly relations between Austria and the United States, it was stated authoritatively, are nearing the breaking point and their continuance will depend entirely upon the reply Austria will be asked to make immediately to the note being framed today.

The note, more vigorous than the first, will request prompt acquiescence in the original demands of the United States, all of which, Secretary Lansing announced, Austria failed to meet.

The dispatch of a second note was determined upon late yesterday after President Wilson and his cabinet had considered the official text of the Austrian reply to the first American communication. It was rejected as wholly unacceptable to the American government.

The new note will be dispatched, with President Wilson's approval, to Ambassador Penfield for presentation to the Vienna foreign office as "quickly as possible."

It was said that while the United States would not go into a detailed discussion, it might give some of the facts which Austria requested.

Prosecutor's Office Will Begin Suits Soon to Collect Dues.

If you are delinquent in what you owe to the government because you harbor Fido or Towser it will behoove you to pay up. There are about two hundred dog tax delinquencies in Wayne township and Township Trustee Henry P. Scherer has turned this lot over to Prosecuting Attorney Hilgemann for collection by suit. A dog tax doesn't cost much unless it is collected by the prosecutor by court procedure and then it mounts up. Prosecutor Hilgemann is preparing to clean up these delinquencies before the end of the term, which closes December 31. Prompt action with the cash at the trustee's office will probably suffice to get your name removed from the list filed for prosecution.

NEWS OF THE COURTS.

Adam Hans Sues Pennsylvania Road for $10,000 Damages.

Adam Hans has begun action in the circuit court against the Pennsylvania railroad company, demanding $10,000 damages for personal injuries received May 14, last, when his automobile was struck by a train on the defendant's road near Maples. The complaint alleges that the view of the track is obstructed from the highway as it approaches the crossing, that though himself and companions in the automobile took special care to observe whether a train was approaching they could see and hear none and drove on the track, where the automobile was struck by a train. Roy Richey, who was in the car, was killed and Hans received injuries which he says are permanent. It is alleged that no warning was given of the approach of the train. The plaintiff is proprietor of the Kreibaum wall paper store, 826 Barr street, and early in the morning of May 14 he, with Richey and Frank Hutchinson had started in the automobile for Monroeville to do some work. Hutchinson was little hurt. Breen & Morris are attorneys for the plaintiff.

COMMISSIONER BUTT HONORED.

Fellow Officials in Court House Give Him a Surprise.

A surprise party was the method adopted to pay a tribute of esteem to James D. Butt, president of the board of county commissioners, who retires from that body January 1, and his associates in officialdom and a large number of his neighbors gathered Friday evening at his Lake township home, about supper time, and extended good wishes for his future. The affair was planned by Mrs. Butt and Hon. E. C. Hoffman, county attorney. Mr. Butt was detained in the city until evening by his son, who came to town for that purpose, and when he arrived home he found his domicile in full possession of the friendly invaders. Mr. Butt was presented with a handsome gold watch of costly design, which was presented in a felicitious little speech by Mr. Hoffman. Commissioner Butt made a suitable response. Among the county officials present were Commissioners William C. Schwier and Albert J. Black, Hon. Edward G. Hoffman, County Auditor Will Johnson, O. B. Wiley, bridge superintendent; William G. Tonkel, road superintendent; Jay Brown, deputy auditor; George Jaap, contractor; Henry Getz, deputy road superintendent; Henry A. Wetzel, commissioner-elect; John B. Wyss and F. William Franke, ex-commissioner.

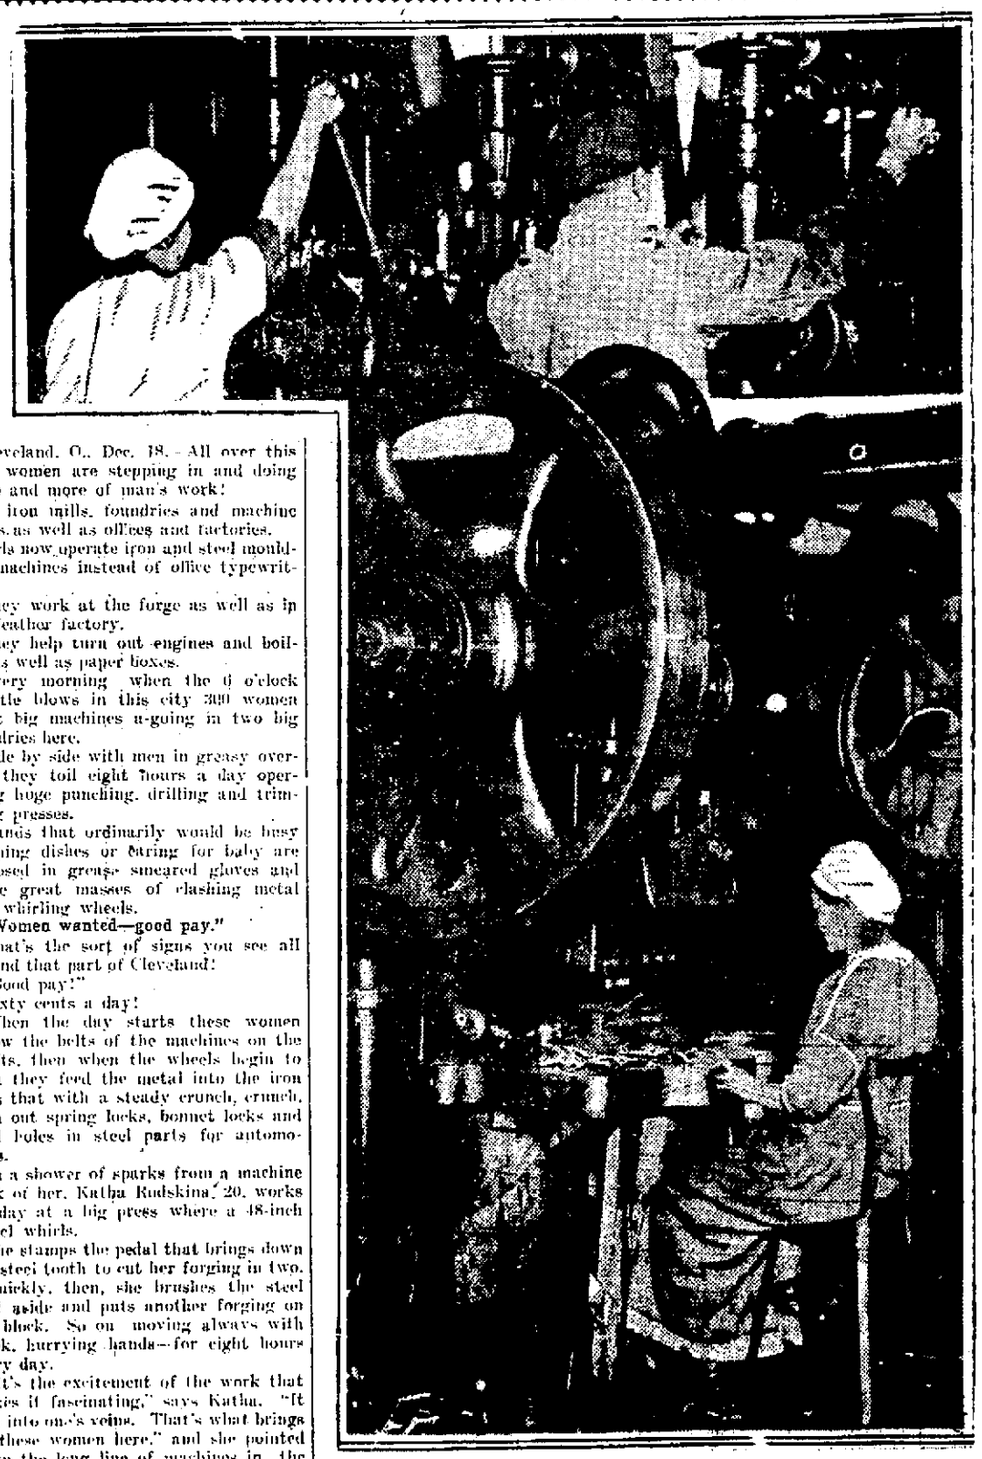
WOMEN DOING MEN'S WORK AMID CLANG OF STEEL AND HISS OF SPARKS IN IRON FOUNDRIES.



Cleveland, O., Dec. 18.—All over this land women are stepping in and doing more and more of man's work!

In iron mills, foundries and machine shops as well as offices and factories.

They work at the forge as well as in the feather factory.

They help turn out engines and boilers as well as paper boxes.

Every morning when the 6 o'clock whistle blows in this city 300 women start big machines a-going in two big foundries here.

Side by side with men in greasy overalls they toil eight hours a day operating huge punching, drilling and trimming presses.

Hands that ordinarily would be busy washing dishes or caring for baby are enclosed in grease smeared gloves and guide great masses of clashing metal and whirling wheels.

"Women wanted—good pay."

That's the sort of signs you see all around that part of Cleveland!

"Good pay!"

Sixty cents a day!

When the day starts these women throw the belts of the machines on the shafts, then when the wheels begin to turn they feed the metal into the iron jaws that with a steady crunch, crunch, turn out spring locks, bonnet locks and drill holes in steel parts for automobiles.

In a shower of sparks from a machine back of her, Katha Rudskina, 20, works all day at a big press where a 48-inch wheel whirls.

She stamps the pedal that brings down the steel tooth to cut her forging in two.

Quickly, then, she brushes the steel dust aside and puts another forging on the block. So on moving always with quick, hurrying hands—for eight hours every day.

"It's the excitement of the work that makes it fascinating," says Katha. "It gets into one's veins. That's what brings all these women here," and she pointed down the long line of machines in the spark-filled room, each with its woman attendant.

Katha works by the piece and earns from $1.20 to $3 a day. The pay of all the women is between 60 cents and $3.

MUNITIONETTES NOW ASKING EQUAL WAGE

Women at $1.50 a Week in London Factories Are Making Protset.

BY SYLVIA PANKHURST,
As told in interview by
Mary Boyle O'Reilly.

(Miss Pankhurst, the daughter of the famous British suffragette, has given up feminine frightfulness for adventures into adversity and has become a recognized leader among the groping workers of East London).

London, Dec. 18.—Bread is 16 cents a loaf in London and the price is rising. Three million wage earners are under arms leaving—probably—a million wives to feed alone in war time.

Comment on these facts to the fair weather philanthropist and the answer is invariably: "But consider what women now earn in munition factories."

Well, let us "consider" the wage scale of munitionettes.

Making munitions is admittedly dangerous work. Women entering many of the shops must change their boots for special slippers, assume overalls, discard their hairpins and wear fireproof caps. A nail, a bit of wire, might cause an explosion. People should be paid for taking such chances.

Sir William Bardmore, the big munition master of Glasgow, declares the work done by women workers in his factories, whether by night or day, is "astounding," being just as good and just as speedy as that of men. Night work by women is no longer prohibited. While England is under military law (and this threatens to be a long, long war) all labor laws are abrogated. Now the minister of munitions (Mr Lloyd George) when taking over the munitions of war factories pledged the government to establish an equal wage scale for men and women and to see that there would be no sweated labor.

SYLVIA PANKHURST.

"We shall not," said the munitions minister, "utilize the services of women merely to get cheap labor."

That was months ago. Today British battles are being fought with bullets and shells made by sweated workers.

East London munitionettes who have earned $6.35 a week have been warned that they are making far too much and must accept lower paid processes to bring their wages down. Croydon girls can earn only $2.-$3.12 a week, Wolverhampton women from $1.50 to $3 for 55 hours' work, Walsall munitionettes $3.75 to $4 for a 73 1-2 hour week. And under the munition act wage scales in the thousand and more "controlled factories" cannot be altered unless by consent of the munition minister.

Moreover, a munition maker who attempts to leave one arms factory to seek employment in another can be taken into court by an employer and prosecuted under the munitions act.

Many deputations from trades unions and women's organizations have waited upon the munitions minister to submit this scale of weekly wages paid men and women munitions makers doing the same work.

Sheffield:—Men, $5.62 week; women, $2 to $3 a week.

Those figures point the way to the war that is behind war. The question of equal pay for men and women is a very serious one for both men and women. If women do men's work at a lower wage, and prove that they are able and willing to do it equally well, men will either have to accept the lower wage or join the army of unemployed. And if wages are to be depressed it will prove disastrous for men and women and for their children.

The death toll of the bridge in the past few years has been as follows:

1908—Two boys and two foreigners killed.

1909—Man knocked into river—died.

1910—No fatalities.

1911—Three were killed.

1912—Unidentified man killed.

1913—No fatalities.

1914—W. L. Newport and son killed.

In addition three were killed in the Swinney park wreck and five have drowned in the river below the bridge.

Engineering feats vary in their importance with their geographical locations. Down in Kentucky, High Bridge caused more or less comment in the fastnesses where the good citizens gathered to dodge the arm of the law and discuss weighty matters. Several people stopped on their way to church in Colorado to watch the building of the Moffat road. The Alaska-Yukon railroad furnished a topic for conversation in the dug-in season around Dawson town for several winters. The laying of the new board sidewalks at Saugetauk, Mich., was the occasion for a five-column spread across the front of that community's contribution to the world's literature, the Weekly Enterprise.

It all depends on where it happens. The announcement that a railroad would start from the courthouse and run to an elevation of eight thousand feet would startle even the most imaginative of Fort Wayne's citizens. But a regular straight-away 150 foot railway bridge wouldn't be worth passing notice in Leadville.

But right here in Fort Wayne there is an engineering job that few people know is in the making, but which has been under way for fully three months. That is the placing across the St. Mary's river of a new bridge by the Pennsylvania company.

In the past dozen years a score of men, women and children have walked to their deaths on the Pennsylvania bridge that spans the St. Mary's. Tragedy has flapped its ribbed wings over the double track span several times in each twelvemonth, and death has ridden the pilot of many an engine over the river. Always—or nearly always—death played safe for the railroad, for the victims were walking where they had no business to be. There is no footpath on the bridge, and the railroad has time and again issued orders in thunderous tones, forbidding trespassing on the right of way. But still there are those who dare. Each day sees scores and some times hundreds risk their lives in crossing the bridge.

The new structure is much the same as the old one, in two spans, one of seventy-two and the other of seventy-five feet. The old pier has been rebuilt and enlarged, and will be used for the new bridge.

Built Along Side.

Supported on wooden piling driven into the river and on ties piled into supporting towers, the new bridge is being built just north of the old one, and there isn't even the slightest interruption of traffic It will be completely finished, even to the placing of the ties and the laying of rails before it will be ready to place in position. It is built on tracks, and when the time comes, it will be slid over into position. The contractors are long experienced in this work, and can do it in practically no time.

No Traffic Interruption.

Traffic will not be interrupted when this is done. For it will not require three minutes from the time the rails of the old one are cut until the new one will be in service. The old structure will slide south out of the way and on some specially constructed supports and at the same time the new one will slide into position.

The work will be planned so that there will be no passenger trains due at the time, and there will be absolutely no delay, and not a train will be held up a single minute.

No Foot Bridge.

Soulless and heartless corporation, the Pennsylvania company will place no foot bridge across the span. The officials put their thumbs in their armholes and blandly remark that they have fought trespassing so long that they don't intend to turn about and encourage it. But as there is no bridge between Taylor street and Main, a distance of nearly a mile, it is likely that the bridge will be used as the old one was. It will require a squad of armed watchmen to keep people off it, for there has been plenty of terrible examples and none has seemed to have an effect.

The bridge is being put in by the Seaboard Construction company of Philadelphia, and the steel work was turned out in the shops and foundry of the Fort Pitt bridge works at Pittsburg, Pa. It is of steel, and is painted red as most of the other new Pennsy bridges are.

According to the office of Division Engineer Guy Scott, which is doing the company's part of the work and is overseeing the job, the bridge cannot be ready to go into service before February.

In the accompanying pictures made this week several phases of the work are shown. In the upper row, the outer photographs, show the men at work high on the temporary towers. They climb about on these things as comfortably as most men walk the streets. In one of the snaps a man is seen sauntering down a six inch beam. In the center is a general view of the completed portion, made from the river bank a hundred feet north of the right of way. In the lower left hand corner a big crane, mounted on a car, is shown with a stack of steel girders swinging about over one of the temporary ways, while the workmen are waiting for it to deposit its load. The lower right hand picture is a general view from the tracks, showing the old bridge with the new one to the right of it.

IN THE THEATERS

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Mutt and Jeff in College" at the Majestic Again Tonight.

Mutt and Jeff has actually created a sensation never before known in theatrical history. In New York city, where the play ran to record business at the Manhattan opera house; in Chicago, where it ran fifteen weeks to actual capacity, and in every large or small city in the entire country and wrung from the most conservative critics the enviable title of being the greatest financial and artistic success in a quarter of a century. You don't want any better evidence than this, do you The big New York company with all of the arguments that won its success will be here again this evening at the Majestic.

AT KEITH PALACE

Current Bill at New Palace Closes This Evening.

Tonight will afford the final opportunity for Fort Wayne to enjoy the strong bill now running at the New Palace, the bill that includes such acts as Verna Mersereau and company, in a drama of pagan times, interpreted through the dance; Merle's marvelously plumaged and remarkably intelligent cockatoos; the Five Musical Gormans, in a clever musical turn; Yates and Wheeler in their surprise party, "Who's Who and Which"; and the Jewell comedy trio of melodious voices and clever comedians.

For the coming week the New Palace has a splendid treat in the person of Miss Betty Wells, as Mrs. Robert W. Fowler of our own fair village is known. Betty Wells' comedy character songs and sketches are one of the prides of Fort Wayne, ranking alongside the court house, the New Palace, the Pennsylvania station and the park system. She is a Fort Wayne girl in every sense of the phrase, for she never has forgotten "her old home town," and each holiday season sees her treking back. To this annual pilgrimage may be ascribed her presence on this new bill. Faye, two Colis and Faye, although not home guarders, are prime favorites here by reason of their having done their black face mixed quartet act here several seasons now. Their stuff never grows old because they constantly are altering their act to keep it just a jump ahead of the times. Charles Semon, the elongated comedian, is another superlative number on this bill. George Felix and the Barry Girls will present their latest thought, "The New Baby," and Chuck Haas will do his celebrated lariat tossing act. Si and Mary Stebbins, a Barnum and Bailey hit, are on this program as a special added attraction.

On Monday afternoon the Temple players will present each woman attending the performance with a silver spoon, the exact duplicate of the ones given away last Monday. Tuesday afternoon again will be a jitney matinee, with every seat in the house open to the women for a thin nickel.

AT THE TEMPLE.

A LIVELY FARCE COMEDY

"The Chauffeur" to Succeed "Call of the Woods" at Temple.

"The Chauffeur," and this one runs in high speed all the time, is the bill for the coming week at the Temple. It is a joy ride to happyland, with the most amusing of drivers at the wheel and it will run all week, leaving at the usual hour. The plot of a farce comedy never tells the story, because all farces are made up of a series of situations that are funny only as you see them depicted on the stage. Imagine trying to tell someone in cold print how funny Charlie Chaplin is when he hits some one over the head with a mallet and you have some conception of how inadequate printer's ink is to convey the fun of a farce comedy like "The Chauffeur." It's so funny the members of the Temple Players have been laughing at rehearsals at the absurdities, laughing longer and louder than they did while rehearsing "The Man From Mexico," and "The Girl in the Taxi."

"The Chauffeur" succeeds the melodramatic production, "The Call of the Woods," which has been running all week with remarkable success. This story of the north woods will close this evening.

Last night was amateur night at the Temple and again it was the signal for a capacity house and a rousing good time, which means, of course, that it will be repeated next week. On Tuesday afternoon another tango tea party will be given by the Temple Players for their friends, both old and new. Tea and other refreshments will be served on the stage and there will be dancing for all who care to indulge themselves in that character of amusement.

AT THE EMPRESS

All of next week "Amy, a Child of the Circus," will be the attraction at the Empress theater and in this newest production by the Empress stock McLain Gates and Miss Helen Gleason will play the principal parts. As this will be the Christmas production at the Empress special efforts have been made by the organization to make the play particularly attractive. Those who have seen the rehearsals know that success has crowned these efforts.

There will be a special Christmas matinee of "Alma" at the Empress on Saturday afternoon and, of course, there will be the customary matinees on Tuesday and Thursday. The matinee on Tuesday will be the customary souvenir matinee. Mae Hinterest attaches to the production of this drama here as the leading part was originally played by the famous Mabel Taliaferro.

The final performance of "The Road Agent" will occur at the Empress tonight. Fort Wayne people have liked McLain Gates' performance in the part originally played by Dustin Farnum, exceedingly. Tonight will be the last chance to see Mac play this role.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"THE DISCIPLE,"

A Wonderful Film Play at the Jefferson Today and Tonight.

W. S Hart featured in "The Disciple," the current attraction at the Jefferson, gives an excellent interpretation of the "Shootin' Iron Parson," a frontier missionary who makes a startling transformation to a genuine "bad actor" upon learning that his wife has eloped with an ex-physician and gambler. The part gives him every opportunity to display his emotional talents and he makes the most of them.

His support is excellent and the acting throughout is of the highest order. The lightning and wind storm are a revelation, the effects being the limit of realism. This storm takes place a short time after the elopement. The parson's wife and Hardy return to Barren Gulch and Hardy leaves the woman in a deserted cabin in the mountains while he goes to the camp to complete the sale of his place of business. During the absence of the mother the child has been taken down with mountain fever and the night of the storm is calling for her mother. The parson, nearly crazy, prays that the mother might be sent back to the child. Lightning strikes the cabin where the mother is waiting for Hardy's return and she escapes unhurt and looks for shelter, stumbling on the cabin where her husband and child are living. The husband takes her in and points to the sick child lying on the bed. The wife tells him that Doc is in camp and that only a doctor can save the child. He goes after the doctor and at the point of a gun brings him to the child. After a night of waiting the crisis is past, and the little one is on the way to recovery. The wife sees the error of her ways and is forgiven, not, however, until one of the most thrilling and intensely dramatic scenes is enacted. Simple words cannot do this scene justice.

A very clever Triangle-Keystone, "Saved by Wireless," featuring Chester Conklin and Mark Swain, give an opportunity for some good laughs. Admission 10c and 5c.

AT THE LYRIC.

"Damaged Goods," which was shown in Fort Wayne for the first time at the Lyric theater last Monday, was originally scheduled for a four-day engagement, but the indorsements of this film by local physicians, together with the real merit of the photoplay, have made such an impression on the public that the management was forced to arrange for a continuation of the production for the remainder of the week, which establishes a long run record for a motion picture film in this city.

It was necessary to secure permission from the film owners to obtain the picture for the additional three days, and because of the fact that they had already arranged a schedule for its production in other cities, the owners were loath to permit that it should be held at the Lyric, but finally granted a two day's additional stay, and yesterday morning wired that it might be held for the usual performances.

As the local physicians who have indorsed "Damaged Goods" have stated, it tells a story which is true to life and one which occurs only too frequently. The story of the temptations of a straightforward young man by his more sophisticated friends is an old one indeed. His indulgence in strong drink, at first under protest and even force, but later with reckless drunken abandon, i staged in real life day after day. After arriving at the maudlin stage, he is ensnared into committing the sin, the consequence of which he does not realize until the terrible weeks that follow. This is o too common occurrence in our modern life to be hidden by faise modesty.

"Damaged Goods" is not a film to be viewed as a mere matter of entertainment. It is educational and provides a lesson that will do more to combat the vices of modern life than any other means found up to the present day. Its stirring plea for pure life before marriage in order to make impossible the transmission of hereditary taints to the future generations, is put in such a way that it cannot remain unheeded.

Physicians are ready to urge the public to view "Damaged Goods" because they appreciate the enormous number of parallel cases caused either by ignorance or innocence. And only medical men are able to realize how essential education along these lines are. In the words of one prominent local physician, "when once parents lay aside their false modesty and permit their children to know the full truth—calling 'a spade a spade,' as so well illustrated in 'Damaged Goods'—then the results of the debauchery of young manhood will have made its impression."

Fat and Jolly Henry Brown Comes from Defiance for High Life.

Fat and forty and a jolly bachelor is Henry Brown, who buys eggs, butter, poultry and other produce for commission merchants in Defiance, Ohio. Henry journey to Fort Wayne Friday afternoon to buy a new suit of clothes with which to get himself all dolled up for the merry yuletide season. He got the scenery all right and donned the jacket and waistcoat (low-brow for vests) but had to leave the trousers in the store to be brought into concord with the healthy latitude of his middle and the length of legs that are a trifle shy. This was Henry's undoing. While he waited for the sartorial alterations he wandered forth in search of adventure and met May Boitet. You know May? We thought so. Friday evening Captain Richard Kelly and Acting Detective Sergeant George Eisenhut invaded May's apartment at 117 East Washington street. What they saw was good and ample occasion for an arrest and the officers took them both. In court Henry told all about it and May said she was merely at work with her needle earning an honest living while Mr. Brown looked on. The court caused a concerted gasp of astonishment in the court room from all hands—bazzards, officers, attaches and the crowd singular and in general—when he mulcted Brown $25 and costs and added fifteen days in jail, which latter part was afterwards suspended. This was $10 more severe than the fine per head imposed a short time ago on the crowd mixed in a nasty mess broken up by the police on Clinton street and just equaled the penalty imposed on the riotous Baker brothers, who battled half the police force a few days ago. May Boitet was continued until Monday, when she may be sent to the woman's prison.

Vag Was in Bad Company.

Frank Schafer, a vag, was fined $10 and costs and went to jail for twenty days and his trouble grew out of bad company. He was with Frank Briggs, sent over for forty-five days earlier in the week, for petit larceny. Briggs stole some brass from the Nickel Plate roundhouse and Schaffer was with him when it was sold to a junker on Superior street. Schaffer denied any knowledge of the theft, but there was some evidence that he did.

Ate Most of the Chicken.

Emma Baker had her husband, Arthur Baker, arrested for non-support and testified that since last June he had given her all told $8 cash and much of the time furnished nothing for the house. Mrs. Baker said that her husband gave her 50 cents to buy a chicken for the Thanksgiving dinner and then came home to dine and ate most of the fowl himself. Judge Kerr put Baker under $100 for his appearance next Thursday, when he will be required to furnish $300 bond for the support of his wife or go to the state farm.

Other City Court Cases.

Ed Riley, just out of jail Friday, was in again on a drunk charge and flashed the same old railroad ticket to Lagrange, where he lives, that he pulled when in two weeks ago. He begged hard to be let go, but went over for fifteen days.

Mose Dahibe, a Syrian, charged with assault and battery, was continued until witnesses could be brought to court.

Henry Griffin, who said he had been robbed, was found to have left his money for safe-keeping with a friend. He faced a drunk charge and was turned loose.

Minnie Cannon, John Schultz and Jake Harris, drunks, were turned loose, and John Stolten, another drunk, was fined $1 and costs.

John Winks, a vag, went over for fifteen days, and Earl Hillis, Ed Hall and Howard Burch, loiterers, were turned loose. Mike Ford, another loiterer, was continued until the 24th inst.

Jay Wilkerson, a chauffeur, who drives a taxicab, was charged with speeding and the case was continued until the 23d inst. with bond fixed at $100.

James Lee and James Jims, charged with stealing a pair of boots from William Stahlhut, were continued until Monday and gave bond of $50 for their appearance to answer to petit larceny.

MUST GET NEW AUTO NUMBERS.

Chief of Police Charles Lenz has issued an order to the men of the police department that the law requiring owners of automobiles to have their license numbers by the first of January must be enforced. There will be no granting of grace until March or April, says the chief in his order, and by January 1, 1916 auto owners must either have their license numbers or show evidence that they have been applied for.

SKIN DISEASES

LITTLE CHILD HAD ECZEMA ALL HER LIFE—CURED IN TWO WEEKS

My little girl had eczema on her face from the time she was born till she was about three years old. It was so sore and irritating that we had to watch her day and night to keep her from scratching her face and making it bleed. It seemed to annoy her almost constantly and we tried many remedies without any benefit till we consulted Dr. Wells who cured her in two weeks. Over a year has elapsed and there has been no evidence of its return. I am pleased to recommend his treatment to others.

ARE ALL READY TO KISS AND MAKE UP

Feds and O. B. Are on the Verge of Getting Together.

New York, Dec. 18.—Approval of the tentative baseball peace plan having been given by representatives of the National, American and Federal leagues the details of the treaty were considered in a conference here today of the members of the national commission with a committee from the Federal league. Meanwhile the negotiators are awaiting the result of efforts which it is understood are to be made in Chicago today to obtain the consent of Judge Landis to dismiss the suit brought by the Federal league against organized baseball. A question was raised in the negotiations here whether it would be legal or in contempt of Judge Landis to sign a peace treaty while the legal action was still pending before him. Once Judge Landis' consent is obtained it is understood the national commission and the Federal league committee have the authority to adjust details and sign the peace agreement. Aside from the mergers of the National and Federal league clubs in Chicago and St. Louis, one of the most important clauses in the agreement, it is authoritatively stated, is that seventy-two of the Federal league players who now have contracts with the Federal league shall be fully protected by organized baseball. According to the same authority other Federal league players will be given ten days' notice.

An important phase of the negotiations is the part assigned to the International league and the American association in taking over clubs and players left over by the elimination of the Federal league. Newark, Buffalo, Baltimore and Pittsburg, it is stated, are to have clubs in the reorganized International league. It is reported that Carroll Rasin president of the Baltimore Federals, will control the new Baltimore club and that Edward G. Winner, head of the Pittsburg Federals, will be president of the reorganized Pittsburg club. Rasin, however, demands that the St. Louis National league club be transferred to Baltimore.

It was said today that probably the International league and the American association will have to take care of Federal league players rejected by the two major leagues.

BOWSER STARTS THE DIVIDEND SYSTEM

Will Distribute $2,000 in Pay Envelopes in Addition to Wages.

for the first half of December, the 550 shopmen at S. F. Bowser & Company will receive $2,000 next Monday as their portion of the monthly dividend to be given under the new co-operative system. This sum covers a period of six weeks and hereafter the dividends will be distributed monthly. The new system of production inaugurated by the shop management makes it possible for the company to give a 5 per cent dividend monthly, because the output of the shop is increased without any increase in the cost of production. Factory Manager H. J. Grosvenor says that the company expected to increase the dividends as the employes become more familiar with the system.

BIGGEST IN ITS HISTORY

Is the Shop Pay Rolls of the Western Gas.

The shop force of the Western Gas Construction company is now between 400 and 500, the largest in the history of the plant. A year ago the works were on short time with only about a half force, with a very poor outlook for an improvement very soon. But business conditions took a bound forward and now the company has all the work it can handle and has not only increased its shop force, but has put on additional erecting force, which is busy in numerous places installing gas machinery.

CHANGES NAME JANUARY 1.

Business houses, railway managers and managers of industrial plants, who deal with the Fort Wayne Electric works, have received instructions to direct mail intended for that company to the General Electric company, of Fort Wayne, after January 1. On that date the General Electric company will take over the accounting department of the Fort Wayne Electric company and all collections and credit work will be performed at the Schenectady office of the company. H. F. Thomas, head of the accounting department, who came here three years ago from Schenectady, will be transferred, probably returning to Schenectady. Several bookkeepers, stenographers and clerks will also be transferred to other plants or dropped from the service, but just how many will be affected is not known at present.

NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED.

The X-ray taken of Clifford E. Madden, the Pennsylvania employe injured yesterday by a smoke box front falling upon him, developed the fact that he was not as seriously injured as feared. The hip bones were not broken and there were no internal injuries, so far as could be ascertained. Dr. Garrett Van Sweringen, the attending surgeon, says that the injured man will be able to leave the hospital within a few days.

WILL INSTALL JANUARY 8.

Division, No. 119, Order of Railway Conductors, and Kekionga division, No. 51, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Order of Railway Conductors, will have joint installation of officers, followed by a social and banquet, January 8. The divisions held their elections two or three weeks ago, which were remarkable because of the re-election of all of the leading officers.

Former Fort Wayne Man Elected to Good Office.

Charles W. Cross, a former Fort Wayne railway man, has just been elected vice-president of the Equipment Improvement company, with offices at 30 Church street, New York. Mr. Cross has been with the Equipment company since July, 1914, going thence from the New York Central, where he was superintendent of apprentices eight years. Mr. Cross began his career as an apprentice in the C., H. & D. shops at Lima, Ohio, coming to the Fort Wayne shops of the Pennsylvania in 1880, remaining here until 1900, serving, respectively, as machinist, draftsman, foreman and assistant master mechanic. In 1900 he went to Elkhart as master mechanic of the Lake Shore shops and remained there until 1906, when he became superintendent of apprentices. While a resident of Fort Wayne he married Miss Sadie Newell, daughter of Engineer Newell, one of the pioneer engineers of the Pennsylvania, who resided on Douglas avenue.

PLUCKY WHITE WOMAN, DEFENSELESS AMONG PHILIPPINE TRIBESMEN, WON TRIUMPH OVER SAVAGERY AND DEATH.

Mrs. Kelly's home near Baguio, Philippine islands. At right, Fantok, a Bontock girl and chief's daughter, in Mrs. Kelly's school.

(Editor's Note—Mrs. Alice McKay Kelly is an American woman who for 14 years has devoted herself to the welfare of the Philippine wild tribes with remarkable influence. She is today probably the most widely known woman in the islands. Her home near Baguio has become the mecca for distinguished visitors from two continents, while among the Igorottes she is affectionately known as "Mother," occupying a station corresponding to that of chief. She established the first school for those bronzed highlanders, and in the following story gives a hint of what it means to extend the frontiers of civilization among barbaric people).

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 18.—With her own life at stake, Alice McKay Kelly recently turned a Philippine mountain tragedy into far-reaching account for the government in the islands.

Mrs. Alice McKay Kelly

It required amazing courage, patience and vision.

Death, attempted murder, superstitious terror, a savage courtship and weird ceremonial were some of the elements with which Mrs. Kelly, a lone white woman among the Igorottes, was compelled to cope in the Luzon wilderness.

In the end she guided an entire tribe toward civilization.

A Tagalog had broken the moral law by alluring little Koning Cerino, daughter of the Igorotte Chief Sioko. The girl's confession to Mrs. Kelly, whose school she attended, had resulted in the Tagalog's suicide and his attempt to kill his inamorata.

Chief Sioko held Mrs. Kelly responsible for the entire affair, although she knew nothing of the clandestine wooing until the day of the tragedy.

"If she dies," he had sent word, "you must die, too. We will be sorry to kill you, but so it shall be."

Then he disappeared in the forest until word should come from the hospital at Baguio, some miles away, where Mrs. Kelly had transported the wounded girl, hovering between life and death.

Pleading was of no avail. All Mrs. Kelly's unselfish service for the Igorottes counted for naught in this hour of Sioko's frenzy.

"We will be sorry to kill you!" Sioko had spoken.

Had Mrs. Kelly been thinking only of herself she might have escaped, for she rode every day to Baguio to see the wounded sufferer. And in Baguio were friends, refuge. But her whole life was wrapped up in the constructive work she had started among the Igorotte youngsters. She could not desert them, even to save her own imperiled life. That's how this plucky American pioneer felt about it.

"Little Koning's life hung by a thread," said Mrs. Kelly. "Day by day she had been getting worse. And in the somber forest Sioko, the father, waited, as I waited, for a change in her condition.

"Meantime an old Mambonong, or priestess, had come to my home at Bua, bearing a white rooster in a bag.

"'I bring him,' she explained, 'to coax back the angry soul of Koning Cerino—to carry it back to the suffering body in the soft breast feathers of this cockerel.'

"All that day the weird ceremonial continued. I had sent the school children away and participated in the rites as the priestess commanded. Near sunset it was finished.

"'And now,' said the old woman, 'you will saddle your horse and ride with me to the hospital at Baguio. I have promised it to the great Mambonong. You must talk to no one on the way. If any friend give you a greeting, you must but ride on the faster.'

"By the time we reached Baguio we were being followed by a motley procession of natives. A nurse at the hospital protested against this 'nonsense' and would have turned them away, but I persuaded her to let the natives have their way.

"The Manbanong chanted an invitation to little Koning's soul to transport itself from the white rooster's breast feathers to the pain-racked body of the Igorotte maiden.

"And on the instant there was a remarkable change. Sweat poured from the girl's forehead. She sank into a restful slumber, and from that hour began to mend rapidly."

"Your conduct," he said, "has pleased us. If my daughter gets well I will send her publicly back to the government school. I shall tell my people that I have confidence in you, and advise them to allow their girls as well as sons to attend your place of learning—if she gets well."

The day Koning Cerino left the hospital, recovered, was one of celebration among the Igorottes. From far and near the tribespeople gathered in the clearing about the school at Bua. Mrs. Kelly was there, too, still in doubt as to Sioko's intentions.

"Then," she said, "the chief arose and talked. It was a wonderful speech."

He told the assembly of 300 natives of Mrs. Kelly's efforts to guide the tribe to a better and more purposeful life. He rehearsed the tragedy, and his daughter's sufferings. But his fury, he said, had died. He was sending her back to the school. Let others do likewise.

Pluck, kindliness and service had triumphed over savagery.

Fort Wayne Young Man Praises Miller's Herb Remedy

The best evidence we give, is given by Fort Wayne citizens, whom you know and can trust. We do not go to Muncie, Anderson, or Kokomo to get our evidence. Mr. Wm. Mosshammer, of 836 West Creighton avenue, says: "I was tortured with rheumatism so that I could not sleep, although I worked hard every day. I am employed at the Boss Glove factory and have charge of two hundred sewing machines to keep in repair. At night I could not sleep. I would bathe my limbs with hot water to get relief. Other members of our family recommended Miller's True Herb Remedy very highly, so I got a bottle. The first few doses relieved me of the pain. When I had less than a bottle taken the rheumatism was gone and now I am feeling fine again. Two years ago I had a very bad case of Lumbago. I used only one bottle of this good medicine and Lumbago disappeared entirely. I have great faith in Miller's True Herb Remedy, it is very pleasant to take, it is a large 14 oz. bottle and you take only one dose a day and it gives you a 25 days' treatment for 75c, while other remedies you get an 8 oz. bottle for $1.00 and required to take 3 and 4 doses a day, and will last at the longest 5 days, which makes it a very expensive remedy to use. My advice is, if you want quick results, use Miller's True Herb Remedy." At all druggists, 75c per bottle. Mail orders receive prompt attention. Chas. A. Miller, 1234 Scott avenue, Fort Wayne, Ind.

DICK HAS IT DOPED THAT PLAYERS OVEREAT

New Central President Figures That Eating Slows Them Up.

However, may it be said for the Fort Wayne team that the local battlers last year fed none too well just before the battle, mother. A bowl of soup, a glass of milk, a couple of boiled eggs, and sometime as an added festivity a hunk of restaurant pie—that was the before playing menu.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 18—President E. W. Dickerson has figured out the reason ball players dream on the diamond. Many fans also have figured out the reason in the past, but the fans either have attributed it to staying out nights or too close acquaintance with John Barleycorn.

Now along comes Dick and dopes out overeating on the part of ball players as the real reason. And after listening to Dick's argument it seems possible the new president of the Central league may have found the real reason after all.

Dick figures that a ball player eats too much because he gets it for nothing, the clubs being in the habit of paying the players' hotel expenses on the road. And he also figures that many times a player with the appetite of a canary bird will load himself down with a meal that would founder an ox and then will go out on the diamond and attempt to put up a snappy game.

"And a player in such a case as that," said Dick today, "usually has the ambition of a groundhog in winter or a stuffed eagle up in the museum. Like as not he will dream on the base lines or go to keep in the field and straddle the ball or cross signals or pull off some kind of a boner. Sometime when you aren't hungry go and eat a barrel of fried oysters and see how you feel."

Dick believes the players eat too much because they get the food for nothing, and if they had to pay for the food they would content themselves with a glass of milk and a sandwich a lot of times that they now indulge in everything on the bill of fare.

Dick's idea though, is not to place any hardship on the player. He favors paying the players more money and allowing him to buy his own meals, or allowing him a certain sum for meals out of which he might save something by safety first eating. He favors the plan for the Central league.

CONCORDIANS WALLOP FIVE FROM PAYNE

Visitors Defeated in Second Half by the Local Germans.

Coming out from behind in the second half of a game full of kick, the Concordia basketballers demonstrated that they are the real for sure stuff last night by walloping the Payne, O., crew of rustic giants by a total of 67 and 27. It looked at the half way mark as though the Payne bunch was there to stay, and Cap Byroade simply kicked a little ambition into his boys between the halves and everything went smoothly.

The Concordians showed a remarkable amount of classy team work, and held together like the machine that Cap Byroade is working so hard to perfect. It was the best game they have put up this season and they are showing the effects of good training.

In the preliminary the Concordian seconds were defeated 33 and 17 by the St. Paul's Nationals. Lineups and scores:

Concordia, 67—Luerssen, F.; Schilf, F.; Wacker, C.; Metzdorf, G.; Dorn, G.

Preliminary.

Concordia, 17 — Gremel-Hendricks, F.; Bauer, F.; Brommer, C.; Bald, G.; Waltz-Hendricks, G.

Free throws—Gremel 1, Hoffmann 1.

NEW HAVEN CARDINALS are WORTH GOING SEVEN MILES TO SEE

Every now and then a basketball team that is of more than usual interest hops into the spotlight. Such a team is the New Haven Cardinals, a bevy of pretty girls, who are putting up a mighty classy game. In the picture are the Misses Lucinda Dennis, Florence Schuckman, Agnes Becker, Loretta Dennis and Etta Harper. The sixth member of the team wasn't on the job when the picture was made.

ATTENDS DISTRICT MEETINGS.

Jesse Macbeth, of this city, grand master of the I. O. O. F. lodge in Indiana, has been attending a series of meetings throughout the state conferring with district deputy grand masters and patriarchs. Wednesday he was at Lafayette.

Only one man in 203 is 6 feet tall.

IT'S A HABIT.

Leach Cross was walloping Ad Wolgast something frightful in the sixth round of a go in New York last night when a kindly referee stepped in and saved the old man from Cadillac from a disgrace. This is the second time in a week Wolgast has stayed on his pins through the kindness of the third man. Bennie Leonard knocked out Joe Mandor in the seventh of their go.

KAUFF, "TY COBB OF THE OUTLAWS," WILL BE CENTER OF SCRAMBLE FOR PLAYERS IN FED DISTRIBUTION.

RECORD WITH FEDS.

Stole most bases, 54.
Second in run getting.
Second in home runs.

1914.

Led batters with .368.
Scored most runs, 118.
Made most hits, 210.
Stole most bases, 75.
Made most doubles, 42.
Hit for greatest number of bases, 303.

(By Brown Holmes).

When the committees of the National, American and Federal leagues, in arranging for baseball peace, reach the point of distribution of players who have been in the Federal league, there will be a grand scramble for Benny Kauff, the Brooklyn outfielder, called the Ty Cobb of the "outlaw" organization.

Kauff has been the leading performer in the Federal league for two years and there is not a club in the National and American leagues right now, with the exception of Detroit, that could not make good use of him.

It is too early to tell what system will be used in distributing Fed players among the teams to be in the two leagues that will remain after the Federal is eliminated, but it is a cinch every manager, with the exception of Hughey Jennings, of the Detroit Tigers, will be trying to land Kauff.

Jennings already has the best outfield in the majors in Cobb, Crawford and Veach. The next best outfield is that of the Boston Red Sox, composed of Speaker, Hooper and Lewis.

Next to Kauff the most wanted player will be Lee Magee, who managed the Brooklyn Feds part of last season. Magee was a star with the St. Louis Cardinals before he jumped to the Feds and played great ball this year, ranking next to Kauff in several departments.

Kauff and Magee are youngsters and in that respect, too, will be in great demand. Many of the other good players in the Fed league are veterans who have seen a good deal of service and are on the way back.

Besides Kauff and Magee there are not many players in the Fed league for whom much of the battle will be made. It was announced by the Federal backers that they were going to develop young players but they did not turn out many stars. They relied almost entirely on players grabbed from organized baseball.

Kauff went from the bushes to the Indianapolis club of the American association but jumped to the Feds for 1914. He helped the Indianapolis Feds win the pennant. He led the league in six departments in 1914 and was rated among the "outlaws" as Cobb is rated in organized ball.

This year Kauff was shifted to Brooklyn and kept up his great work at bat and on the bases leading in both departments. At one time during the season he tried to jump to the National league but couldn't get away with it, and returned to Brooklyn.

Kauff has only one fault. He is not a finished fielder. He covers a lot of ground in the outfield but does not play with as much intuition as many other gardeners, is a little late starting for fly balls at times and does not always use good judgment in throwing to bases.

These faults probably can be corrected and even if they are not he is a valuable player because he can pound that old pill.

FREDDIE WELSH IS THE CLASSIC STALLER

Charlie White's Manager Calls Bout Off After Monkey Business.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—According to a telegram received last night from New York, the now justly celebrated negotiations between Freddie Welsh and Charlie White for a twenty round battle for the world's lightweight championship are at an end.

"Have called off all negotiations and am signing White up for other matches. Pollok wants to wait for bid from Juarez. Told him if Juarez bid was satisfactory to him and he signed up there will be no trouble. White leaving for Chicago Saturday. New York promoters bidding for White's services against Ted Lewis, Willie Ritchie and Dundee. Pollok plainly showed that he wants none of White's game for Welsh."

Which indicates that the possibility of a titular battle between these two boys is as remote as it ever was—and that is some remote. Harry Pollok had said time after time that he would accept the highest bid submitted by Dec. 16, but when it came to a showdown no bid was accepted.

It is understood here that the American Boxing association, an organization of promoters, will now take up the matter and attempt to force Welsh into defending his title. Their chances are not such that they have to be viewed through smoke glasses. Welsh still is an attraction in a few hick towns where ten round bouts are permitted, and it is not believed he will allow himself to be forced into any twenty round battles until he has exhausted every possibility in the ten round circuit.

Indications now are that most of Welsh's winter "campaign" will be conducted in Canada, where there is still some easy money to be plucked over the short route.

STRONG AND WELL AS EVER.

Fred Smith, 325 Main St., Green Bay, Wis., says: "I suffered a long time with a very weak back. Foley Kidney Pills completely relieved me of all soreness and pain and I now am strong and well as ever." Winter aggravates symptoms of kidney trouble; cold weather makes aching joints, sore muscles and irregular bladder action more unbearable. Foley Kidney Pills help the kidneys eliminate pain-causing poisons.—Dreier Drug Co.

WHAT HAS THE TRACTION COMPANY DONE FOR FORT WAYNE?

Let us see what the real facts are and then let every one judge for himself.

The Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction Company was organized under the laws of Indiana in 1903 for the purpose of acquiring, building and operating street and interurban railroads and electric light and power plants. In 1911 it was re-organized under the laws of the State of Indiana, with practically the same stockholders and officers, under the name of Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction Company. These two companies, therefore, for the purpose of this article, are properly treated as one and will be designated the "Traction Company."

The Traction Company is subject to regulation and control by both the Interstate Commerce Commission, at Washington, and the Public Service Commission of Indiana. To each of which Commissions and to the Treasury Department of the United States, it is required by law and does make annual and sworn report of all its receipts and expenditures in detail, on forms expressly prescribed by said Commissions and the Treasury Department, whose expert accountants examine the books of the Traction Company for verification of these reports. Severe penalties are provided in the law for the making of false reports. These reports are on file in the office of the Commissions, are subject to examination by anyone, and there is therefore nothing that can be concealed in the business or operations of the Traction Company, and no excuse can be made for false charges against it.

The Traction Company in 1904, purchased and acquired: (a) The street railroad properties in Fort Wayne which had twice before been in the hands of a receiver; (b) the interurban railroad from Fort Wayne to Wabash, constructed by the Fort Wayne and Southwestern Traction Company (which was also in the hands of a receiver) and the electric light and power plant of the Fort Wayne Electric Light and Power Company which had been acquired by said Southwestern Company; (c) The interurban railroad from Wabash to Peru, then owned by the Wabash River Traction Company; (d) The interurban railroad from Peru to Logansport, then owned by the Wabash and Logansport Traction Company; (e) The street railroad properties in Logansport, then owned by the Logansport Railway Company, and the Logansport, Rochester and Northern Traction Company; (f) And the street railroad properties in Lafayette and West Lafayette, then owned by the Lafayette Street Railroad Company.

The Traction Company afterwards built: (a) The interurban railroad from Fort Wayne to Bluffton, there connecting with the lines of the Union Traction Company, and the Marion, Bluffton and Eastern Traction Company, thereby giving Fort Wayne direct communication and frequent interurban passenger, express and freight service with Bluffton, Montpelier, Hartford City, Muncie, Anderson, Indianapolis and Marion, and the numerous intervening towns; and (b) The interurban railroad from Logansport to Lafayette giving a through interurban line from Fort Wayne through Huntington, Wabash, Peru, Logansport and Delphi to Lafayette and intervening towns, thereby connecting with other interurban railroads running through North and South at Wabash, Peru, Logansport and Lafayette.

The Traction Company thus brought Fort Wayne into direct and frequent interurban communication with cities and towns, and the rural communities adjacent thereto, having an aggregate population of more than a half million of people. If anyone asks: "What has the Traction Company done for Fort Wayne?" or doubts the immense advantage and profit to Fort Wayne from these interurban railroads and connections made by the Traction Company, let him ask the merchants, business men and traveling salesmen of Fort Wayne, and not the man with "an ax to grind"—at the expense of the Traction Company,

WHAT HAS THE TRACTION COMPANY DONE IN FORT WAYNE SINCE IT ACQUIRED ALL THE ABOVE PROPERTIES?

1. It located in Fort Wayne its principal offices from which all the business of its large system is done and where all its official and clerical force reside.

2. It located and built in Fort Wayne one of the largest and best equipped electric light and power plants in the middle West at an actual cost of more than one million dollars.

3. It extended its electric light and power system, formerly owned by the Fort Wayne Light and Power Company, to every part of the city and so as to furnish to every inhabitant an electric light and power service not surpassed in any city in the country.

4. Since 1904 it has re-built and reconstructed nearly every line of street railroad in the city in a manner equal to the bet street railroad construction to be found anywhere; and it has paved or re-paved most of the streets between its rails and for a distance of one foot outside of the rails. It has also purchased new cars and other equipment, and respectfully submits that the street car service in Fort Wayne compares favorably with street car service in any other city of its size in the country.

5. It has paid out and expended for street paving alone in the city of Fort Wayne the sum of $333,583.21, which amount has thereby been saved to the abutting property owners and to the city. The "jitneys" are now permitted, without expense or regulation of any kind, not only to use and wear out these pavements paid for by the Traction Company but to obstruct and interfere with street car service and render hazardous the lives of people using the streets. "IS THIS A SQUARE DEAL?"

6. The Traction Company paid in taxes in 1915 the sum of $65,120.41, of which $20,590 was paid to the Treasurer of Allen county. How much do the "jitneys" pay? Should not the above amount of taxes insure protection to the property on which the taxes are paid?

7. The Traction Company, from January 1, 1904, to October 1, 1915, has expended for additions and betterments to its property in Fort Wayne alone the sum of $3,045,290.84.

8. The Traction Company from January 1, 1910, to October 1, 1915, has expended for additions and betterments to its property in Fort Wayne alone the sum of $1,950,425.15. How many people in Fort Wayne have realized the enormous sum of money which the Traction Company has expended in the upbuilding of its properties in this city?

9. The Tractions Company pays out each year to its employes in Fort Wayne for the operation of its properties an average of $340,000.

10. Neither the present Traction Company, nor any other company owning and operating the system of street railroads in Fort Wayne, including its electric light and power plant, has ever paid a dividend of any kind on any kind of stock, except a six per cent. dividend on the preferred stock, for one and a half years only; but a considerable portion of that dividend was paid out of a special fund voluntarily paid in by the preferred stockholders themselves and not out of the earnings of the company.

11. The following is a sworn statement of the expenditures of the Traction Company for additions and betterments to its properties in Fort Wayne, prepared and sworn to by Mr. Harry E. Vordermark, Auditor of the Traction Company, for whose honesty and integrity everyone who knows him will cheerfully vouch.

EXPENDITURES BY TRACTION COMPANY IN THE CITY OF FORT WAYNE

STATE OF INDIANA } SS.
COUNTY OF ALLEN }

Harry E. Vordermark, being duly sworn on his oath, says he is Auditor of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Company, and has been connected with the Auditing Department of the several companies owning and operating the street railroad system in Fort Wayne for the past 22 years; that the above statement of the amounts paid for taxes in 1915, for street paving, and for additions, constructions, and betterments, are true and correct; and he personally knows that during the past 22 years neither said Traction Company or any other Company owning and operating the street railroad properties in Fort Wayne, ever paid a dividend of any kind on any kind of stock, except for one year and a half when a six per cent. dividend was paid on the preferred stock only, but a considerable portion of that dividend was paid out of a fund voluntarily paid in by the preferred stockholders and not out of earnings of the Company.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public, this 17th day of December, 1915.

HARRY E. VORDERMARK.

ARTHUR C. PONTIUS,
Notary Public.

My commission expires Jan. 7, 1916.

What other corporation has expended as much money in additions and improvements to its property in the same period of time as the Traction Company?

Street car transportation and electric light and power are essential factors in the development of every large city. No modern city can increase in population or business without both. The destruction of the Traction Company's property or rights would be an unspeakable calamity to our city.

The Traction Company has endeavored to the best of its ability to give to the people of Fort Wayne good street car and electric service, it has obeyed the law in all things and has not given cause for offense to anyone. It therefore appeals to and confidently relies upon the generous protection and support of the good people of Fort Wayne.

JAMES M. BARRETT,

GLAD EDDYTORIUL ON XMAS

Would you skeercely believe that it aint only six more days until glad & joyous Xmas will be here? We cant skeercely believe it and yit sitch is the fackts in the case. Mercyashion, how time flies!

Yes, next Xmas will ockur next Satterday December 25th rain or shine, hail or snow, fair or foul. Xmas is a good eal like time & tide—it dont wait for nobuddy. It has allus been our custom ever sinst we took charge of the Bugle lo these menny yrs agone—ever sinst Heck was a pup as you might say, to dash off each yr a approperate eddytoriul on glad Xmas & we dont perpose to deevyate one jot ner tittle from our eddytoriul polisy this yr, neither, and wed like to see ennybody try to make us! Thats one thing where we wont brook er tollerate enny interferents namely in the management of conducktin the Bugle to suit ourself. N. B.—You can take this or leave it alone jest as you see fit.

Xmas incloodin the hollerdays whitch comes betwixt it and New Yrs as well as New Yrs itself is a season when everybuddy in Bingville is sposed to be full of the spirrit of charitty and peace on earth and good will tords their fellermen. It is a season when we ort to throttle down our real selfs and try to get the best of our nasty disposishions. In other words we ort to lay aside our spites & grudges and selfishnesses and not indulge in bitter & acrimonious feelings aginst our nabers but ruther go around with our hearts sloppin over with good nachure & cheer and love and affeckshion.

But do we do so here in Bingville? Anser—no we dont. On the other hand were jest as mean & penoorius & hipperkritikal & graspin & gougin durin the glad Xmastide as we be all the rest of the yr. Were allus lookin out fer No. 1 as we might say—allus tryin to git the best of each other and the devil take the hindmost. Thats the kind of a attytood whitch Bingville folks manifests aginst one another.

Take Lem Gookins for a sample. We met Lem on the st tother day and ast him if he was a going to give Xmas gifts this yr as ushual. Lem he up and says no hed be hornswoggled if he was. And when we ast him why not he says becuz heretofore when he has give Xmas gifts to his wife & children he has allus got cheated being as the Xmas gifts whitch they give him diddent begin to cost half as mutch as the ones he give them and hed got so disgusted that he was a going to stop givin Xmas gifts altogether.

Now aint that a purty way for Lem Gookins to ackt! When we give Xmas gifts to folks we ortent to allus expeckt to git back moren we give. That aint no kind of a Xmas spirrit to manifest. It aint the cost of a Xmas gift that counts—its the spirrit whitch it is give with.

Why cant folks hereabouts exert a true Xmas spirrit tords one another this Xmas for a change? Shurely they could manage to do so for a week ennyhow and then after the New Yr has came we spose they could go back to the old way agin if theyre bound to and be mean and ornery and pusillanamus & penoorius according to their real nachures.

Even the town selecktmen from who the Town Hall would haft to be hired don't seem to know nothink about it and they tell us that if ennybuddy is a going to give a mooving pickshure show in the town it will be without their nolledge and consent.

We should like to know who starts sitch roomers ennyhow. Of course it is important if true, but on tother hand if it aint true why it dont amount to a hill of beans and only works us all up for nothink. However, we'll find out if it is true if we wait long enuff fer truth is might and will pervail.

Hank in a Bad Fix

Hank Dewberry, one of our most goodfornothing citizens has been suffering from what he calls plumbago for some time past. Hank went to Doc Livermore for it. Doc told him to try a capsicum plaster. Hank says after it had been on about an hour it burnt like wild fire and he tried to pull it offen his back but it stuck so tite that it nearly made him holler out with pain every time he give a yank on it, so he had to get his wife to pull it off of him, being as he didn't have the moral courage to do it. Hank says that where the plaster was on his back is all blistered and that he has learnt since he put that plaster on that it wasn't nothing but a plaster made of red pepper with glue on one side to make it stick. DO THINGS

HOW many times you read of someone making a fortune with some little contraption you might have thought of yourself, or running a business in some new way that is so simple it would be silly except that it happens to be a success.

"Why, any one could have thought of that," is your thought.

It isn't the thinking of the thing; it's the putting it over that counts.

Where a hundred people are capable of thinking something new, or realizing the possibility in something old, one possesses the gumption needed to put it over.

It doesn't require genius to put a thing over, but it does need perseverance, faith in yourself, power to concentrate and to snatch at opportunity. You must make other people see you are right, and to do that you must believe yourself right.

The real secret of being a good business woman, a good saleswoman, a good secretary, is this same ability to put it over—to get results. If you can't convince yourself that what you have is worth pushing, if it doesn't get over with you, don't think you can put it over on any one else. Quit it and go in for something different.

CARE OF YOUR NAILS

BY EDNA EGAN.

"JUST watch me scrape the flakes of dead skin off the base of the nail with the cuticle knife. You don't feel any pressure, do you? You hardly know I am scraping.

"While I scrape I barely insert the tiny point of the knife—not the orange stick; that is too dull—under the edge of the fold of skin that comes over the base of the nail. I don't push or press back; I barely touch the joining and lift the fold ever so slightly. Remember that. When you push it back to loosen the skin from the nail, you stretch and break that dainty little fold and make the flesh just beyond puffy and red.

"The cuticle in manicuring sense means the skin around the nail, especially the little fold at the base, which makes a dainty finish below the half moon and must not be cut. There are jagged places on the rim of your cuticle that may be snipped off, just as I snip off nightly the hang nails and the bits of clinging skin that have been removed by the bleach or the knife. Never, never cut deep enough into the skin to make it bleed.

"Plenty of oiling is the thing to get the cuticle into good condition, smooth and even unbroken. Every night under the cuticle and under the free edge of the nail run a toothpick dipped in cream or oil. This process nourishes and softens the cuticle and nail, and prevents their adhering.

"Here's something more to remember. Each time you wipe your hands gently run the towel around the base of the nail to clear away the dead skin. Don't push down with the towel, rather wipe upward from the base to the tip.

"There! The cuticle is all snipped off. Now dip your fingers in the water, and watch me use the nail brush on them. I stroke downward, seldom across or upward. Now with the pumice stone or gritty soap rub stains or rough spots gently, but never let the rough surface touch the nail.

"Again the water and nail brush to clear away the polishing powder.

"Last of all, for the final brilliant polish I rub a dash of powder on the palm of the dry hand and finish off the nails with that."

Cinnamon Cake.

Two cupfuls flour, yolks of two eggs, one cupful of sugar, lump of butter size of an egg, two teaspoonfuls ground cinnamon, two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Filling. Put through meat chopper one cupful raisins. Beat the whites of the two eggs thoroughly and add enough powdered sugar to make it stiff. Mix raisins with the eggs and sugar and put between layers. The frosting may be either of chocolate or plain white.

Fancy Salad.

Boil until tender one-half dozen carrots and one-half dozen beets; when cold chop fine. Chop one head cabbage fine. Season the chopped carrots with vinegar, sugar and salt and a little cinnamon; beets with vinegar, sugar, and salt; cabbage with one-half cup of cream, vinegar, sugar, and salt. Then put a circle of carrots in center of platter, then a ring of beets, then a ring of cabbage. A little parsley or lettuce leaves put around the outside of platter adds greatly to the appearance of the salad, a good and decorative dish to the table.

Steamed Blackberry Pudding.

Sift one cupful of flour into a basin, add one saltspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking powder; then gradually add two well beaten eggs and one pint of milk. Stir in one pint of blackberries which have been thoroughly dredged with flour. Pour at once into a greased mold, cover with a greased paper, and steam steadily for two hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Fruit Pies.

When making berry pies cut a tiny hole in the center of the top crust, and when ready to bake make a cornucopia of brown or any paper without printing and slip apex into hole and half way into the berries. This is an escape for all of the air, and your pie will not run over or bubble. Is this not worth the trouble?

Cinderella Cake.

Two eggs, one cupful of sugar, one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour, one gill cold water, one teaspoonful lemon juice, one teaspoonful baking powder, one tablespoonful chocolate, one-half glass jelly.

Beat yolks of eggs with sugar, add chocolate, and beat in whites of eggs, lemon juice, water, flour, and baking powder. Beat four minutes. Bake in two pans in moderate oven eighteen minutes. When done spread with jelly and ice with chocolate icing.

Sweet Potato Relish.

One of the best relishes for poultry or roast pork: Slice firm boiled potatoes, keeping the slices whole, arrange them in layers in a baking dish, smothering the layers in sugar and dotting them liberally with butter. Season with nutmeg or mace and a little white pepper. Almost cover with boiling water and set for two hours in a slow oven. As the water wastes add more a little at a time. The aim is to preserve the potato slices. When taken out there should be a rich syrup, half the depth of the dish. Good either hot or cold.

Cranberry Souffle.

Line a shallow tin with short crust and bake for twenty minutes. When cool, put a good layer of stemmed cranberries sprinkled well with sugar; then fill up with custard made with the yolk of two eggs and three-quarters of a cupful of milk, and return to the oven to set. Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, mix in two ounces of sugar, and beat again for a few minutes. Take the souffle from the oven, spread an even layer of the whites over the custard, put the remainder into an icing bag with tube and ornament. Put it back in the oven for a few minutes, but take great care it does not brown too much.

Fish Pie.

Take any canned fish and free from bones and skin. Flake the fish and season with pepper, adding a little lemon juice and also salt if necessary. Pare and slice four boiled potatoes and arrange in layers with the fish in a buttered baking dish, seasoning with salt and pepper, a tablespoonful of grated onion and minced parsley, if at hand. Add one tablespoonful of butter and cover with a baking powder biscuit dough cut into small pieces. A half-pint of boiling water is added to the fish before placing the dough on top. Bake until the biscuits are done. Serve with a white sauce or any left-over meat gravy at hand. To the white sauce add a chopped, sour pickle or olives.

Smothered Chicken.

A delicious dinner dish may be made at small cost of labor in this way: Cut up a medium sized chicken, sprinkle each piece with a little flour, and put them into a covered bean pot. Cover with water and season with a little salt and pepper. Bake slowly four or five hours. Then add five medium potatoes, two or three onions cut in pieces, and one-half cupful of peas previously cooked until nearly done, one-half cupful of chopped celery, and, if needed, a cupful of water. Cook until vegetables are done. If done as directed, the gravy will be thick and brown and delicious to taste. Serve hot.

Chowder.

Cut in dice form, to try out, half a pound of salt pork. Put in the bottom of a two gallon granite kettle. Cut up two pounds of fresh fish—cod, perch, or pickerel, cod preferred. Place a layer over the pork, then a layer of sliced potatoes. Eight medium sized potatoes to two pounds of fish. Slice four good sized onions and place a layer of them on the potatoes, season with salt and pepper, cover with hot water. Cook one hour and then add one quart of milk, and before serving add half a pound of Boston crackers that have been soaked two minutes in cold water.

Pecan Pie.

Line a pie pan with crust, and bake. Filling, cook one cupful of cream, one cupful of sugar, four eggs, saving the whites of two for meringue; one cupful of chopped pecan meats chopped fine. When this mixture thickens fill the crust and put on the meringue of the two whites of eggs beaten stiff, and sweeten. Sprinkle over meringue a few finely chopped pecan meats. Brown in oven.

ODDS AND ENDS

ONCE more the graceful tulle scarf, of immense width and length and of gossamer-like fragility, is being liked and used. It is wound about the arms, the shoulders, or the head, just as it happens to be needed. Some new ones seen the other day were radiant in color; and each had a fresh touch, namely, a very narrow hemband of gold or silver thread, jetted chenille, or something equally effective. A rosy cloud of brilliant tinting, with gold braid, has a fascinating beauty of its own, and another lovely choice which would suit a girl with a pale brown or fluffy golden hair was of that vivid shade of blue called Madonna, hemmed with the very narrowest silver braid. It seems to be essential that "pure" colors should be used for these picturesque scarfs, but black ones are available, of course, with the jetted item that is so fashionable a punctuation of all gossamer fabrics.

COMBINATION underclothes are becoming more and more the rage. Almost all the corset covers and petticoats that one sees for sale are fastened together around the waistline. Both bodice and skirt are made on the circular pattern, so that there is as little fullness as possible around the waist and hips, and they are joined together by beading through which ribbon is run. It is a very attractive looking garment for negligee, but it is far more trouble to keep them both clean and fresh than it is to care for only one piece at a time. The reason for the innovation was, of course, the return of the empire gown, but the princess slip of lace and nainsook is a far more becoming gown to the figure than is the combination.

THE fashionable sets of buttons evolved for the embellishment of blouses bodices, waistcoats and coatees are so tastefully painted, beaded or embroidered as to offer both to the home artist and needle woman the opportunity of making presents at a small cost. To these effective series are now often added en suite large padded rings and crescents treated in the same way and intended to be threaded with lace, braid or ribbon as dress, blouse and cushion trimmings.

CHARMING little bootees of white kid are made for the baby and embroidered with the feather-stitch in pink or blue silk. The patterns for the diminutive boots are the same as that used for the knitted slippers of older people. First, the tiny sole is cut, then the upper. The one is sewed to the other, the seam is fastened at the heel and the top is bound in ribbon. The feather or brier stitching is then put all around the seams and just below the ribbon binding and baby's shoes are finished.

BLACKBERRY mould will be a surprise for the nursery supper table. Stew and mash a quart of berries with a little water. Stir into this a small cup of farina and a pinch of salt. Cook for an hour in a double boiler and put into wet moulds to harden. Turn out on individual dishes and serve with a little thin cream. Another delightful dish that can be prepared in the morning and eaten at night is blackberry and apple fool. To make it, take one pint each of the berries and nice juicy apples. Peel, core and slice the latter, then put them with the berries into a saucepan with a quarter cup of water and one cup of sugar. Cook gently until the fruit is tender, then rub through a sieve. If not sweet enough add more sugar and stir into the fruit pulps one pint of thick boiled custard. Pour into a glass dish, the one it will be served in. When ready to serve whip cream to a stiff froth, sweeten and flavor. Heap in mounds over the fool. Serve very cold. Raspberry cream is the queen of dainty desserts. Soak half a box of gelatin in cold water to cover for half an hour. Stand over boiling water until dissolved. Add half a cup of sugar and a pint of strained raspberry juice. Stir until thickened over cracked ice. Then add one pint of whipped cream and mix thoroughly. Pour into a mould and set away to harden.

THE NEWEST NECKWEAR

BY MRS. KINGSLEY.

IN spite of the fact that life for most women has taken on a new and strenuous aspect since the commencement of the war, those dainty accessories which lend a charm essentially feminine to the simplest and most severe gowns were never so much in evidence as at the present moment. From the perfectly simple collars in fine white lawn, innocent even of a line of hemstitching, up to the elaborate fichus in net or ninon, ruffled with fine real lace, there are endless varieties in the way of neckwear which are well worth consideration. There is no need either for most of them to spell extravagance, since it should be quite a simple matter to have them carefully washed at home.

For morning use, nothing is more becoming than a small sailor collar of clear white muslin, continued in front in the form of revers, and arranged in such a way that it looks equally well worn with a simple blouse or outside a coat in serge or summer cloth. Some of these collars are rendered more decorative by fine embroideries worked just in the corners only, while others again look very pretty arranged with lines of hemstitching, which cross each other at the corners. Other muslin collars of a more elaborate description are cut out in points shaped like the petals of an arum-lily, and slightly stiffened with very fine wires, which can be quite easily withdrawn and replaced when the collars are washed.

Upstanding frills of net and lace which stop short on either side, leaving the front of the throat bare, are still enjoying a certain share of Fashion's favor, but since they proved somewhat unmanageable in their original form, they are now almost always held securely in place by a narrow strap of black velvet ribbon, which is in some cases drawn through a small paste slide, while in other instances it is secured by small rosettes of ribbon to match. A pretty collar of this kind, carried out in cream Alencon lace, is mounted on a broad black velvet band and then drawn together in front by double straps of cream moire ribbon, finished on either side by clusters of small pink satin roses.

It is the fichu, however, in its many forms, which takes the place of honor among the dainty accessories of the moment, if only because it adapts itself so amiably to frocks that are suitable for widely different occasions. By a little skilful manipulation, too, it can be made equally becoming to those who are very slim and to those others who are not so easily suited because their figures err upon the generous side. The soft folds of lawn or muslin, net or lace can be draped firmly or loosely, as occasion requires, and can be arranged in such a way that by concealing certain deficiencies they will succeed in giving a delightfully graceful outline to the figure. Some of the newest fichus are draped round the shoulders in the demure fashion which prevailed in 1830, while others are arranged with folds that are drawn closely together a little distance below the throat, and fastened either with a cluster of flowers or a knot of black velvet ribbon.

Preparedness

A WOMAN of wealth, but who is nevertheless identified with civic work and a practicing lawyer, lately gave a talk before a mothers' club. Here is a part of what she said:

"There is one question to which every woman ought to be able to answer YES. It is this, "Can you earn a living if you should need to do?'"

If there is one lesson more than another that has been emphasized in recent years it is that the untrained suffer most when a pinch comes. Another lesson that is not sufficiently understood is that there is practically no security in fortune.

Be prepared is advice for a woman as well as for a nation. Train your daughters, you mothers, to something that will pay a return sufficient at least for a livelihood. It can do no harm, and it may mean just the difference between happiness and misery in later life.

There is nothing more pathetic than the sight of some unfortunate woman, brought up to a competency and utterly unprepared to support herself, who has been suddenly reduced to poverty. We all know some such woman. Pottering along at things that are of no real use, at work given by pitying friends or strangers, more or less dazed by contact with a world that is foreign to her, sinking little by little to meaner surroundings and more desperate makeshifts, she at last disappears, sucked under in the maelstrom she has neither the strength nor the training to resist.

Surely you don't want to run even the faintest chance of becming such a derelict, you don't want your daughters to run any such risk. So be prepared. Be fit for something, trained to something, ready to take hold if you must. Know at least one thing so well that people will be glad to pay you for doing it. Be able to say YES if the world should ask you if you can return fair value for a living. It is the surest of human safeguards.
